Mrs. A. Redlon is at Mr. Green's, her father's, this winter.

There is great travel on the county road this winter, and Fosston seems to be the place of attraction. T. J. W.

Geo. W. Peck, proprietor of Peck's Sun, has been to Washington on a visit. He writes an interesting letter to the Sun, from which we take the following extract in relation to pensions:

"I visited the Pension Office one day with Congressman Price, of this State, and was introduced to the Commissioner of Pensions, Gen. Black, of Illinois. An hour or two spent in that immense building, where there are thousands of clerks and examiners, will give one a pretty good idea of the importance of the pension business, and will demonstrate that the government is paying out a large sum of money and doing as well as it can for the poor soldiers, under the existing laws. Nearly all the persons connected with the Pension Bureau, would if they had power, grant every soldier a pension who served creditably during the war, but the laws are such that every precaution has to be taken to prevent the soldiers getting a pension. Matters are delayed as long as it is possible, with the apparent hope that the applicant for a pension will die before he receives it. This is the fault of the laws and not those connected with the Pension Bureau. Congressman Price is the author of a bill now before Congress, to pension all soldiers who served a certain length of time during the war, and while the measure is unpopular to a certain extent at present, the time will come when the bill will become a law. Mr. Price almost devotes his nights and days in efforts to benefit the soldiers. A stranger who did not know him well would think that he was a crank on the subject of pensions and soldiers, but those who know him, know that he is always right in any matter he takes up as he has taken up that subject. He says he wants the government to look upon the soldiers as he looks upon the lumbermen who work for him in the winter in the woods. In the fall he hires the men at regular rates, whether it is twenty dollars a month, more or less. When he settles with his men in the spring, he has a report from the foreman as to what kind of workers the men were during the cold weather. If the report is favorable, and they have been anxious to do as much work as possible, an extra fifty dollars given to them by their employer is a frequent occurrence, and Mr. Price says the next fall, if those men work in the woods, they come to him, and so he has the best men that can be employed. He thinks that the government should be in the same position. Treat those who saved the country as well as lumbermen are treated in the woods, and in that way if trouble should arise again, there will be the best of help for the country. In this matter of universal pensions, Mr. Price feels that the soldiers themselves have much to do in the way of organizing. The Grand Army of the Republic should do more work to secure the passage of bills that are to benefit all the old soldiers. There is a great apathy prevailing among soldiers. Of course, if such laws were passed, they are willing to take the benefit of them, but they are too apt to remain idle, hoping for the best. This will not do. Every soldier that is alive to-day in America, should sign a petition to Congress, asking, if not demanding, the passage by Congress of such bills as are now before the house. With such petitions being sent to clerk's desks every day there would soon be a sentiment that does not now exist in favor of doing the square thing by the boys in blue. It would make the matter easier for those who are now working for them in Congress, and give them courage to go to their fellow workers and insist on being assisted in this matter. In a short time blank petitions will be sent to every Grand Army Post in the country, with the request that they be signed by the boys and sent to Washington. I find that a great many members of Congress who have not thought of the matter carefully, are willing and anxious to be convinced of their duty to the soldiers. In talking with fifty of them I do not recall five that expressed a firm opposition to any legislation in the way of pensions. At least forty-five out of the fifty said in effect: 'Why, certainly, the government owes it to the soldiers, and when the time comes the bill shall be passed.'"

Special to the Evening Journal.

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 26.—Five years ago Katie Putnam, the actress, was in Helena, Mont. The owner of a recently discovered mine became smitten with her and asked the privilege of naming the mine after her. The request was granted. Katie Putnam thought no more of the matter until she received as a Christmas present a handsomely engraved certificate for 300 shares of non-assessable, paid-up stock in the Katie Putnam Mining Company of Helena. The capital stock of the company is placed at $300,000. The mine recently developed much wealth and will make the 300 shares worth nearly $250,000.

Farm and Garden.

Every neighborhood should have a Farmer's Club, Alliance, Grange, or society of some kind, holding frequent meetings for the discussion of all subjects pertaining to the farm. As so much can be learned by comparison of different methods of work and their results, there is no way in which the farmers could more profitably spend their winter evenings than at such meetings. Good farming is undoubtedly a pleasant and profitable employment, and yet it is a fact that very much of the farming done in this state is unprofitable; that is, it does not yield that amount of money and pleasure that the amount of capital and labor invested should, in comparison with other kinds of business or with more successful farming. The reasons offered for this condition of affairs are as various as the colors of the rainbow and are shaded according to the temperament, location or ambition of the individual explaining the situation. One says it is all the fault of the railroads; another, that there is too much wheat and not enough stock; another, the national banks or the tariff. They are each very positive they have found the loose screw and know how it should be tightened. The trouble is they can never agree. Turning from these theories and speculations, the stock in trade, of too many who write and speak for farmers, it is found that practically there exists right on the farm the reason for success or failure, facts and figures that cannot be disputed, written so plainly that all may read. A has fat, sleek horses and cattle. If he has a cow to sell he finds a ready purchaser and a good price, his butter finds a cash market at 25 cents a pound and upward, his beef cattle bring cash in the market, his wheat yields from twenty to thirty bushels per acre, he gets a discount of one-half cent per bushel or more on threshing bills, his machinery is bought at discount, his home is pleasant and happy, his boys think farming a good business and he is making money. B. on the next farm, loses a horse or two every year, never can get what a "critter" is worth, exchanges his butter for groceries, getting from 6 to 8 cents a pound, and declares that it don't pay to make butter, sells two-year-old steers for $15 a piece and says stock raising as a means of gaining wealth is a humbug. His wheat generally yields about 10 bushels to the acre, and he very truthfully remarks that that don't pay. The A's and the B's can be found in every neighborhood. A. can tell how he makes 25 cent butter and B. may be lead to imitate him, when A. tells how with 40 loads of manure to the acre he got the first year 60 bushels of corn, the next 28 bushels of wheat and this year, two tons of clover hay and $10 worth of clover seed. Good common sense will teach where lies the secret of success or failure. Perhaps C. will tell how he gets $80 for a three-year-old steer, while neighbor D. sold four the same day for $18 apiece. Meet and talk these things over. Let Bro. Jones rehearse the villanies of the monopolists and Bro. Brown denounces the non-producing classes who buy your surplus beef, butter, eggs, etc., but don't forget that good farming does pay a fair profit, or that intelligent, systematic, thorough work wins the day in any business.

The Farm, Stock and Home has become the leading agricultural paper of the State. It is a paper that should be in every household. We will send it with the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, to any address in Polk County for $1.75. Postage added (15 cents) if sent outside of the county.

I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

WELCOME.

TO THE W. C. T. U. IN ANNUAL CONVENTION ASSEMBLED, AT PHILADELPHIA, 1885.

BY JOHN COLLINS.

Friends of the right! in glorious triumph rising
To break the bonds that millions now enslave.
Who still press on, the taunts of foes despising;
With faith undimmed and courage ever brave;

Ye, who have heard, in many a home of sorrow
The cry for help and lent your ready aid,
Or wept in sympathy for those whose morrow
Brought no relief from wounds that sin had made;

Kind souls! impelled by love for suffering woman
To plead the cause of the debased and poor,
Or ask in tears the publican inhuman
To tempt his fallen brethren no more;

All ye, whose powers, by day and night ascending,
Surround, as incense, the Almighty's throne,
Jewels, in beauty and in brightness blending,
When He, the Judge, shall reckon up His own;

Welcome! thrice welcome now! to our Reunion
In homes endeared by ties of Christian love,
Where kindred souls may join in sweet communion,
Allied to that among the saints above.

We meet to tell of trial, toil, and danger
In by-gone days, of battles fought and won,
When, for the poor, the sick, imprisoned stranger,
'Twas ours to work, as Jesus once had done.

Not on our own unaided strength relying,
Do we, when duty calls, the fields explore,
Sustained by Him whose love undying
Can bless our cause, we labor more and more.

Where'er the deadly poison-cup is flinging
Broadcast its woes upon our native land,
Or, as a treacherous, twining serpent stinging
Who'er shall touch it with incautious hand;

Where'er the voice of sorrow, pain, or sighing
Rings, as a knell upon our listening ear,
In the lone cell, or by the sick and dying,
We come, the lost to save, the faint to cheer.

Is it not truly then our high commission
To aid our brother man in weal or woe?
May we not share with him the rich fruition
The followers of the Savior ever know?

He who once made with sinful man his dwelling
To teach, to suffer and to die in shame,
By His own Holy Spirit now is telling
Our heaven-born band to labor in His name.

Reward is with us and our work before us,
In every sphere of sympathy and love,
God's watchful eye is ever bending o'er us,
And He will welcome us in heaven above.

A Bonanza to Every Farmer.

We offer a premium which will prove a bonanza to every farmer who accepts our offer. Farm, Stock and Home is a Minnesota institution, adapted to our soil and climate, edited by a life long Minnesota farmer and a paper that is invaluable to every progressive farmer. We have made such arrangments as will enable us to give every subscriber of THE JOURNAL a copy of this valuable agricultural paper

FREE FOR ONE YEAR.

This offer must be accepted before January 1st 1886. If you wish to secure lots of reading matter for the coming year, subscribe for THE JOURNAL and Farm, Stock and Home at just the price of THE JOURNAL.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST.

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultrymen, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1 50.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication November 26th, 1885.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Berkholtz mortgagor, to The Beloit Savings Bank mortgagee, dated the 18th day of July, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 18th day of July A. D. 1882, at 4:20 o'clock p. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 605, 606 and 607, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and three dollars and thirty-five cents, ($403.35,) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default, and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the authority, in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 8th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at one o'clock in the afternoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interest thereon and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, the lawful fees in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The south half (s½) of the southeast quarter (se¼) and the northwest quarter (nw¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼) of Section fourteen (14,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and twenty (120) acres according to the Government survey thereof.

Dated Nov. 18th, 1885.

HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN CATTLE.

An Illinoisian Tells His Experience With the Breed.

Farmers Advocate.

Amos Edmonds, of Disco, Ill., in writing to the Western Agriculturist about Holstein-Friesian cattle, says:

"Seven years ago I began to make inquiry as to the management and profits in dairy farming.

I was ignorant as to the details of the business, as my father and grandfather before me had made a specialty of raising and selling grain.

I desired to make a change and was of the opinion I could keep a large herd of cows, raise their calves, and manufacture enough butter and cheese to pay all current expenses; Thus the calves would be clear profit.

To accomplish this it would be necessary to produce deep milking cows. The success of the whole business seemed to hinge on this point, and I began to investigate as to the merits of the best breeds of cattle for milk, butter, cheese and beef. I had read about Holstein cattle but I never saw one. I read of whole herds averaging 12,000 to 14,000 lbs. milk a year; and that 25 lbs. of milk will make a pound of butter, and 10 lbs. of the milk would produce a pound of full cream cheese.

I was interested to such an extent that I took the train and visited several dairy regions where Holstein cattle had been introduced. I made it an object to call principally on practical dairymen, as I had everything to learn.

The Holstein cows were good ones, but only a few would produce 14,000 lbs. of milk in one year unless highly pampered, but I was convinced that it would not be a difficult matter for a dairyman to raise a set of grade Holstein cows, by using the best bred full-blood bulls, that would produce with good care and feed at least 7,500 lbs. of milk in a year. This milk would make 750 lbs. of cheese or 300 lbs. of butter.

I continued to reason, figure and estimate with about the following results: That a young calf should have an average 16 lbs. now and 5 lbs. skim milk per day for two months, after which the calf would do well on sweet skim milk and ground oats. This would leave 6,540 lbs. of milk, equal to 260 lbs. of butter from each cow. This butter would bring at 20c per pound the little sum of $52.

I was pleased with the prospect, as my neighbors were keeping cows just for the calves, but I was figuring on a good calf and $52 in cash every year from each cow.

I soon purchased a car-load of Holsteins, shipped them to my farm, and oh my! what did my neighbors say about them? Well, some of them informed me that they never did admire polecats, and had no desire to own or breed animals that resembled that species of black and white quadruped.

Others said I would ruin the cattle interests in this vicinity, as I represented them as splendid beef animals and would soon sell bulls to the farmers to breed to their good Short-horn cows, and as a result the cattle feeders would experience more trouble in producing good steers to feed.

Now as to the sequal. I ran my dairy at first with a mixed lot of cows, some of them were high grade Short-horns, some grade Holsteins and a few full bloods of each breed.

The dairy products from the grade of Holsteins brought on an average nearly $52 a year, and the best high grade cows I usually sold from $30 to $50 each. The thoroughbred cows gave but little more milk on an average than the grades, but their calves I sold higher.

I soon learned that it would pay farmers and dairymen to buy registered Holstein males to breed to their common cows, as the grade cattle seemed to possess all the qualities of the full bloods for practical purposes.

In fact, I was more than pleased in every respect. Even the grade steers that were fed in the same feed yards [illegible] with high grade Short-horns were just as large, and sold for the same price to the shippers. The butchers in this vicinity claim that they never slaughtered grade stock of any breed that gave any better satisfaction than a few grade Holsteins I sold them.

Such in brief is my experience with Holstein-Friesian cattle.

They combine so many good qualities, and are adapted to such a wide range that the demand for them is continually increasing."

Pacific Coast--Scenic and Historical.

Nature seldom repeats herself. In all her wild vagaries, on mountain, plain or sea she presents the same diversity of outline and expression that is to be seen in the highest type of creation—man. The scenery which springs forth with such marvelous variety at her touch—now grand; now ruggedly sublime, now full of grace and beauty; now calm as the emerald earth on which we tread, never palming, never ending the music of her gurgling rills; the Druidical solemnity of her forests, the reverberation of her mountain chasms; the wild fury of her tempest tossed waters—all these manifestations of power and munificence seem to link more closely man with his Creator and teach him to look with love and reverence "from nature up to nature's God."

Perhaps no place in America can be found such diversity in nature, in climate, in tradition, as the country west of the Rocky Mountains. This territory with the exception of Oregon, was acquired from Mexico, by the treaty of Guadaloupe Hidalgo, in 1848, for the sum of $13,000,000. Like the magic seed of the Indian juggler, which "grew, blossomed, and bore fruit, before the eyes of the spectator," the new Eldorado, inhabited in isolated places by bands of holy padres, grew to a flourishing and populous State. The early history of this region is one long chain, interwoven with mystic links of Spanish chivaly and Indian oppression. If the crumbling walls of depopulated villages could speak, they would tell heart-rending tales of the conqueror's perfidity and native resentment. From the rain-bow glories of Yosemite falls to the glittering, snow-crested Po-po-catepel, which looks down upon the ancient walls of the Montezumas, we are constantly confronted with the ruined works of a down trodden and almost extinguished race. In the deep fastnesses of the wilderness; on the rocky heights of the barren mountains, the remnants of the once powerful Azects and Toltecs have reached a point inaccessable by their relentless pursuers, where they are slowly toiling their lives away. The mission Indian wards of these pious and zealous Franciscan Fathers in their turn must be driven from their homes by the "march of civilization." Only a few days since, a land magnate of the Golden State, like the Jewish King, coveted the little patch of ground, owned and tilled for eighty-three years by one of these "barbarians"—held by the Spanish grant and confirmed by our own government. But he was evicted and for his impertinance in daring "to resist the execution of the law," notwithstanding his gray hairs and infirmity, was dragged from his birthright and with his family was turned out to starve. The Franciscan Friars were wonderful men, the world's most heroic Evangelists. There is something grand in the way these scholarly men of God penetrated the wildest recesses, in advance of civilization and gave their labors to the church, their lives to humanity. Perhaps the stock is dead now. Perhaps it is not. But whether it be or not, our present generation shows none of nobler timber. it is less fashionable to be heroic now. Ah, they were faithful workers, laboring with the remotest tribes, facing immovable dangers and encountering untold hardships. Strangers to hundreds of rude dialects, they mastered and united them into one common tongue, with that of sunny Spain in predominence, and as firmly as the volcanic rocks which line those lovely plains, established the Mother Church. But these holy padres, like their simple hearted converts, have been driven before the incoming tide, leaving the ivy-grown chapels and ruined missions as land marks of their earnest toil.

The western coast is one heterogeneous mass of humanity. Here meets every extreme of social and national life. Every race and clime under the sun is represented here from the "Scion Britian" to the unwholesome descendants of Confucious. Motly and varied as the population is, every one tends to his own business, and concedes as much to his neighbors—to all but "John Chinaman." He is considered a personal foul-ball for the varate rag muffin as well as the political aspirant who would weakly climb to the summit of his ambition over the shoulders of "him of the almond eye and sacred cue." As an outgrowth of their extremely popular [illegible] sentiment the friendly relation between the pale-face and his Mongolian brother is in a state of statue quo—according to the Chinese version, because "Melican man he to dalmes freshee." The Chinese question is a serious one, which is growing more complicated day by day. It is no hue and cry of the street corner loafer, but the voice of the good citizen who, while he deprecates violence, looks hopefully forward to the time when the land will be ridden of these leperous scavengers, leaving the buzzards, who have the best right by nativity, the monopolist of carrion.

Although this country was originally under the dominion of Spain, comparatively few of the natives remain. Of the population of Southern California, perhaps not one-fourth are native, while in the northern part the ratio would be much less. These figures are a general average. In San Diago, Santa Barbara, and portions of San Berdinine county, and the vicinity of the Mission the native population perhaps equals and in cases exceeds the foreign, while the remaining counties of semi-tropic—and all of the northern part of the State of California would show a heavy balance on the other side. Those of pure Spanish blood acknowledge no social superiors, but they are rare, though many lay claim to the prominence who would find much difficulty in showing the papers. The Mexicans, or "greasers" varying in intelligence and appearance from a white to a savage, according to the amount of "pure Castilian," occupy the bottom round along with the "heathen Chinese," between which however there is little affinity for the Mexican won't eat dogs.

Among the natural wonders of this western land the famous Gysers, of the National Park; The "Yosemite Valley" the quaint trees of Maxipasa—better known as the "big trees of California," the "Grand Canon of the Colorado," the wonderful "petrified forests of Arizona" Puget Sound, "the Golden Gate," and the cave of San Pedro, are only "drops in the bucket." To enter into details besides giving customs and habits of the population termed Aboriginese as well as their predicessors, the mound builders; the various effects of climate; and agricultural, horticultural and viticultural pursuits, will require a vast deal of time and space. This is an immense domain teeming in endless variety.

The scientist may luxuriate to his hearts content, in her rich minerals, her flora, unequaled in fragrance and beauty, her undeveloped wealth of chemicals and general phenomena. The historian, the antiquarian will find in her crumbling abodes, ruined temples, and ancient mounds, rare, mute towers who speak of a race that has perished. The tourist the pleasure seeeker, or traveler, as he gazes on the granite battlements of her lofty mountains, seamed and scarred by the wars of elements, her massive sides rent and broken, her summit lifted into the ethereal blue, half hidden by the floating mists, causing uncertainty of vision at times making the tops bend forward as though threatening to fall, then as suddenly receding into distance; on her cannons rent into the bosom of the mountains by some titanic convulsion, down which boisterous waters roar and dash from rock to rock in their impetuous course to the sea; on her forests of oak and sombre fir; on her pasture uplands and winding rivers; on her mighty sea, weather lashed to fury by the storms or calm and tranquil as the azure realm reflected on her bosom—as he gazes on all these he cannot deny to this sunny land beneath "Italian skies" the crown of palm and olive.

In my next letter I will give a description of the powerful Azetic race—the Acomas and their ærial city builded on a barren rock six hundred feet in air, the only approach which can be guarded by fifty dusky warriors against a million men.

AUSTIN HILL.

A TIMELY CRITICISM.

Mr. A. E. Kinne, contributes the following timely and altogether too truthful criticism to a recent issue of the Renville Union, published at Bird Island, Minn.:

A carload of Illinois steers, coming two years old, and averaging 1,290 lbs. were sold on Saturday at $5.65.

MR. EDITOR: The above is clipped from the weekly issue of the National Live Stock Journal of Dec. 1st. I would like to ask the farmers of Renville County if they think such results can be produced from such stock as is now to be found in this county which are nothing short of scrubs of the lowest and most worthless grade, resulting from inbreeding for the last 20 years without any regard to improvement. Now only think of a steer less than two years old selling for over $70, even in Chicago. That sum of money will buy the best two year old colt, or come very near it, that can be found in the county, and it has got to be a pair of [illegible] good steers [illegible] year old steers that will command that price here, and very likely these two steers would be sold in Chicago, for common stock, to some Illinois feeder who would take them on to his farm and feed them for a year longer that they might pass for beef.

Some of the farmers of this section may say that such sales are rare even in Chicago. Let me say to you, they are too frequent to justify us in running in the ruts we are now in, unless we wish to rot in just that ditch, and our in-bred scrub treading us down deeper.

I remember of seeing a notice of a carload of calves less than eleven months old being sold in Chicago that weighed a little over 600 pounds apiece and brought the owner something over $88 apiece. Now brother farmer how are such results obtained. It is just through judicious care in breeding and we can accomplish nearly as great results if we will set about it, as well as it can be done in Illinois, but mind you, it can't be done by in-breeding to scrub stock, and I think if we will try, it will not be long before this complaining about rebates on wheat and the difference in price between one place and another will be stopped. Let us commence.

FARM NOTES.

Farmers' Tribune.

Farmers, have you selected your seed wheat for next spring's seeding, and if so, is it the best in variety and quality that can be had? There is no doubt but that the decreased yield of wheat is many times due to poor seed. There is something in pedigree in seeds as well as in stock. Wheat that yielded last year thirty bushels to the acre is much more valuable for seed than that which only gave 10 or 12; and the farmer should certainly be willing to pay a much higher price for the wheat that had for a number of years given a large yield. The most successful farmers are very careful about their seed, growing it on their cleanest, richest land, cutting out weeds, pulling out other varieties that by chance are mixed with it, and cleaning and screening very carefully. They somehow make wheat growing profitable. Wheat is the staple crop of this State. Two-fifths of the farm can be sown to wheat each year, and its fertility maintained, and by a careful and judicious selection of seed the profits of wheat growing can be greatly increased over what they now are.

HOLSTEIN CALVES.

A correspondent of the Western Rural has been reading what some of the Holstein people say about making weight rapidly in Holstein-Friesian calves, and he wishes to know if it is true that a calf of this breed can be made to mature early! The Rural says that the Holstein-Friesian calf, under the ordinary care that is given, grows moderately well, as well as would be expected, and produces results perfectly satisfactory. The ordinary care involves the taking of the calf from the mother as soon as possible. Of course the Holstein is bred and kept for milk, and the calf, therefore, is not allowed to suck very long. But if the Holstein calf is permitted, or should be permitted to run with the cow right along, it would make great and almost marvelous growth. A little thought will show why this is or would be true. It would not be stinted, and a calf that has plenty of the mother's milk will grow like a weed. There is, however, no object in causing the Holstein calf thus to grow. Holsteins are not for beef, and, as many times said by us, their breeders and friends can do the breed no greater injury than by attempting to force them in that direction. We firmly believe with Dr. W. A. Pratt, the noted importer and breeder of Elgin, Ill., that the Holstein is just what she ought to be, and good enough as she is. He thinks that beef points in the breed should never be thought of, except as they may at present be developed. The Holstein will pay for herself over and over as a rule, at the pail, and after that she is of excellent size for the block.

But what is especially wanted with her is to give milk. Hence the milk cannot be wasted on the calf. Nor does the calf need it, for it grows under the ordinary treatment into a fine milking animal, and there again fulfills the mission of its breed.

STOP. Before subscribing for an agricultural paper, consider where it is published and whether the teachings are adapted to the latitude in which you live. Farming in the Northwest cannot be conducted as it is East and be successful. FARM, STOCK AND HOME, of Minneapolis, is edited by the farmers of the Northwest themselves, and is the best, most practical and reliable paper a farmer can have. It is printed twenty-four times a year for only 50 cents, or we will send it and a copy of the JOURNAL for one year for $1.50. [illegible]

HOLSTEIN-FRIESIAN CATTLE.

An Illinoisian Tells His Experience With [illegible] the Breed.

Farmers' Advocate.

Amos Edmonds, of Disco, Ill., in writing to the Western Agriculturist about Holstein-Friesian cattle, says:

Seven years ago I began to make inquiries as to the management and profit in dairy farming.

I was ignorant as to the details of the business, as my father and grandfather before me had made a specialty of raising and selling grain.

I desired to make a change, and was of the opinion I could keep a large herd of cows, raise their calves, and manufacture enough butter and cheese to pay all current expenses. Thus the calves would be clear profit.

There is no doubt but that the decreased yield of wheat is many times due to poor seed. There is something in pedigree in seeds as well as in stock. Wheat that yielded last year thirty bushels to the acre is much more valuable for seed than that which only gave 10 or 12, and the farmer should certainly be willing to pay a much higher price for the wheat that had for a number of years given a large yield. The most successful farmers are very careful about their seed, growing it on their cleanest, richest land, cutting out weeds, pulling out other varieties that by chance are mixed with it, and cleaning and screening very carefully. They somehow make wheat growing profitable. Wheat is the staple crop of this State. Two-fifths of the farm can be sown to wheat each year, and its fertility maintained, and by a careful and judicious selection of seed the profits of wheat growing can be greatly increased over what they now are.

HOLSTEIN CALVES.

A correspondent of the Western Rural has been reading what some of the Holstein people say about making weight rapidly in Holstein-Friesian calves, and he wishes to know if it is true that a calf of this breed can be made to mature early. The Rural says that the Holstein-Friesian calf, under the ordinary care that is given, grows moderately well, as well as would be expected, and produces results perfectly satisfactory. The ordinary care involves the taking of the calf from the mother as soon as possible. Of course the Holstein is bred and kept for milk, and the calf, therefore, is not allowed to suck very long. But if the Holstein calf is permitted, or should be permitted to run with the cow right along, it would make a great and almost marvelous growth. A little thought will show why this is, or would be true. It would not be stinted, and a calf that has plenty of the mother's milk will grow like a weed. [illegible]

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 7.

'ROUND HOME.

Ed. Schreader has returned from Rochester.

The Grand Forks Herald issued a handsome annual this year.

Barnesville has a new paper, the Chronicle. It is a neat little local paper.

Several of the railroad boys have a bit of a lay-off as a New Year's present.

Horrie Jennings entertained a number of his friends at progressive euchre on Monday evening.

Judge Kelso is enjoying city life awhile. He will return home soon accompanied by his son.

H. L. Melgaard spent the holidays in Fargo, and reports having had a splendid time.

Remember the play of "Felix Poutre" on Tuesday night, Jan. 12th to be given at the opera house.

Rev. John Haugen, of Fargo, will preach in the Norwegian Lutheran church at 7:30 p. m. on Sunday next.

The County Board met on Tuesday and are now in session, wrestling with great questions respecting the county weal.

The parties to the blackmailing suit except Chris. Greenhalgh, have been held to the U. S. court in the sum of $500.

Herb received an elegant gold sign from E. B. Newmarch, of Minneapolis. It is a beauty and Herb naturally prizes it very highly.

The St. Hilaire Spectator reports that Charlie Rapp was married about the holidays. Here's Ho, Charlie, and a long and happy life.

Pete Nolan talks of going to Winona soon and may not come back on the line again. He is one of the genial good boys with whom we should dislike to part.

P. J. Lachapelle gave bonds to appear at the next term of court at Winona, but at last accounts Kundert had failed to do so and was to be taken to St. Paul to sojourn until court time.

Ruedy & Meiser intend to put up a large quantity of ice this winter, and to facilitate matters, they have secured, through Messrs. Bray & O'Brien an ice machine which will be put to work this week.

Herb Mason says that his holiday trade was the best he has had for years and thinks his big ad. in THE JOURNAL is too blame for some of it. A liberal advertiser will always receive a liberal trade.

The G. A. R. Post was the recipient of a handsome G. A. R. badge, painted on a large board, presented by Wm. Kistenmacher as a New Year's gift. It is a beauty and highly cherished by the boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Anglim and children returned from a holiday visit to her parents at LaCrosse, yesterday. Mr. A reports good sleighing below and prospects for the success of the St. Paul ice palace to be good.

Roadmaster Burnett gave Frank Zarracher a handsome watch seal as a New Year's gift. The seal represents the G. A. R. badge and the badge of the corps to which Capt. Zarracher belonged during the war.

On reference to Fontaine & Anglim's big ad. elsewhere in this issue it will be seen that those gentlemen are having their annual clearing out sale. This affords an opportunity to secure great bargains that is unexcelled.

W. C. Kelso leaves soon for his old home at Bellevue Iowa. The many friends he has made here while employed with the Merchants National Bank will regret to see him depart and will unite with us in the wish that he may return soon.

C. J. Kops, of this city had a narrow escape at Devil's Lake last week. He had sold a piano at the saloon where McWeeny was shot and was playing on it when Oswald entered. Oswald raised his revolver and fired at Kops, barely missing him, affording Kops an opportunity to see how it seems to be under fire.

Those of our city, who watched the dying gasps of the old and the birth of the new year, welcomed it like unto the Declaration of Independence, which was received by our forefathers, by the ringing of bells and the firing of gun and a general rejoicing; thus it is that another year is welcomed by our people to be hoped that it may bring to all, the happy expectatitions, and the realities that is hoped to be realized in the bright future. The old year just passed has been one of unparalled prosperity, and that prosperity may continue to be showered upon us through the new year as bountifully as the one passed.

We have received of late many requests for sample copies, and some orders for THE JOURNAL to be sent regularly. Some of these orders have been accompanied by the subscription price and to those we send THE JOURNAL and Farm, Stock and Home. Our arrangements with Farm, Stock and Home are such that we cannot send it to any address without the cash in advance. We make this statement so that no one need be disappointed if they fail to get it. Remember, that $1.50 sent with the order secures the two papers to any address in Polk County and $1.65 to any address outside of Polk County.

The cornet band ball at the opera House on the 31st was a success in every particular, netting over $100 and lots of fun. The boys know how to get up a good time.

The new year thus far has been a very well-behaved individual. No rearing and pitching blizzards to disturd the atmosphere. If we only had a little more snow the roads would be far better.

There will be an entertainment on the 15th, consisting of vocal and instrumental music for the benefit of the free reading room. Conducted by the Womans' Christian Temperance Union. It is to be hoped that a good attendance will be had.

Miss Emma Hickens, of Leavenworth Kansas, is in the city visiting the family of her brother-in-law, Thos. Youngs. Miss H. is a typo of long experience, having been with the Levenworth Times for over two years.

The stove pipe of I. U. Jenning's residence last Wednesday night, was noticed by passers by, to be burning out, throwing sparks and flames upon the roof and those adjoining, but being noticed timely and being closely looked after, it was put out without any damage being done by the fire fiend.

Mr. Jacob Scott, one of the old settlers, was married on New Year's day to Miss Kitty McPherson, daughter of Wm. McPherson. Mr. Scott and his lovely bride will spend the honeymoon with friends in the southern part of the State, returning to the farm in time for the duties incident to farm life in the spring. THE JOURNAL wishes them a happy and prosperous New Year and lots of 'em.

In attempting to "ring out the old and ring in the new" year the "wringer" sliped a cog by ringing a regular fire alarm. This brought many of our staid citizens, who had sought repose, up a standin' and caused some expressions not down in the regulation almanac and for a minute, could they have gotten hold of him, the luckless wight would have had the riot act read to him in a manner more marked for its emphasis than beauty of diction or grammatical construction. It is all right to make a demonstration on such occasions but the council should strictly prohibit the ringing of a fire alarm except in cases of fire.

G. Marlatte, manager of the Farmers' Elevator at Carman, informs THE JOURNAL, that a large addition will be built on the north end of that elevator next spring and that they will be prepared to buy oats and barley as well as wheat. The present elevator will be raised three feet higher and a solid foundation put underneath, and the platform and awning continued along the new addition which will give room for three hoppers for receiving grain. Mr. Marlette says that he has taken in a large quantity of wheat this fall and intends to have a greater quantity next. His facilities for handling will be unexcelled when the contemplate improvements are completed.

New Years Day was observed in right royal style in the city. Almost every male citizen was on the war path "from early dawn to dewey eve" or thereabouts. Handsome rigs dashed gaily about hither and yon, while ever and anon you'd meet the "awkward squad" marching as straight and steadily as they could and singing, "We won't go home till morning" (or therebouts) and "The Gal I left behind me" and a string of songs that Palmer has the list of—though nobody accuses G. H. of lifting his melodious voice by way of song—(we'd sooner expect to hear him crow,) however. Some made the rounds in elegant equipages. Notable among which was that of K. D. Chase and Fred Durand; consisting of an ancient looking pung, to which was hitched a venerable old horse led by Philip's little mule. This rig caused no little comment but we don't know why it should,—it was the most appropriate one we observed—most in accordance with the eternal fitness of things. The cards these gentlemen used were less than six feet long by two wide, printed with the pointed end of a fence rail, dipped in tar and we have heard it said that the hat that the gallant Fred wore on that joyous occasion was in the height of fashion—"in our Grandfather's Days!" All they needed was the starspangled banner, a liberty pole and a fife and drum to make them a full-fledged militia company of ye revolutionary times. As the refreshments served consisted of solids principally the boys made "the grand rounds" in good shape returning with clear heads, but altogether too full for utterance, to be followed by no headaches, no regrets and no need to swear off on the 2d. The business houses were almost all closed and all gave themselves up to the enjoyments of the season.

Devils Lake has had a shooting scrape, by which Pat McQueeny, one of the slayers of the Ward brothers was killed by Billy Oswald in a saloon on New Years night. Oswald is a nephew of J. C. Oswald, of Minneapolis. McQueeny was recently married to Miss McGillicuddy, who was for some time a laundress in this city, going from here to Grand Forks where she became acquainted with him while he was waiting trial for the murder of the Ward brothers. W. W. Erwin of St. Paul has been employed to defend Oswald who will make a stubborn fight for life, but if there is any justice to be had in Dakota he should see the inside of a prison for the balance of his natural life. The murder was the result of a saloon row—McQueeny knocked Oswald down for using insulting words and Oswald rolled over on his left side and fired several shots as he lay upon the floor, killing McQueeny almost instantly.

CROOKSTON CITY MARKETS

CORRECTED WEEKLY

BY

EDWARD CAREY,

Buyer for Crookston Roller Mills.

The wheat market is dull and tending to lower prices, and they may be looked for. The Chicago elevators have in store 15,000,000 bushels, some of it having been held for three years past and the elevator charges on it now amount to 72 cents per bushel, and this is all held by the bulls. Should they conclude to unload it would cause a panic in the market that would not soon be overcome and would probably hold prices down during the entire season.

We can imagine that Artemas Ward would have said of Tank Kee: "He is an amoosin little cuss!" He is a gentleman of great culture and knows how to amuse as well as to instruct his audience. His lectures were very entertaining and highly enjoyed by all who listened to them.

Another chap, anxious for fame, is about to tackle our "Judge" on rollers next Saturday evening. It is said that he is a host "on wheels," that he has got away with everyone so far who has had the temerity to try conclusions with him, but he has need to be a good one if he downs Carruth. We are savin' up all our New Years pennies to enable us to get into the Favorite rink on Saturday evening to see the phun.

We point with pleasure to two interesting communications from two representative farmers of Polk County, this week and wish to commend the idea heartily to others. Many object to seeing their names in print and for that reason do not write at all but it is not necessary that the real name should appear in print; all we insist on is to know who the writer is and he can attach any name he chooses to his article. Very much good could be accomplished if farmers would occasionally present their views on various topics and we should be glad to give a reasonable amount of space for this purpose. To those whose articles appear this week we say—"thanks, come again!" And extend the invitation to others who may feel so inclined.

CROOKSTON, Jan. 5th, 1886.

ED. JOURNAL: In your market reports of last week I note the opinions of the buyers of Crookston to the effect that wheat is bound to keep down. Now what's the matter? Have the mill boys got the blues or what? Don't the wheat come in fast enough so you have got to put up a bluff on the farmers to induce a free delivery? I think that THE JOURNAL a few weeks since suggested a far better plan, when it advised the mills to "bid up a little!" "We can't pay more for wheat on the present price of flour than we are paying now," did you say? How is it then that I can haul my wheat to Fertile, a day's travel, pay good wages for my man and team, pay for grinding and get $1.02 per bushel out of my wheat, sold in flour? That is what one of my nearest neighbors did do or else the figures he shows are false. I am so well satisfied that he is right that I am going to try the experiment myself the next grist I take to the mill. But to confine myself to the question in point I am curious to know what new complications have arisen to change the opinions of those gentlemen, (for there is a radical change.) My Prairie Farmer, reported a decrease of a number of thousand bushels of wheat during the past week and places the amount of the "visible" at 55,000,000. Three weeks ago the wheat in sight was reported to be only 60,000,000, an amount which the Farmer said it would take this country about eight months to consume, without estimating anything for export or for seed. We know that there has not been any very great amount added to the increase from this country in some time and all of the reports I am able to get go to show a steady decline in the visible supply that the speculators make such a handle of. The only reasoning that would make your theory hold water is the presumption that there is yet back an amount equal to the wheat in sight and I think the experience of every farmer here shows that there is not. They know that our wheat does not hold out even the farmers' own estimates, which are far less in every case than the speculators'. It does not even hold out machine measure in a majority of cases, all of which shows conclusively that the amount of wheat yet in the hands of farmers is very much of an unknown quantity, with the probabilities showing that it is by no manner of means the large quantity that wheat buyers would have us, who have any left, to believe. Three weeks ago I was not as sanguine as I am now that wheat would go up. Then the visible supply was growing, many mills were idle and the markets presented a decidedly bearish appearance. To-day every wheel in Minneapolis is turning and we hear of no idle mills anywhere, the visible supply is decreasing encouragingly and I for one can see more reason why wheat should go up than why it should not. It is true that England is not buying as much at present as she requires but this is only for the reason that she thinks it will soon go lower, and this fact will only make the rise more rapid and firm when it does come as come it must at an early day. I can see no reason why our local buyers should, all of a sudden advise everybody to sell unless it be for the one with which I started out, i. e., to call in wheat to the mills more rapidly. I for one don't bite. I have a little wheat, am able to keep it and intend to keep it yet awhile longer, and my advice to my brother farmers is to do the same thing as I do. Take a good agricultural paper, (I take and read four) and some paper of general news, study up the markets for yourselves and thus you will be enabled to know as much about your own business as wheat-buyers do. I don't know how to write worth a cent but I can read and reflect equal to anybody and to me the signs of the times all point to better prices for our wheat.

Yours, etc. VIKING.

Strange But True.

A well that was being dug Dec. 30th on the farm of M. Nels Benson, in the town of Kertson, developed in a short space of time and at the depth of only 37 feet a very startling and extraordinary volcanic actions. The particulars of which we give as vouched for by Mr. Benson and several neighbors, who were in the city last Monday. Mr. Benson and neighbors who had been helping him dig the well had just quit work for the day and gone into the house for supper, when a terrific explosion sounding like the roar of artillery and a jar that shook the house, causing, consternation among the household, the men going outside to ascertain the cause, were overwhelmed with the sight that met their gaze, the well that they had so shortly before quit work on, was a Vesuvius of no small magnitude; throwing stones, dirt and water into the air, which they watched for several moments with mute astonishment, the force gradually subsiding as the well was fast filling with water until the great phenominal force had ceased, the well being full and running over, has continued to run ever since. Mr. Benson has been obliged to make a ditch to carry the water away, but says he would not take $1000 for his well, as he thinks it is of that much value to his fine farm.

Faith By Works.

With the compliments of the season, Capt. H. W. Donaldson, of Kittson, Co., sends THE JOURNAL a renewal of subscription, expressing his faith in THE JOURNAL in a few neatly chosen words. That is a combination of faith with works that is truly cheering to the printer. When that kind of religion becomes general the millenium is not far away.

Woodside Warbles.

All is quiet in Woodside now. News are scarce since the holidays. We saw the Chronicles in your last week's issue. Your correspondent has been confined to his bed for the past ten days, from the effects of his last dance; it was at Knoxville, Tenn., in 1863, at the Cannon Ball. We danced with them at the cannon ball, and drank their health when the grape-shot fell. There was quite an enjoyable social dance New Year's Eve at the residence of Mr. Chas. Foster, which was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all, for the reason that Mr. and Mrs. Foster knows how to make it pleasant for those who may have the pleasure of being their guests. We was a little mistaken in our statement last week of the number of logs now ready for the mill of Goodrich & Rome's, the number is 1600 instead of 1000. The above named firm have two large engines in their saw mill and will soon be sawing No. 1 hard lumber. Our roads are now in a fine condition to recieve a much needed snow to make sleighing good. We hear nothing more of a call for an election to vote bonds for a new railroad, but we hope it will be built all the same if we do not vote.

Notice to Farmers.

Notice is hereby given, that a meeting of farmers of Northwestern Minnesota is called at the city of Moorhead, on January 14th and 15th, at Erickson's Hall. The subjects for discussion will be: "Railroad and Warehouse Commission," "Past and Future Legislation," "Stock Raising" and "Dairy Interests." All farmers' societies and organizations and individual farmers interested in the above subjects are earnestly invited to attend.

Know Ye! Know Ye All! Men, women and children—that the great staff of editors, who headed by Dr. George Thurber, have kept the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST AT THE FRONT for twenty-five years, are now re-enforced by Chester P. Dewey and Seth Green, the Fish Culturist. We propose to add to the hundreds of thousands of homes in which the

is read, and revered from the Atlantic to the Pacific an old time friend and counselor. We are accordingly enlarging the

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 7

ROUND HOME.

Ed. Schroeder has returned from Rochester.

The Grand Forks Herald issued a handsome annual this year.

Barnesville has a new paper, the Chronicle. It is a neat little local paper.

Several of the railroad boys have a bit of a lay-off as a New Year's present.

Horrie Jennings entertained a number of his friends at progressive euchre on Monday evening.

Judge Kelso is enjoying city life awhile. He will return home soon accompanied by his son.

H. L. Melgaard spent the holidays in Fargo, and reports having had a splendid time.

Remember the play of "Felix Poutre" on Tuesday night, Jan. 12th to be given at the opera house.

Rev. John Haugen, of Fargo, will preach in the Norwegian Lutheran church at 7:30 p. m. on Sunday next.

The County Board met on Tuesday and are now in session, wrestling with great questions respecting the county weal.

The parties to the blackmailing suit except Chris. Greenhalgh, have been held to the U. S. court in the sum of $500.

Herb received an elegant gold sign from E. B. Newmarsh, of Minneapolis. It is a beauty and Herb naturally prizes it very highly.

The St. Hilaire Spectator reports that Charlie Rapp was married about the holidays. Here's Ho, Charlie, and a long and happy life.

Pete Nolan talks of going to Winona soon and may not come back on the line again. He is one of the genial good boys with whom we should dislike to part.

P. J. Lachapelle gave bonds to appear at the next term of court at Winona, but at last accounts Kunderl had failed to do so and was to be taken to St. Paul to sojourn until court time.

Ruedy & Meiser intend to put up a large quantity of ice this winter, and to facilitate matters, they have secured through Messrs. Bray & O'Brien an ice machine which will be put to work this week.

Herb Mason says that his holiday trade was the best he has had for years and thinks his big ad. in THE JOURNAL is to blame for some of it. A liberal advertiser will always receive a liberal trade.

The G. A. R. Post was the recipient of a handsome G. A. R. badge painted on a large board, presented by Wm. Kistenmacher as a New Year's gift. It is a beauty and highly cherished by the boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Anglin and children returned from a holiday visit to the parents at La Crosse yesterday. Mr. A. reports good sleighing below and prospects for the success of the St. Paul ice palace to be good.

Roadmaster Burnett gave Frank Zarracher a handsome watch seal as a New Year's gift. The seal represents the G. A. R. badge and the badge of the corps to which Capt. Zarracher belonged during the war.

On reference to Fontaine & Anglin's big ad. elsewhere in this issue, it will be seen that those gentlemen are having their annual clearing out sale. This affords an opportunity to secure great bargains that is unexcelled.

W. O. Kelso leaves soon for his old home at Bellevue, Iowa. The many friends he has made here while employed with the Merchants National Bank will regret to see him depart and will unite with us in the wish that he may return soon.

C. J. Kops, of this city, had a narrow escape at Devils Lake last week. [illegible] saloon [illegible] revolver and fired at Kops barely missing him, affording Kops an opportunity to see how it seems to be under fire.

Those of our city who watched the dying gasps of the old and the birth of the new year, welcomed it like unto the Declaration of Independence which was received by our forefathers, by the ringing of bells and the firing of guns and a general rejoicing, thus it is that another year is welcomed by our people. It is to be hoped that it may bring to all the happy expectations and the reality that is hoped to be realized in the bright future. The old year just passed has been one of unparalleled prosperity and that prosperity may continue to be showered upon us through the new year as bountifully as the one passed.

We have received of late many requests for sample copies, and some orders for THE JOURNAL to be sent regularly. [illegible]

The cornet band ball at the opera house on the 31st was a success in every particular, netting over $100 and lots of fun. The boys know how to get up a good time.

The new year thus far has been a very well behaved individual. No roaring and pitching blizzards to disturb the atmosphere. If we only had a little more snow the roads would be far better.

There will be an entertainment on the 15th, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, for the benefit of the free reading room. Conducted by the Womans' Christian Temperance Union. It is to be hoped that a good attendance will be had.

Miss Emma Hickens, of Leavenworth, Kansas, is in the city visiting the family of her brother-in-law, Thos. Youngs. Miss H. is a typo. of long experience, having been with the Leavenworth Times for over two years.

The stove pipe of I. U. Jenning's residence last Wednesday night, was noticed by passers by to be burning out, throwing sparks and flames upon the roof and those adjoining, but being noticed timely and being closely looked after, it was put out without any damage being done by the fire fiend.

Mr. Jacob Scott, one of the old settlers, was married on New Year's day to Miss Kitty McPherson, daughter of Wm. McPherson. Mr. Scott and his lovely bride will spend the honeymoon with friends in the southern part of the State, returning to the farm in time for the duties incident to farm life in the spring. THE JOURNAL wishes them a happy and prosperous New Year and lots of 'em.

In attempting to "ring out the old and ring in the new" year the "wringer" slipped a cog by ringing a regular fire alarm. This brought many of our staid citizens, who had sought repose, up a standin' and caused some expressions not down in the regulation almanac and for a minute, could they have gotten hold of him, the luckless wight would have had the riot act read to him in a manner more marked for its emphasis than beauty of diction or grammatical construction. It is all right to make a demonstration on such occasions but the council should strictly prohibit the ringing of a fire alarm except in cases of fire.

G. Marlatte, manager of the Farmers Elevator at Carman, informs THE JOURNAL that a large addition will be built on the north end of that elevator next spring and that they will be prepared to buy oats and barley as well as wheat. The present elevator will be raised three feet higher and a solid foundation put underneath, and the platform and awning continued along the new addition which will give room for three hoppers for receiving grain. Mr. Marlatte says that he has taken in a large quantity of wheat this fall and intends to have a greater quantity next. His facilities for handling will be unexcelled when the contemplated improvements are completed.

New Years Day was observed in right royal style in the city. Almost every male citizen was on the war path from early dawn to dewey eve—or thereabouts. Handsome rigs dashed gaily about hither and yon, while ever and anon you'd meet the awkward squad marching as straight and steadily as they could and singing "We won't go home till morning" (or thereabouts) and "The Girl I left behind me" and a string of songs that Palmer has the list of—though nobody accuses G. H. of lifting his melodious voice by way of song—(we'd sooner expect to hear him crow) however. Some made the rounds in elegant equipages. Notable among which was that of K. D. Chase and Fred Durand, consisting of an ancient looking pung, to which was hitched a venerable old horse led by Philip's little mule. This rig caused no little comment but we don't know why it should—it was the most appropriate one we observed—most in accordance with the eternal fitness of things. The cards these gentlemen used were no less than six feet long by two wide, printed with the pointed end of a fence rail, slipped in tar, and we have heard it said that the hat that the gallant Fred wore on that joyous occasion was in the height of fashion—in our Grandfather's Days. All they needed was the starspangled banner, a liberty pole and a fife and drum to make them a full-fledged militia company of revolutionary times. As the refreshments served consisted of cold [illegible] principally, the boys made the grand rounds in good shape returning with clear heads [illegible] followed by no headaches, no regrets and no need to swear off on the 2d. The business houses were almost all closed and all gave themselves up to the enjoyments of the season.

Devils Lake has had a shooting scrape by which P. V. McQueeny, one of the slayers of the Ward brothers was killed by Billy O'Wald in a saloon on New Years night. O'Wald is a nephew of [illegible] O'Wald of Minneapolis. McQueeny was recently married to Miss Mc[illegible] [illegible]

CROOKSTON CITY MARKETS

CORRECTED WEEKLY

BY

EDWARD CAREY,

Buyer for Crookston Roller Mills.

The wheat market is dull and tending to lower prices, and they may be looked for. The Chicago elevators have in store 16,000,000 bushels, some of it having been held for three years past and the elevator charges on it now amount to 72 cents per bushel, and this is all held by the "bulls." Should they conclude to unload it would cause a panic in the market that would not soon be overcome and would probably hold prices down during the entire season.

We can imagine that Artemas Ward would have said of Tank Kee: "He is an amoosin little cuss." He is a gentleman of great culture and knows how to amuse as well as to instruct his audience. His lectures were very entertaining and highly enjoyed by all who listened to them.

Another chap, anxious for fame, is about to tackle our "Judge" on rollers next Saturday evening. It is said that he is a host "on wheels," that he has got away with everyone so far who has had the temerity to try conclusions with him, but he has need to be a good one if he downs Carruth. We are savin' up all our New Years pennies to enable us to get into the Favorite rink on Saturday evening to see the phun.

We point with pleasure to two interesting communications from two representative farmers of Polk County, this week and wish to commend the idea heartily to others. Many object to seeing their names in print and for that reason do not write at all, but it is not necessary that the real name should appear in print, all we insist on is to know who the writer is, and he can attach any name he chooses to his article. Very much good could be accomplished if farmers would occasionally present their views on various topics and we should be glad to give a reasonable amount of space for this purpose. To those whose articles appear this week we say—thanks, come again! And extend the invitation to others who may feel so inclined.

CROOKSTON, Jan. 5th, 1886.

ED. JOURNAL:—In your market reports of last week I note the opinions of the buyers of Crookston to the effect that wheat is bound to keep down. Now what's the matter? Have the mill boys got the blues or what? Don't the wheat come in fast enough so you have got to put up a bluff on the farmers to induce a free delivery? I think that THE JOURNAL a few weeks since suggested a far better plan when it advised the mills to "bid up a little." "We can't pay more for wheat on the present price of flour than we are paying now," did you say? How is it then that I can haul my wheat to Fertile, a day's travel, pay good wages for my man and team, pay for grinding and get $1.02 per bushel out of my wheat sold in flour? That is what one of my nearest neighbors did do or else the figures he shows are false. I am so well satisfied that he is right that I am going to try the experiment myself the next grist I take to the mill. But to confine myself to the question in point I am curious to know what new complications have arisen to change the opinions of those gentlemen, (for there is a radical change.) My Prairie Farmer reported a decrease of a number of thousand bushels of wheat during the past week and places the amount of the visible at 57,000,000. Three weeks ago the wheat in sight was reported to be only 60,000,000 an amount which the Farmer said it would take this country about eight months to consume, without estimating anything for export or for seed. We know that there has not been any very great amount added to the increase from this country in some time and all of the reports I am able to get go to show a steady decline in the visible supply that the speculators make much ado [illegible]. The only reasoning that would make your theory hold water is the presumption that there is [illegible]

[illegible] ago it was the general opinion that wheat would go up. Then the visible supply was growing, many mills were idle and the market presented a decidedly bearish appearance. To-day every wheel in Minneapolis is turning and we hear of no idle mills anywhere; the visible supply is decreasing encouragingly and I, for one, can see more reason why wheat should go up than why it should not. It is true that England is not buying as much at present as she requires but this is only for the reason that she thinks it will soon go lower, and this fact will only make the rise more rapid and firm when it does come as come it must at an early day. I can see no reason why our local buyers should, all of a sudden advise everybody to sell unless it be for the one with which I started out, i. e., to call in wheat to the mills more rapidly. I for one don't bite. I have a little wheat, am able to keep it and intend to keep it yet awhile longer, and my advice to my brother farmers is to do the same thing as I do. Take a good agricultural paper. (I take and read four) and some paper of general news, study up the markets for yourselves and thus you will be enabled to know as much about your own business as wheat buyers do. I don't know how to write worth a cent but I can read and reflect equal to anybody and to me the signs of the times all point to better prices for our wheat.

Yours, etc. VIKING.

Strange but True.

A well that was being dug Dec. 30th on the farm of M. Nels Benson, in the town of Kertson, developed in a short space of time and at the depth of only 87 feet very startling and extraordinary volcanic actions. The particulars of which we give as vouched for by Mr. Benson and several neighbors, who were in the city last Monday. Mr. Benson and neighbors who had been helping him dig the well had just quit work for the day and gone into the house for supper, when a terrific explosion sounding like the roar of artillery and a jar that shook the house, causing consternation among the household, the men going outside to ascertain the cause, were overwhelmed with the sight that met their gaze, the well that they had so shortly before quit work on, was a Vesuvius of no small magnitude, throwing stones, dirt and water into the air, which they watched for several moments with mute astonishment, the force gradually subsiding as the well was fast filling with water until the great phenominal force had ceased, the well being full and running over, has continued to run over since. Mr. Benson has been obliged to make a ditch to carry the water away, but says he would not take $1000 for his well, as he thinks it is of that much value to his fine farm.

Faith By Works.

With the compliments of the season, Capt. H. W. Donaldson, of Kittson Co., sends THE JOURNAL a renewal of subscription, expressing his faith in THE JOURNAL in a few neatly chosen words. That is a combination of faith with works that is truly cheering to the printer. When that kind of religion becomes general the millenium is not far away.

Woodside Warbles.

All is quiet in Woodside now. News are scarce since the holidays. We saw the Chronicles in your last week's issue. Your correspondent has been confined to his bed for the past ten days from the effects of his last dance, it was at Knoxville, Tenn., in 1863, at the Cannon Ball. We danced with them at the cannon ball and drank their health when the grape-shot fell. There was quite an enjoyable social dance New Year's Eve at the residence of Mr. Chas. Foster, which was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all, for the reason that Mr. and Mrs. Foster knows how to make it pleasant for those who may have the pleasure of being their guests. We was a little mistaken in our statement last week of the number of logs now ready for the mill of Goodrich & Rome's, the number is 1600 instead of 1000. The above named firm have two large engines in their saw mill and will soon be sawing No. 1 hard lumber. Our roads are now in a fine condition to relieve a much needed snow to make sleighing good. We hear nothing more of a call for an election to vote bonds for a new railroad, but we hope it will be built all the same if we do not vote. [illegible]

Tank Kee.

[illegible] charges the American eagle with flying across the big drink and trying to induce the heathen Chinee to make his home in Heaven but denies him a home in the United States. Guess not. The government never invested a nick in tracts for converting heathen, whatever private individuals may have done.

Farm, stock and Home, commenting upon an order issued by Manager Highland, of the Millers' Association, to wheat buyers, says that it seems strange in this free country to see one man dictating terms like a king, such an order as no one, save a despot could issue and retain his power for a week. The order referred to was one commanding all wheat buyers to pay only 75 cents per bushel for No. 1 Hard and 71 for No. 1 Northern. The JOURNAL, in view of the peculiar methods of wheat buying, that have been in vogue, has before this wondered how such a system could be tolerated in a free land, among an intelligent class of people who know, or ought to know, their rights. When we have seen men absolutely forced to sell wheat at a price far below the cost of production, wheat that if sold on a free and open market, with competition, would have brought a compensating price, we have wondered if we were really living in a free country. Two years ago this fall just this very thing happened. In certain instances men, who had been offered 35 cents per bushel for their wheat, took it to a mill, paid for flouring it, and sold it as flour at a price that yielded them $1 per bushel for their wheat. But this state of things caused so great a stir that the House of Representatives to be elected that fall was elected in the interests of the farmer, and certain laws were passed calculated to improve matters. They did improve them but did not effect a radical cure, (as the kingly order in question shows) owing to the fact that the Senate, holding over, had not been elected on the issue, were more or less interested in the monopolists and managed to hamper all bills introduced and allowed to become laws so as to render them as inoperative as possible. Is it a free country where monopolies can acquire such power as to absolutely control the markets in their sole interests? It is not a free country unless the powers and privileges of all are equal under the law. Is such the case here to-day? Some men have come, invested their money in railroads, elevators and flouring mills and have made millions of dollars out of wheat and hauling of wheat. These men have made a very large percentage on their investments. Other men have come and invested their money in farms and everything needed to carry them on, have given large grants of lands to encourage building of roads, have paid large freight rates on everything the roads bring into the country for their use, and large rates for hauling their wheat and other produce out of it. While they have been doing this they have seen a monopoly arise that controls their markets to that extent that they had no free market and no profit in raising grain. These men have lost the money that has enriched the others. Had this been the natural result of the effect of the markets of the world upon the business, no one could complain; but the fortunes that were made in the wheat by all but the producer, disprove this. The one, while he was accumulating his vast gains has lived upon the fat of the land at great expense, the other, by dint of practicing the most rigid economy has barely managed to live and pay his debts. He has not laid up money. The principle that allows such a state of things is radically wrong and must be changed somehow if we intend to have the rights we are entitled to as freemen. A government that protects a man in only half of his rights is only half a government. A man who invests his money in the fertile soil of this Northwest has as much right to expect as great a percent return from his investment as the man who invests his money in mills, elevators and railroads, and the system that prevents his realizing it, and permits the others to realize double, is all wrong; and the government that allows such work is a dishwater government, framed, either by milksops, or by designing knaves, or by a combination of both. "But," says the monopolist, "you must not attempt to pass any laws to stop my injurious practices, as that would be unconstitutional! You would be interfering with my rights as a freeman! And that you cannot do under the constitution!" Why not? Are not all laws made by and with the consent of those governed, and if the practices of you monopolists defraud those who make the very laws under which you do your dirty work, cannot the same power that created the laws create others that will protect the makers? The farmers are largely in the majority in the land, and what is to hinder their rising in their just wrath and crushing out every monopoly in the land, if they will? Their very submission to this great evil in the past shows that they have no disposition to be tyranical, and those who have been stealing the profits of their toil for these years presume in a great degree upon this very fact. It would be well, however, for them not to presume too far, for if the farmers ever should become thoroughly aroused there would be an earthquake of no small proportions; there would be such a quaking of the dry bones as was never before witnessed in this country. And it would be but simple justice if the shoe should get on 'tother foot for once. It is only necessary for the farmers to organize, to act together as one man, to become a power in the land, to be both feared and respected. Little by little this is being accomplished. Granges and alliances are being formed; as soon as the whole lump is leavened then will the farmer arise to take his proper place in the land. The next Legislature should be elected upon this sole issue, and we should never loose our grip until the giant evil is crushed and such laws placed upon our statute books as shall prevent the possibilities of monopolistic growth.

Topping's Happy New Year.

Grand Forks Herald.

New Year's day bright and joyous, with merry greetings everywhere, was nowhere enjoyed with a more solid relish or happy incident than at the Richardson House. During the past year this popular hotel, under the ever courteous management of Col. W. H. Topping, has steadily gained in favor and it has come to be acknowledged as everything in attention to guests and excellence of cuisine, that one might reasonably desire. So well was his steady and constant boarders pleased with the fattening and influence at the Richardson that they determined to give Col. Topping and his lady a genuine surprise and keepsake that would last through the vicissitudes of life. In fact they were determined to convince them that it is good to be here and that Grand Forks appreciates a generous policy. Yesterday, therefore, when the dining hall was crowded, Col. Topping and his wife were requested to come in. They had but entered the door when the guests arose respectfully and C. C. Gowran, acting as officer of the day, with eloquent gesture, pointed to the walls on either side where hung pendent on each, a valuable and rare steel portrait, incasd in richly carved and elegant frame. "Behold these," said Carl. "On behalf of the boarders whom you have so well treated the past year, I bresent to you these beautiful engravings and with them the wishes of each and all that you may live long, prosper well ond die happy!" This effort was received with applause and after Col. Topping had recovered from his surprise which had overwhelemed him and almost taken away his collected thoughts, he replied that he was not a speech-maker, but that he deeply appreciated this mark of good will and would always remember the givers. The guests then discussed the choice bill of fare which was presented. A rare pleasure awaited them and the beautiful and artistically engraved menu placed before them was canvassed for a choice of delicacies. None missed the item of Polled Angus ox roast. It was a dainty dinner indeed. While waiting for the courses, a frame was passed around containing the names of the donors to the picture frames, which are as follows: F. R. Fulton and wife, E. A. Gowran and wife, C. C. Gowran, V. S. Wisner, O. F. Wisner, W. A. Gordon, C. R. Hunter, D. W. Luke and wife, W. L. Souder, J. E. Engstad, Chas U. March, J. H. Strong, J. H. Vosburg, Frank Quackenbush, J. M. Corbet, Wm. M. Rand, M. L. Rand and wife, Henry Day, J. Woods Whitman, Geo. A. Eastman, J. M. Metler, G. F. Shutt, J. P. Walker, Thos. J. Smith, John McKelvy, O. H. Sproat, L. B. Richardson and wife, L. B. Richardson Jr., and wife, Frank Ephraim, G. Dobell, B. Wells and wife, C. Cunningham, T. Byrness and C. H. Baldwin. The engravings themselves were the present of W. A. Gordon, of the Grand Fork's Natisnal Bank, who on Christmas also presented a companion pair to Wm. O'Mulchaey, cashier of the bank. They are rare pictures. One represents Lady Washington's reception Day in which there are 64 persons, with George and Lady Washington in the centre of the group It is after the original design by Huntingdon, and engraved by A. H. Ritchie. The work is published by Mr. Gordon's father and brother, S. T. Gordon & Son, New York, and is not for sale except through a single house in New York. This and its companion were specially ordered only for presentation purpose. Among the figures in this grand piece of art are many of the noted characters of the revolution. The other engraving represents Washington and his generals in a congratulatory meeting at the close of the revolution. There are 38 figures of which in the language of Headley: "Washington, standing amid his band of patriot generals, is to me the sublimest spectacle the history of the world furnishes." These gifts no one knows better how to cherish than Col. Topping, who is as patriotic, as he is courteous.

PLEDGE.

"Be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO?

What are we going to do, sweet friends,
In the year that is to come,
To baffle that fearful fiend of death
Whose messenger is rum?
Shall we fold our hands and bid him pass,
As he has passed before,
Leaving his deadly-poisoned draught
At every unbarred door?

What are we going to do, sweet friends,
Still wait for crime and pain,
Then bind the bruises, and heal the Wound,
And soothe the woe again?
Let the fiend still torture the weary wife,
Still poison the coming child,
Still break the suffering mother's heart,
Still drive the sister wild?

Still bring to the grave the gray-haired sire,
Still martyr the brave young soul,
Till the waters of death, like a burning stream
O'er the whole great Nation roll;
And poverty take the place of wealth,
And sin and crime and shame
Drag down to the very depths of hell
The highest and proudest name?

Is this our mission on earth, sweet friends,
In the years that are to come?
If not, let us rouse and do the work
Against this spirit of rum.
There is not a soul so poor and weak
In all the goodly land,
But against this evil a word may speak,
And lift a warning hand.

And lift a warning hand, sweet friends,
With a cry for home and hearth,
Adding voice to voice, till the sound shall sweep
Like rum's death-knell, o'er the earth,
And the weak and wavering shall hear,
And the faint shall grow brave and strong,
And the true and good, and great and wise
Join hands to right this wrong.

Temperance Notes.

A Roman Catholic bishop recently said: "It is not the English laws, the land laws, or the landlords' laws; it is the drink traffic that is the curse of Ireland."

The adults of the village of Ste. Marthe, Canada, with a population of 2,000, on a recent Sunday pledged themselves to abstain from intoxicating drinks for one year.

The Nebraska liquor law permits prohibition in the rural counties and high license in the cities. In Omaha fifty-seven of the worse saloons in the city were closed, and the revenue for licenses last year was $167,275, which paid the salaries of all the public school teachers and left over $50,000 for other school expenses.

At the South Third Street Church, of Brooklyn, on the evening of Dec. 6, the Rev. Dr. Wells conducted a unique service. A minister, a lawyer, and a physician addressed his congregation on "Temperance" and the "Excise Law." Dr. Chapps treated the use of alcoholic drinks from a medical point of view; Mr. Joseph H. Burr, the excise law, which he termed the most confusing law on the statute-book; Dr. Edward Terhune closed the meeting, urging the church against indulging in intoxicants.

WHAT BUSINESS MEN THINK.

W. J. Spicer, Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, in his circular to his employees of the road, says: "You have the lives of the public and the safety of persons and property entrusted to your care, requiring at all times the utmost caution and vigilance in the performance of your duty. Men subjected to such temptations at any time are safe only as total abstainers. The 'one glass more' often has the effect of making a man careless, sleepy and indifferent to danger, if not worse, at a time when he most needs to have his senses clear and wide-awake for his own and others' safety."

The Central Railroad of Georgia has a rule prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors while on duty, and any employee known to use them will be dismissed from their service.

Mr. Nelson, a distinguished insurance man, makes the following computations: "A total abstainer, 20 years old, has the chance of living till he is 64. A total abstainer at 30 has the chance of living till he is 64 1-2. A total abstainer at 40 has the chance of living till he is 68 3-4. A moderate drinker, 20 years old, has the chance of living until he is 35 1-2. A moderate drinker, 30 years old, has the chance of living till he is 44 3-4. A moderate drinker, 40 years old, has the chance of living till he is 51 3-4." Probably no business on the face of the earth is so mathematically correct as the insurance business. Its figures are not made up in the interest of any church or party. They are not the result of any temperance fanaticism, but simply from cold business calculation.

The American Express Company has decided to dismiss any and every employee using intoxicating liquors. This is a purely business arrangement. A great corporation serving the public as a conveyer of goods finds that its service is impaired by any toleration of drinking habits among its employees. When will the greater corporations, the city, the State, the Nation, learn the same truth?

Some of the more important railroad companies will not permit their employees, whether on or off duty, to drink intoxicating liquors.

The superintendent of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, which has issued an order to discharge all employees who drink, says whiskey has been found a foe of railroading. It has caused the loss of a great many lives and much money. Railroad managers have learned that a man who drinks is dangerous.

WHAT DOCTORS THINK.

Toledo physicians bear testimony to the fact that no man can drink beer safely, that it is an injury to any one who uses it in quantity and that its effect upon the general health of the country has been even worse than that of whisky.

Beer as an article of ordinary diet has been discontinued at least in 27 pauper lunatic asylums in England, with the result that in no instance has the apparently important change led to any sort of physical inconvenience. Many of the superintendents in whose asylums the modification was made, and also many of the patients, testify cordially to the benefits of the change. The question, says the Journal of Mental Science, is not one of teetotalism, or even primarily of a financial order, but one of pure expediency and good management.

The National Medical Association in 1884, in convention assembled, declared that acohol should be classed with other powerful drugs, and when prescribed medically, it should be done with conscientious caution and a sense of great responsibility, and that it would confine the use of intoxicating liquors to the use of science.

A New York physician says: "I have carefully examined each copy of the London Lancet for the last six months and fail to find the report of one case out of the many cases treated by the best English physicians, in which alcohol in any form was ordered or used. Is it not high time that the fraternity in this country become equally intelligent?"

MR. DEPEW ON TOBACCO.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, when in Albany the other day, met a friend, who offered him a cigar. Mr. Depew declined it, and said: "I was a confirmed smoker, smoking twenty cigars a day, up to about a dozen years ago, when I gave up the habit. I now do not use tobacco. Twelve or thirteen years ago I found myself suffering from indigestion, with wakeful fits at night, nervousness, and inability to submit to much mental strain. I was in the city of Albany one day, and bought a twenty-five cent Partaga. I was walking up Broadway, and at the corner of State Street I took the cigar out of my mouth, and looked at it. I had smoked about an inch of it. A thought struck me. I had been reading a German savant's book on the unhealthfulness of the use of tobacco. I looked at my cigar, and I said, 'You are responsible for this mischief.' I threw that Partaga into the gutter, and resolved not to smoke again. For six months I suffered the torments of the damned. I wanted to smoke, but I resolutely refused. My appetite meanwhile was growing better, my sleep was growing sounder, and I could do more work. I did not smoke up to two or three years ago. After I had worked for seventeen hours continuously one day, late at night I thought I would try a cigar as a soothing influence. I lit a cigar. It was delicious. I enjoyed the aroma of the smoke and the pleasure of the cigar more than I can say. The next day I smoked four cigars and the next two. I found the use of tobacco was affecting my physical system, and I stopped it entirely, and have not commenced it again, and probably never shall.

COMMUNICATED.

FAIRFAX, Jan. 4th 1886.

ED. JOURNAL,—In your issue of Dec. 31, I noted articles of opinions on wheat, which some of our local wheat buyers gave, which seems to me to be a little premature, for the farmers, who have kept their wheat, or a part for the coming higher price, hoped for at the beginning of the season. Now as every one of us farmers know, the market for our wheat has been of a tendency to make us feel that hard times is at hand, and that wheat-raising is not at the present time a profitable business, which is simply owing to the monopolies of our wheat markets by these gigantic wheat rings, by their cat-paws who are buying for these combined institutions, which are linked as one firm in keeping the prices of wheat at their own figures, as also the large dockages, which the farmers submit to, but not without remonstrances by us, who see that something must be done to make a fair market for our wheat, and not to be the dupes of these combined monopolies, by further playing the part of "suckers" by holding a bob-tail flush against four aces and full houses. But while these monopolies and their employee's have the gambler's instinct, not to let us farmers be until completely busted. And as we farmers know, as does the whole world, that we have a country that is not a mere cipher in world's wheat record, but that our valley stands prominently at the head, and is distinguished for its rich soil and adaptability for wheat raising, and yet our No. 1 hard wheat and good acreage fails to put us farmers on a firm and paying basis. It is well known at the begining of the season, when the market was being crowded by those of us, who were obliged to sell a part of our wheat to meet our obligations with, was given to understand by these selfsame "opinionists" that by holding on to our wheat, or a part of it, that in a few months, we would realize the price that every farmer had wished for, and that is, ONE-HUNDRED CENTS for every bushel of our No. 1 hard wheat; that now these wheat buyers should have the gall to put in print their "opinions on wheat," and thus contradicting themselves, one stating that he did not think that wheat would rise to a higher price than 67 or 68 cents, who admits that at the beginning of the season looked for higher prices and who gave the farmers his opinion then, that they might expect higher prices, and now that the farmers are taking that profered and timely advice by so doing; they come and change their "opinions" as the market begins to get dull, which is of a natural consequence, at the present price. Now that the wheat rings should inform the farmers that they had better market their wheat, after holding it thus far is too much, and is a ruse to get ownership and absolute control of the last year's crop, and it is plain that if these monopolists, should succeed in gaining absolute control and ownership, the farmers might and undoubtedly would see the dollar mark, and that they had played a losing hand on their last crop, by holding a bob-tail flush against these monopolies, who have all along and are still holding full houses. It is hoped that these opinions will only act as an impetus for every farmer to keep his grip on his wheat and hold until the desired mark is paid, which is sure to be, before the next crop is harvested. Now that we farmers have held wheat thus far, we shall, or at least the larger share of us hold on to our wheat regardless of the amount visible, which these monopolists represent, which is well known by every well-read farmer to be bogus, and that the visible supply in reality does not exceed one-half the number of bushels that they claim to be on hand, and that they in representing the market as being "glutted" and that there is no foreign demand is simply an ingenious strategem to lure the farmers into marketing their wheat and thus gain control of the whole crop of the Northwest. Now farmers and neighbors is it not time that we take measures to free ourselves from these giant monopolies; by forming some kind of an alliance among us to make a market of our own, as we all know the undertaking is a large and formidable one, but that we must do something to make a market for ourselves before the next crop is ready, is foreseen, and each bear in mind that in unity there is strength; that we farmers need not feel that our influence is belittled by my suggestions, that we must unite as one and make a market for our wheat.

FARMER.

Holstein-Friesian Registry.

Minnesota Journal.

The following synopsis of the rules governing Advance Registry adopted by the Holstein-Friesian Association. Bulls are to be entered on their merits as getters of superior progeny. At full age a bull must reach 1,800 lbs. when "in good flesh." A cow must reach 1,000 when at full age, in ordinary flesh. She must also make one of the following named records, within a period of one year from the date of calving.

If calving on the day she is two years of age, a record of not less than 9 lbs. of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 6,500 pounds of milk in 6 consecutive months, or not less than 334 lbs of milk in 6 consecutive days, previous to 10 months from and after the date of calving, in which last case she will have made another record of 118 lbs. in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. And for every day a cow exceeds two years of age, at date of calving in the "two year form," the requirement of the ten months record shall be increased 3.83 pounds, the requirement of the earlier ten days record .21 of a pound; and the requirement of the butter record .07 of an ounce.

If calving on the day she is 3 years of age, a record of not less than 11 lbs. of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 7,900 lbs. of milk in ten consecutive months, or not less than 432 lbs of milk in ten consecutive days, previous to 8 months from and after the date of calving, in which last case she shall have made another record of 143 lbs. in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. And for every day she exceeds 3 years of age at date of calving in the "three year form," the same increase per day as in the two-year form.

In calving on the day she is four years of age, a record of not less than 13 lbs of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 9,800 pounds of milk in ten consecutive months, or not less than 511 lbs. in ten consecutive days previous to 8 months from and after date of calving, in which last case she shall have made another record of not less than 170 lbs. in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. And for every day she exceeds four years of age from date of calving in the four year form, and the same increase per day as in the previous form.

If calving on the day she is five years of age, a record of not less than 15 lbs of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 10,700 lbs. of milk in ten consecutive months, or not less than 589 lbs. of milk in ten consecutive days previous to 8 months after date of calving, in which last case she shall have made another record of not less than 197 lbs. in ten consecutive days, after such period of 8 months. No increased age of date of calving in "full age form."

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST.

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultry-men, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1.50.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Lyman Anderson and Harriett E. Andersen, his wife, mortgagors, to The Board of Trustees of Oberlin College, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 2[illegible]th day of December A. D. 1882, at 6:30 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 66, 67 and 68, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and nineteen dollars and ninety-seven cents ($419.97.) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 15th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interest thereon and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, lawful attorney's fees in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-four (24.) Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

PLEDGE.

[illegible] I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

WHAT ARE WE GOING TO DO?

What are we going to do, sweet friends,
In the year that is to come,
To baffle that fearful hand of death
Whose messenger is rum?
Shall we fold our hands and bid him pass
As he has passed before,
Leaving his deadly, poisoned draught
At every unbarred door?

What are we going to do, sweet friends,
Still wait for crime and pain,
Then bind the bruises, and heal the wound,
And soothe the woe again?
Let the fiend still torture the weary wife,
Still poison the coming child,
Still break the suffering mother's heart,
Still drive the sister wild.

Still bring to the grave the gray haired sire,
Still martyr the brave young soul,
Till the waters of death, like a burning stream,
O'er the whole great Nation roll,
And poverty take the place of wealth,
And sin and crime and shame
Drag down to the very depths of hell
The highest and proudest name?

Is this our mission on earth, sweet friends,
In the years that are to come?
If not let us rouse and do the work
Against this spirit of rum.
There is not a soul so poor and weak,
In all the goodly land,
But against this evil a word may speak,
And lift a warning hand.

And lift a warning hand, sweet friends,
With a cry for home and hearth,
Adding voice to voice, till the sound shall sweep
Like rum's death-knell, o'er the earth.
And the weak and wavering shall hear,
And the faint shall grow brave and strong,
And the true and good and great and wise
Join hands to right this wrong.

Temperance Notes.

A Roman Catholic bishop recently said: "It is not the English laws, the land laws, or the landlords' laws, it is the drink traffic that is the curse of Ireland."

The adults of the village of St. Marthe, Canada, with a population of 2000, on a recent Sunday pledged themselves to abstain from intoxicating drinks for one year.

The Nebraska liquor law permits prohibition in the rural counties and high license in the cities. In Omaha fifty-seven of the worse saloons in the city were closed and the revenue for licenses last year was $167,275, which paid the salaries of all the public school teachers and left over $50,000 for other school expenses.

At the South Third Street Church of Brooklyn on the evening of Dec. 6, the Rev. Dr. Wells conducted a unique service. A minister, a lawyer, and a physician addressed his congregation on "Temperance and the Excise Law." Dr. Chapin treated the use of alcoholic drinks from a medical point of view. Mr. Joseph H. Bury, the excise law, which he termed the most [illegible] law on the statute-book. Dr. Edward Terhune closed the meeting, urging the church against indulging in intoxicants.

WHAT BUSINESS MEN THINK.

W. J. Spicer, Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, in his circular to the employees of the road, says: "You have the lives of the public and the safety of persons and property entrusted to your care, requiring at all times the utmost caution and vigilance in the performance of your duties. Men subject to the temptations that at any time are liable to [illegible]

The Central R. R. of Georgia has [illegible] prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors while on duty, and employees [illegible] will be dismissed from their service.

Mr. Nelson, [illegible] insurance man, makes the following computation: A total abstainer, 20 years old, has the chances of living till he is 64. A total [illegible]

[illegible] the State, the Nation, is continuously [illegible].

Some of the most important railroad companies will not permit their employees, whether on or off duty, to drink intoxicating liquor.

The superintendent of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, which has issued an order to discharge all employees who drink, says whiskey has been found the foe of railroading. It has caused the loss of a great many lives, and much money. Railroad managers have learned that a man who drinks is dangerous.

WHAT A DOCTOR THINKS.

A Toledo physician bears testimony to the fact that no man can drink beer safely, that it is an injury to any one who uses it in quantity, and that its effect upon the general health of the country has been even worse than that of whisky.

Beer as an article of ordinary diet has been discontinued at least in 27 pauper lunatic asylums in England, with the result that in no instance has the apparently important change led to any sort of physical inconvenience. Many of the superintendents in whose asylums the modification was made, and also many of the patients, testify cordially to the benefits of the change. The question, says the Journal of Mental Science, is not one of teetotalism, or even primarily of a financial order, but one of pure expediency and good management.

The National Medical Association in 1884, in convention assembled, declared that alcohol should be classed with other powerful drugs, and when prescribed medically, it should be done with conscientious caution and a sense of great responsibility, and that it would confine the use of intoxicating liquors to the use of science.

A New York physician says: "I have carefully examined each copy of the London Lancet for the last six months and fail to find the report of one case out of the many cases treated by the best English physicians, in which alcohol in any form was ordered or used. Is it not high time that the fraternity in this country become equally intelligent?"

MR. DEPEW ON TOCACCO.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, when in Albany the other day, met a friend who offered him a cigar. Mr. Depew declined it, and said: "I was a confirmed smoker, smoking twenty cigars a day, up to about a dozen years ago, when I gave up the habit. I now do not use tobacco. Twelve or thirteen years ago I found myself suffering from indigestion, with wakeful fits at night, nervousness and inability to submit to much mental strain. I was in the city of Albany one day, and bought a twenty-five cent Partaga. I was walking up Broadway, and at the corner of State Street I took the cigar out of my mouth and looked at it. I had smoked about an inch of it. A thought struck me. I had been reading a German savant's book on the unhealthiness of the use of tobacco. I looked at my cigar, and I said: 'You are responsible for this mischief.' I threw that Partaga into the gutter, and resolved not to smoke again. For six months I suffered the torments of the damned. I wanted to smoke, but I resolutely refused. My appetite meanwhile was growing better, my sleep was growing sounder, and I could do more work. I did not smoke up to two or three years ago. After I had worked for seventeen hours continuously one day, late at night I thought I would try a cigar as a soothing influence. I lit the cigar. It was delicious. I enjoyed the aroma of the smoke and the pleasure of the cigar more than I can say. The next day I smoked four cigars, and the next day I found the use of tobacco was affecting my physical system, and I stopped it once, and have not commenced it again, and probably never shall."

COMMUNICATED.

FISHER, Jan 4th, 1886.

ED. JOURNAL:—In your issue of Dec. 31 [illegible] opinion on wheat, [illegible] one of our local wheat buyers gave, which seems to me to be a little premature for the farmers who have kept their wheat or a part for the coming higher price hoped for at the beginning of the season. Now as every one of us farmers know the more for our wheat [illegible]

[illegible] suggestion. It is well known that the raising of these, on whom the market [illegible] ONE HUNDRED CENTS for every bushel of our No. 1 hard wheat, that now these wheat buyers should have the gall to put in print their opinions on wheat, and that too, contradicting themselves, one stating that he did not think that wheat would rise to a higher price than 67 or 68 cents, who admitted that at the beginning of the season looked for higher prices, and who gave the farmer his opinion then that they might expect higher prices, and now that the farmers are taking that [illegible] and timely advice by so doing they come and change their opinions as the market begins to get dull, which is of a natural consequence, at the present prices. Now that the wheat rings should inform the farmers that they find better market for their wheat after holding it thus far, is too much, and is a ruse to get ownership and absolute control of the last year's crop, and it is plain that if these monopolists should succeed in gaining absolute control and ownership, the farmers might, and undoubtedly would see the dollar mark, and that they had played a losing hand on their last crop by holding a bob-tail flush against these monopolies, who have all along and are still holding full houses. It is hoped that these opinions will only act as an impetus for every farmer to keep his grip on his wheat, and hold until the desired mark is paid, which is sure to be, before the next crop is harvested. Now that we farmers have held wheat thus far, we shall, or at least the large share of us hold on to our wheat regardless of the amount visible which these monopolists represent, which is well known by every well-read farmer to be bogus, and that the visible supply in reality does not exceed one-half the number of bushels that they claim to be on hand, and that they in representing the market as being glutted, and that there is no foreign demand, is simply an ingenious strategem to lure the farmers into marketing their wheat, and thus gain control of the whole crop of the Northwest. Now, farmers and neighbors is it not time that we take measures to free ourselves from these giant monopolies by forming some kind of an alliance among us to make a market of our own. As we all know the undertaking is a large and formidable one, but that we must do something to make a market for ourselves before the next crop is ready, is foreseen, and each bear in mind that in unity there is strength, that we farmers need not feel that our influence is belittled by my suggestions, that we must unite as one and make a market for our wheat.

Holstein-Friesian Registry.

Minnesota Journal.

The following synopsis of the rules governing Advance Registry adopted by the Holstein-Friesian Association. Bulls are to be entered on their merits as getters of superior progeny. At full age a bull must reach 1,600 lbs. when in good flesh. A cow must reach 1,000 when at full age, in ordinary flesh. She must also make one of the following named records within a period of one year from the date of calving.

If calving on the day she is two years of age, a record of not less than 9 lbs. of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 6,500 pounds of milk in 10 consecutive months, or not less than [illegible] lbs. of milk in 10 consecutive days previous to 10 months from and after the date of calving, in which case she will have made another record of [illegible] lbs. in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. And for every day a cow exceeds two years of age at date of calving in the two year form, the requirement of the ten months record shall be increased 8.88 pounds, the requirement of the earlier ten day record 21.07 pounds, and the requirement of the butter record .07 of a ounce.

If calving on the day she is 3 years of age, a record of not less than 11 lbs. of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than 7,900 lbs. of milk in ten consecutive months, or not less than [illegible] lbs. of milk in ten consecutive days previous to 2 months from and after the date of calving in which last case she will have made another record of 148 lbs. in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. And for every day she exceeds 3 years of age at date of calving in the three year form, the same [illegible]

If calving on the day she is [illegible] years of age, a record of not less than [illegible] lbs. of butter in seven consecutive days, or not less than [illegible] pounds of milk in ten consecutive months, or [illegible]

[illegible] in ten consecutive days after such period of 8 months. No increase [illegible] of date of calving in full age form.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST.

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock breeders, fruit growers, poultry men, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support, yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1.50.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Lyman Anderson and Harriet E. Anderson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Board of Trustees of Oberlin College, mortgagee, dated the 16th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the [illegible] day of December, A. D. 1882, at 8:30 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 66, 67 and 68, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and nineteen dollars and ninety-seven cents ($419.97), and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 15th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interest thereon and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, lawful attorney's fees in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-four (24), Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE PEOPLE.

Farmers Advocate.

The Supreme court of the United States has again, in a most solemn and conclusive manner, affirmed the right of the Legislatures of the several States to regulate the charges of railways for the transportation of passengers and products, either by direct enactment, or by delegating power to Commissioners The case came before the Supreme court at Washington, on an appeal from the U. S. Circuit court in the District of Mississippi. It was brought by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York to enjoin the railroad commission of Mississippi from forcing against the Mobile & Ohio the provisions of the statutes of Mississippi, passed in 1884, to provide for the regulation of freight and passenger rates on railroads in the State, and for other purposes. The statute declares that railroads in State are public highways over which all persons have equal rights, and makes any discrimination in rates a penal offense. It further provides for the appointment of a board of commissioners, and confers upon it the power of revising the tariff of charges and of exercising a certain degree of supervision over the roads. The companies are required to make certain reports periodically to the commission. The officers of the road are made liable to fine for violation or non-compliance with the provisions of the act, which fine may be collected through the courts. This and certain other acts relating to the chartering and control of the railroads of the State are cited at length in the opinion. The circuit court rendered a decree allowing the injunction, and from the decree the commissioners appealed.

The argument in support of the decree was that the statute, under which the commissioners are to act, impairs the obligation and charter contract of the company; that it is a regulation of commerce among the States; that it denies the company the equal protection of the laws, and deprives it of property without the process of law; that it confers both legislative and judicial powers upon the commission, and is thus repugnant to the constitution of Mississippi, and that it is void on its face by reason of its inconsistencies and uncertainties.

The opinion of the Supreme court was delivered by Chief Justice Wait. Justices Field and Harlan dissented from certain matters recited in the opinion, but concurred in the decision, as a whole. Justice Blatchford took no part in the decision. Two other cases, involving similar laws in Illinois and Louisiana, were decided at the same time, and in the same way. The decision is strong and sweeping, in favor of the commissioners and against the railroads. The Supreme court holds that the charter of the company contains no contract the obligation of which the commissioners are liable to impair. It also finds that the commission is in express terms prohibited by the act of the State Legislature from interfering with the charges of the company for the transportation of persons or property through Mississippi from one State to another. The commissioners as yet have undertaken nothing in conflict with the constitution of the United States. The great purpose, it says, of the statute in question is to fix a maximum of charges, and to regulate in some matters of a police nature, the use of railroads in the State. In its general scope it is constitutional, and it applies equally to all persons or corporations owning or operating railroads in the State. The Supreme court of the State of the State of Mississippi has already declared that the statute is not repugnant to the State constitution, and in this opinion the Supreme court of the United States concurs. It is difficult to understand, the opinion says in conclusion, precisely on what ground we are expected to decide that this statute is so inconsistent and uncertain as to render it absolutely void on its face. The argument on this branch of the controversy contains much that might have been useful if addressed to the legislature while considering the bill before the final enactment, but we find nothing in it to show that the statute as it now stands is void and inoperative. When the commission has acted, and proceedings are had to enforce what they have done, questions may arise as to the validity of some of the various provisions which will be worthy of consideration, but we are unable to say that as a whole the statute is invalid. The decree of the Circuit court is reversed and the cause remanded with instructions to dismiss the bill.

Thus another herculean blow has been struck at the delusive and despotic theory of "vested rights." Thus another link has been welded in the chain which binds the eternal principles of justice and right, to the constitution of our motion.

HOLD ON TO WHEAT.

Farm, Field and Stockman.

Some weeks ago we took the occasion to warn farmers under a fair certainty that all the wheat in the country would be wanted, at fair prices, before the new crop would be moved. It now begins to look as though wheat would be the best agricultural crop to hold for an advance, at the opening of navigation.

We also had occasion a short time since to score the Minneapolis millers for their course in cornering the wheat market. It was an aggression that bodies little good to the producers, in the future, if those who have gotten rich in buying wheat low and selling flour high, may fling their vast earnings into a pool to force prices at their dictation. They sold short, covered later at a handsome profit; again they sold short to a smaller extent on the upturn of the market; again bought in, and the statement is now made that they intend to hold, for this season. Not to exceed twenty-five per cent. of the wheat of northwest remains in the hands of the farmers.

Estimates rate 80,000,000 bushels in store country warehouses, to be held until the opening of navigation. This, with what is held in Minneapolis and Duluth would place the visible supply at about 85,000,000 bushels to be carried with the aid of capital. This being the maximum quality, it must continually decrease from month to month, unless the farmer can be induced to shell out at the price offered by these capitalists.

There seems little doubt but the crop of wheat will be all wanted in this country before the next crop is in the market. We believe that those farmers who have sound wheat, if they can hold until May, will make money by so doing. Why not, as well as speculators, who combine to knock down prices, and, the bulk of a crop once out of the hands of the farmers, turn round and boom prices? It is a game that the fore-handed farmer, at least, can take a hand in.

Beware of Boston Pirates.

The Literary Revolution has brought some remarkable episodes in the book field; none more interesting has occured than that which brings out the following pungent "manifesto" from Alden.

"A famous Boston firm published some years ago a fine edition of Guizot's History of France. It was truly a beautiful work (price $31.50 for the set,) with lots of fine pictures, big type and showy binding, but strange to say the history omitted any mention of the French Revolution, or the wars of Napoleon Bonaparte! No explanation of the omission has been seen from the publishers, but it has been suggested that it may have been to make room for certain steel engravings, though on a careful examination of said engravings some have been led to wonder how a publisher could have been induced to steal engravings to insert in a work that the artist did not design them to illustrate.

"However, there being a popular demand for an edition of Guizot's France, in which Napoleon and the French Revolution had a place, Alden, the 'Pirate of the Literary Revolution,' published such an edition COMPLETE in 8 volumes, small octavo, library style, gilt tops, etc., containing the 427 fine illustrations of the English edition,—in fact in all important points for general readers it is far superior to the English edition. For Alden was a high priced work, retailing at $3.40.

THE PIRATES COME IN.

"Increditable as it may seem, considering the high character of Boston, there has lately been issued, from that town, another edition of Guizot. It does not bear the imprint of said Famous Boston firm, and therefore must be a piratical edition. The prominent name in the imprint is 'Aldine'—apparently a further piratical attempt to deceive the innocent into thinking they are getting the genuine Alden edition. This edition, too, is cut on the same 'bias' as Alden's pattern of [illegible] and all, though printed on smaller paper, giving narrower margins. It contains also some mention of the great Napoleon, but the publisher (whoever he is) failed to 'steal' all the engravings of Alden's edition—he got only 192 out of the 427 of Alden's; and those he did get evidently were taken in the dark—'look on this picture and then on that,' and you will see it must have been so. As to price—'you pay your money and take your choice'—it is quoted in Boston at $12.00, retail; in Ohio we hear of it at $8.00; in South Carolina at $6.00—California not heard from. Any purchaser who has paid over $4.00 should ask at once a 'rebate'—and then shun all bait from Boston Pirates!

"Of course Alden was lonesome when he was the 'only Pirate.' He likes company, and especially Boston. As it is evident somebody wants a cheap Guizot he puts to press at once a new and cheaper edition. It will be cut on the same smaller 'bias' as the little Boston edition, but printed on the better paper, and will contain all of the 427 fine illustrations, instead of only 192 as in the little Boston edition. It will include also the Elaborate Index, complete, given in Alden's large edition. That little Boston edition has no index —if you want to find in that where it tells about Charlemagne, you look for the picture of Charlie, if you want to know about Joan of Arc you look for the picture of the Ark.

A CONTINENTAL WAR.

"Bad examples is catching, as every school boy knows. Get France into a fright and Russia, England and no telling what next will follow. There is Rambaud's History of Russia—a splendid work,—crowned by the French Academy. Boston edition, 3 big volumes, price $6.00 ('cheap edition this—the 'good' edition is $16.50.) Alden has already in press a beautiful edition, finely illustrated (Boston cheap edition has only a few pictures—more 'steels,') uniform with the new edition of Guizot. There is a Boston edition of Guizot's History of England—lots of fine pictures—price $22.00. Alden leads that far away—Green's great History, in five volumes, (Guizot was a Frenchman—good French History—no good English; new edition, just ready, profusely illustrated—'steals' from Guizot—very good pictures—no good history. Thus the continental war opens. France leads, Russia follows, England joins the fray. What next? Book-Lovers rejoice and grow rich from the spoils of the war. Only let them beware of Boston Pirates! The name on the 'genuine' is spelled A-L-D-E-N, not Aldine, that was the old Dutch way before the people learned to spell in good English. ALDEN'S address is 893 Pearl Street, New York, not Boston, drop him a postal card, if you want a share in the 'spoils,' and you will get by return mail particulars that will astonish you—as well as the Boston Pirates. Alden's illustrated catalogue, 148 pages, may be had for 4 cents; 16 page catalogue free. A club agent wanted in every neighborhood."

Alden's Library Magazine.

Gladstone writes, in th January issue, of "The Dawn of Creation and Worship," Sir John Lubbock on "Some Habits of Ants, Bees and Wasps," Jule Simon of "The General Election in France," A Greek Statesman on a "Greek View of the Present Crisis," and S. G. W. Benjamin on "The Eastern Question as Viewed in Persia." Besides these leading articles by writers of note there are other articles hardly less interesting or less important, on "The Wesleys at Epworth," "Free Cities of the Middle Ages," "Macauley and Sir Elijah Impey," "With The Hungarian Gypsies," and others. Indeed the large amount of literature of the very highest interest and importance, which finds place in the Library Magazine, printed as it is in large handsome type at the nominal cost of 15 cents a copy, or $1.50 a year, is certainly without precedent. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

The First Lady Gets It.

The publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send it one year free, to the first lady who applies from any postoffice in the United States where there is now no subscriber. Any lady can ascertain whether there are any subscribers to The Housekeeper by asking the postmaster, and if there are none write to the publishers, claiming the prize, sending the addresses of two or three ladies who are good housekeepers. The subscription price of The Housekeeper is $1.00 per year, and it is cheap at that price. Specimen copies FREE.

Northern Grown Garden Seeds.

The Publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., give $1.00 of garden and flower seeds of the subscriber's own selection to every one who subscribes for one year before February 15th, 1886. Send to address given above for copy of the January number, which gives full particulars. Northern grown seeds produce earlier and more vigorous plants, and once tried no others will be used.

Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excellent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just began a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice recipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady who would like to see the number containing the first of these series will recieve one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

How Six Girls Made Money.

Marion Edmonds Roe, who wrote the popular articles under the above title, which appeared in The Housekeeper of 1884, begins a new series in the January number, under title of "How a Happy Home was Made and Kept." The Housekeeper has come rapidly to the front, and is now approaching 100,000 circulation. It is deservedly popular, its columns being filled with sound common sense and practical wisdom. Send for January number, which is mailed free to any address by Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

FARM NOTES.

SUGAR CANE IN MINNESOTA.

Hoe. Seth H. Kenney, of Rich County, writes to Colman's Rural World as follows in regard to his experience with northern amber cane in Minnesota this year: "I am glad to be able to inform you that my success in making sugar from the amber cane in Minnesota has been in the highest degree satisfactory. I am sure that fully 50 per cent. of the entire crop for myself and 24 customers will be dry sugar. Many barrels granulated nearly to the top. I fully neutralized with lime and used sulphurous acid in the juice, both before defecating and after, enough to extract the surplus lime used to secure a complete defecation. The retort to make the acid was one obtained from Daniel Root, of Hudson, Michigan. We used the Porter evaporator. I learn that Mr. Porter was also very successful in making a large quantity of sugar. I am of the opinion that the sugar seasons of Minnesota will be more numerous in the future.

DAIRY REGIONS.

Hon. Norman J. Coleman to the district grange of Northern Virginia, as reported in Farm and Fireside, said: "You can go to the great State of New York, or to the New England states—yes, or to Iowa, Wisconsin and other states, and as you travel through the country, you can tell when you come to the dairy region. There you see the finest residences, the most comfortable and best equipped stables and buildings the best fences, the best surroundings, and if you can get into the banks you will find the largest bank accounts credited to the dairymen. Their farms are worth from $100 to $200 per acre, notwithstanding the long winters when they are compelled, on account of the severity of the weather, with the thermometer sometimes down to 30 or 40 degrees below zero, to feed so many months of the year. All dairy products at this season of the year always command the highest prices. You here, and we in in Missouri, and others in Illinois, can be carrying on this industry in an advantageous way. Then put your lands in grass and prepare for this era; take advantage of the temperate climate you live in; get the best breeds of animals to stock your farms with, because you must do that to succeed well.

FRAUDULENT BUTTER.

If farmers wish to know how fraudulent butter is creeping upon them, they should read this statement from Boston. The receipts of oleomargarine from the month of November foot up 14,847 packages, against 7,827 packages for the same month in 1884. On the other hand, the receipts of butter have decreased some 4,000 tubs during the same month. Don't you think something had better be done to save the honest butter interest, or do you agree to surrender to a contemptible fraud?—[American Dairyman.

Some weeks ago we took the occasion to warn farmers under a fair certainty that all the wheat in the country would be wanted at fair prices before the new crop would be moved. It now begins to look as though wheat would be the best agricultural crop to hold for an advance at the opening of navigation.

We also had occasion a short time since to score the Minneapolis millers for their course in cornering the wheat market. It was an aggression that bodes little good to the producers in the future, if those who have gotten rich in buying wheat low and selling flour high, may fling their vast earnings into a pool to force prices at their dictation. They sold short, covered later at a handsome profit, again they sold short to a smaller extent on the upturn of the market, again bought in, and the statement is now made that they intend to hold for this season. Not to exceed twenty-five per cent. of the wheat of northwest remains in the hands of the farmers.

Estimates rate 80,000,000 bushels in store country warehouses, to be held until the opening of navigation. This with what is held in Minneapolis and Duluth would place the visible supply at about 85,000,000 bushels to be carried with the aid of capital. This being the maximum quality, it must continually decrease from month to month unless the farmer can be induced to sell out at the price offered by these capitalists. There seems little doubt but the crop of wheat will be all wanted in the country before the next crop is in the market. We believe that those farmers who have sound wheat, if they can hold until May, will make money by so doing. Why not, as well as speculators who combine to knock down prices, and the bulk of a crop once out of the hands of the farmers, turn round and boom prices? It is a game that the forehanded farmer, at least, can take a hand in.

Beware of Boston Pirates.

The Literary Revolution has brought some remarkable episodes, but [illegible] has occurred than that which brings out the following pungent [illegible] from Alden:

A famous Boston firm published some years ago a fine edition of Guizot's History of France. It was truly a beautiful work (price [illegible] for the set) with lots of margin, large type, and showy binding, but [illegible] the history omitted any account of the French Revolution or the Age of Napoleon Bonaparte. No explanation of the omission has been made from the publishers, but it has been suggested that it may have been done to make room for certain illustrations, though on a careful examination of said engravings some have been led to wonder how a publisher could have been induced to steal engravings to use in a work that the artist did not design them to illustrate.

However, the [illegible] popular demand for an edition of Guizot's France in which Napoleon and the French Revolution had a place, led to the [illegible] of the Literary Revolution [illegible]

[illegible] and all, though printed on smaller paper, giving narrower margins. It contains also some mention of the great Napoleon, but the publishers (whoever he is) failed to steal all the engravings of Alden's edition—he got only 102 out of the 427 of Alden's, and those he did get evidently were taken in the dark—look on this picture and then on that, and you will see it must have been so. As to price—you pay your money and take your choice—it is quoted in Boston at $12.00, retail, in Ohio we hear of it at $8.00, in South Carolina at $6.00—California not heard from. Any purchaser who has paid over $4.00 should ask at once a rebate—and then shun all bait from Boston Pirates!

Of course Alden was lonesome when he was the only "Pirate." He likes company, and especially Boston. As it is evident somebody wants a cheap Guizot he puts to press at once a new and cheaper edition. It will be cut on the same smaller bias as the little Boston edition, but printed on the better paper, and will contain all of the 427 fine illustrations instead of only 102 as in the little Boston edition. It will include also the Elaborate Index, complete, given in Alden's large edition. That little Boston edition has no index—if you want to find in that where it tells about Charlemagne, you look for the picture of Charlie, if you want to know about Joan of Arc you look for the picture of the Ark.

A CONTINENTAL WAR.

Bad example is catching, as every school boy knows. Get France into a fright and Russia, England and no telling what next will follow. There is Rambaud's History of Russia—a splendid work—crowned by the French Academy. Boston edition 3 big volumes, price $6.00 (cheap edition this—the good edition is $10.50). Alden has already in press a beautiful edition finely illustrated (Boston cheap edition has only a few pictures—more steals), uniform with the new edition of Guizot. There is a Boston edition of Guizot's History of England—lots of fine pictures—price [illegible]. Alden leads that far away—Green's great History, in five volumes. (Guizot was a Frenchman—good French History—no good English [illegible]) new edition just ready, profusely illustrated—steals from Guizot—very good pictures—no good history. Thus the continental war opens—France leads, Russia follows, England joins the fray. [illegible] next? Book Lovers, rejoice and grow rich from the spoils of the war. Only let them beware of Boston Pirates. The name on the genuine is spelled A-L-D-E-N, not Alline, that was the old Dutch way before the people learned to spell in good English. ALDEN'S address is 393 Pearl Street, New York, not Boston; drop him a postal card, if you want a share in the spoils, and you will get by return mail particulars that will astonish you—as well as the Boston Pirates. Alden's illustrated catalogue, [illegible] pages, may be had for 4 cents, [illegible] page catalogue free. A club agent wanted in every neighborhood.

Alden's Library Magazine.

Gladstone writes in the January issue of "The Dawn of Creation and Worship," Sir John Lubbock on "Some Habits of Ants, Bees and Wasps," Jules Simon on "The General Election in France," "A Greek Statesman on a Greek View of the Present Crisis," and S. G. W. Benjamin on "The Eastern Question as Viewed in Persia." Besides these leading articles by writers of note, there are other articles hardly less interesting or less important, on "The Wesley at Epworth," "Free Cities of the Middle Ages," "Macaulay and Sir Elijah Impey," "With The Hungarian Gypsies," and others. Indeed, the large amount of literature of the very highest interest and importance, which finds place in the Library Magazine, printed as it is in large handsome type at the nominal cost of 15 cents a copy, or 1.50 a year, is certainly without precedent. Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excellent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just began a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice recipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady who would like to see the number containing the first of these series will recieve one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

How Six Girls Made Money.

Marion Edmonds Roe, who wrote the popular articles under the above title which appeared in The Housekeeper of 1884, begins a new series in the January number, under title of "How a Happy Home was Made and Kept." The Housekeeper has come rapidly to the front, and is now approaching 100,000 circulation. It is deservedly popular, its columns being filled with sound common sense and practical wisdom. Send for January number, which is mailed free to any address by Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

FARM NOTES.

SUGAR CANE IN MINNESOTA.

Hon. Seth H. Kenney, of Rich County, writes to Colman's Rural World as follows in regard to his experience with northern amber cane in Minnesota this year: "I am glad to be able to inform you that my success in making sugar from the amber cane in Minnesota has been in the highest degree satisfactory. I am sure that fully 50 per cent. of the entire crop for myself and 21 customers will be dry sugar. Many barrels granulated nearly to the top. I fully neutralized with lime and used sulphurous acid in the juice, both before defecating and after, enough to extract the surplus lime used to secure a complete defecation. The retort to make the acid was one obtained from Daniel Rool, of Hudson, Michigan. We used the Porter evaporator. I learn that Mr. Porter was also very successful in making a large quantity of sugar. I am of the opinion that the sugar seasons of Minnesota will be more numerous in the future."

DAIRY REGIONS.

Hon. Norman J. Colman to the district grange of Northern Virginia, as reported in Farm and Fireside, said: "You can go to the great State of New York or to the New England states—yes, or to Iowa, Wisconsin and other states, and as you travel through the country, you can tell when you come to the dairy region. There you see the finest residences, the most comfortable and best equipped stables and buildings, the best fences, the best surroundings, and if you can get into the banks, you will find the largest bank accounts credited to the dairymen. Their farms are worth from $100 to $200 per acre, notwithstanding the long winters, when they are compelled, on account of the severity of the weather, with the thermometer sometimes down to 30 or 40 degrees below zero, to feed so many months of the year. All dairy products at this season of the year always command the highest prices. You here and we in Missouri and others in Illinois, can be carrying on this industry in an advantageous way. Then put your lands in grass and prepare for this era, take advantage of the temperate climate you live in, get the best breeds of animals to stock your farms with, because you must do that to succeed well."

FRAUDULENT BUTTER.

If farmers wish to know how fraudulent butter is creeping upon them, they should read this statement from Boston. The receipts of oleomargarine from the month of November foot up 14,847 packages against 7,827 packages for the same month in 1884. On the other hand the receipts of butter have decreased some 4,000 tubs during the same month. Don't you think something had better be done to save the honest butter interest, or do you agree to surrender to a contemptible fraud?—[American Dairyman.

The Only Cash Bargain House in the West.

WE ARE NOT SELLING OUT AT COST, NOR have we any old shop-worn or hand-me down top shelve goods, but always to the front with Bargains at cut prices that compel our competitors to hang out their yearly sign, the familiar words "Selling Out at Cost!" to meet our sledge hammer prices. Why do we own our goods cheaper? Because we buy in large quantities, buy for the Great Commander, Cash, and we have experienced buyers; because we sell for cash and have no bad debts; because we turn our goods often and are satisfied with the small profit system. CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 14.

'ROUND HOME.

Miss Lola Jenks is visiting friends in the city.

Fontaine & Anglims' great closing out sale now in operation.

Robert Houston has rented Steege's building and will put in a stock of groceries.

The leading merchants have entered into an agreement to close the stores at eight p. m.

The engine pump at the brewery having played out a steam injector has been substituted.

Fred Puhler was up interviewing the "tall elm of the Wabash," this week. What's in the wind now?

Henry Steege has gone out of the meat business. He does not say what he intends doing for the future.

R. B. Reilay has gone away to remain, it is said. He has some notion of making Duluth his future home.

Speaker Gibbs is stripping for the Gubernatorial race. He has resigned the speakership doubtless for that purpose.

Rev. A. C. Anderson will preach in the Norwegian Lutheran church on Sunday next, Jan. 17th, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

A very attractive program will be presented on Saturday evening. If you enjoy a good minstrel show don't miss Cal Wagner.

The masons enjoyed a social at their new hall on Saturday evening. These events will doubtless occur at intervals during the winter.

Prof. Hauser and Mrs. Jenne furnished the musical entertainment for Felix Poutre and it goes without saying that it was excellent.

Remember the Grand Closing out Sale at Fontaine & Anglims' only lasts this month and this is the 14th day thereof in the morning.

Wm. Ross and W. E. Zwicker represent Crookston Lodge No. 141, A. F. and A. M. in the masonic convention at St. Paul this week.

Four large loads of bran and shorts went from the mills on Monday to supply the needs of some stockman in the east part of the county.

Fergus Falls has a notion of bringing the Manitoba machine shops to that city. The railroad authorities may have something to say about it.

Postmaster McKinnon and Jimmie O'Brien attended Felix Poutre and we saw the tears roll down their cheeks attesting their great enjoyment of the jokes.

Gardner Stevens returned from St. Paul on Wednesday's train, having placed Kundert in safe keeping until court time. He reports big preparations being made for the ice palace business.

Nels O. Paulsrud, of Neillville, came all the way from the west side to attend Felix Poutre, on Tuesday evening. Together with Martin Swanson he attended and took in every word with great delight.

The grand annual closing out sale at Fontaine & Anglims', is to be made the event of the year. The entire stock of winter goods now on hand will be offered at unprecedently low rates. In fact, everything goes! Now is your time, strike, while the iron is hot. Catch on before it is everlastingly too late! This month only.

At the regular annual meeting of the Merchant's National Bank the following officers were elected: John Cromb, president; Hon. B. Sampson, vice-president; W. M. Ross, cashier; A. P. Hanson, teller; B. Kuper, book-keeper; J. Kelso, Wm. Ross, John Cromb, M. R. Brown, Hon. B. Sampson, John McLean and Wm. Stuart, board of directors.

Fontaine & Anglim carry an immense stock of goods of all kinds and their annual closing out sale affords an opportunity to secure great bargains rarely met with. The crowds of delighted customers daily seen there attest the fact that grand bargains are to be had. This opportunity will only last until Feb. 1st 1886.

The visible shows a decrease of 800,000 bushels for the past week. The great probability that the winter wheat crop will be affected by the severe cold weather, with no snow to protect it from freezing has had a tendency to stiffen the market for futures but as yet has not materially affected our markets here and may not within a week or ten days yet. It has got to get there however.

Ruedy & Meiser started operations with the new ice machine on Tuesday and are now putting up the ice for the brewery. With this machine and six men they estimate that they can cut and pack 60 tons per day. They will put up 1,000 tons for the brewery, about 500 tons for Stanton & Co., about as much in their own ice house and will then be ready for any job that may come about. Ruedy says the ice machine beats everything yet used in this country. It is simply a plow with a set of knives so arranged as to cut the ice to the required depth at six times going over. Wednesday they were plowing, to-day they will be filling the ice-house and it will probably take until Saturday to store what was cut on Wednesday.

Remember the entertainment to-morrow evening for the benefit of the free reading room. There should be a large attendance.

Cal Wagner's minstrels is the best troupe on the road. Tickets are now on sale at Berthiaume Bro's, at $1, 75 and 50 cents.

Eiken Bro's inform us that they are receiving more orders for the Greenwood patent heater than they can readily fill. Orders from Ada and Fisher have already been received and their fame is rapidly spreading. Call in and examine them.

Si Harris, yard master at the general yard at St Vincent, was killed last Friday, while in the act of coupling the switch engine to a sleeping car, the engine came back with unexpected force throwing him down the engine passing over his lower extremeties death following. It will be remembered by many friends that Mr. Harris was a former resident of our city. The deceased leaves a wife and two children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father and husband. Mrs. Harris, has the sympathy of a large number of her friends in her bereavment. Mr. Harris' body was brought here for interment last Friday.

The looked for race, between our city's favorite roller skater Mr. Judge Carruth, and Bromly, the stranger from the east, came off at the Favorite Rink last Saturday evening; witnessed by over 300 of our citizens, anxious to see the stranger and Judge try their metal; which was done, Judge being beat in a manner that he still holds the confidence of his many friends and backers, who are willing to again put up their money on him. Judge showed his superior speed over Bromley, who had the ball bearing or anti-friction skate, which were not barred, Judge having the small common rollers and consequently the odds were against him, but as it was Carruth was gaining ground with his small rollers, that he had lost at the commencement. There were 110 laps made, which covered a trifle over five miles, which was covered in 20 minutes and 10 seconds. The friends of Judge, who had put up their money, and lost, came to the front at the close of the race with their confidence strengthened in Judge's ability to again skate Bromley; backing him from any amount from $500 up, which he refused to do and skate upon the same kind of rollers. As it now stands our city's champion still maintains the confidence of his many friends who are willing to substantiate their confidence, by putting up the "stuff," if the same kind of skates are used by both.

"Felix Poutre" was presented by home talent at the Opera House on Tuesday evening to a large and very well pleased audience. Joe Daoust, in the title role, was simply immense, and when he waxed crazy and cleaned out the crowd of prisoners, and afterward when taken into court to answer for being crazy, the manner in which he turned loose upon that honorable body and cleaned out the whole business, Judge, jury, counsel and guards was thrilling in the extreme, even though you could not catch on to all of the chin racket. Capt. Couvrette, as the father of Felix, left nothing to be desired in that venerable old character, and was deservedly applauded. A. Munn, as the friend of Felix, did up the part to perfection. F. E. LePage made a rattling good member of Parliament, and if we had our say so, would be elected to the very next session of parliament—elected in America, just on account of his dignified bearing on this occasion. Wm. Lanctot, as "Duquette," was grace, beauty and dignity, and was voted, by all the young ladies, an immense success. "Toinon" was ably presented by I. Benoit, and was just simply too funny for anything. We will not attempt to report all he said, for the small boys were all so tickled to death that their boisterous laughter prevented our hearing all of it. F. Benoit played the part of "Camel," the heavy villain, and he was the most villainous looking cus(tomer) in the business. Wm. Lanctot (after he graduated) took the role of the doctor in the prison, but whatever they wanted of a doctor in that healthy looking crowd, gets us. D. S. Bray represented the Sheriff and looked more like an army officer than half a dozen Sheriffs. He got there every time, however, and when he hollered it was law, until Felix got on a high and pitched the constabulary all out doors as though they didn't cost the government a cent, and were only good to be thrown away in this reckless manner. W. Farley sustained the character of "LeGolier" for all there was in it, and we reckon the State militia was called out to represent the soldiers, or it might have been the Continental army, judging by the pitch forks, old flint-locks, sabres and pop guns that did service for guns. Mayor Montague spoke a little piece in good old-fashioned North American, which was well received, and made us think that His Honor was just a howling terror when he went to school and had to declaim. We'd like to see him wade into "Norval on the Grampian Hills!" There wouldn't be a hill left as big as a sheep. Taken as a whole, the entertainment was fine and did great credit to each and every performer. Our greatest regret is that those small boys should have made such a noise that we can't remember a word that was said. The receipts of the evening must have been very encouraging.

CROOKSTON CITY MARKETS

CORRECTED WEEKLY

EDWARD CAREY,

Buyer for Crookston Roller Mills.

A Hard Week on Wheat.

The Bears still have the better of the fight and connive to knock prices down. The wheat during the past week has shown no signs of strengthening up, but have on the other hand continued dull and depressed and from the present outlook, will continue so for some time to come.

OPINIONS.

J. G. Baker, head miller for Herrick & Lee. "I can see no way for prices to reach the point that we all expected at the beginning of the season. There is no demand for our wheat or flour abroad India's wheat crop will be ready to harvest in about four weeks and California's in about three months and with these new crops added to our old, the surplus increases instead of diminishing is increasing."

F. D. Skinner, buyer, for Red River Valley Elevator Co., "I can see no way for wheat to reach the high point looked for at the commencement of the season. It is true our last seasons crop was short but the foreign demand for our wheat and flour fell greatly behind even our short crop, and the ones that sold their wheat at 77 or 78 cents, were the wise ones this time."

Mrs. Ed Wile gave a pleasant euchre party to her lady friends yesterday afternoon.

We are constrained to risk the observation that Monday and Wednesday were mild, pleasant days.

C. L. Hanson was up from Rindal this week. He is only too well pleased with the present outlook for wheat.

Prof. Hauser has been over to Park River to show the natives how to blow. He says that Park River is quite a town.

John Cromb and R. A. Wilkinson have formed a law partnership and will hereafter be found at home in the Fournet block.

The Jay Cooke hotel, at Moorhead, built and owned by John Erickson, took fire on the 9th and was damaged about $4,000 worth. Fully insured.

Closing out sale of all goods, in job lots or any other way to suit purchasers at Fontaine & Anglim's. It will pay you to call before purchasing.

Wheat at 66 cents does not look any too encouraging, but we have not lost our faith yet. There is but very little coming to the market, at the present prices.

The cold snap last week delayed the trains a few hours for two days. The Devil's Lake train, with the exception of one day, made her regular trips every day on time.

Nels O. Paulsrud has purchased a thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian bull of Mr. Olson, of Norman Co. It is one that was purchased in Renville county last fall and is said to be a good one. We will present its pedigree at an early day.

The City Council failed to have a quorum on regular meeting night, and adjourned until Wednesday night. As there is some business of importance to come before them they should all be in their seats. The hay and wood market should receive prompt attention, and the weighing of coal should also be brought under this head, and a competent man appointed to attend to the weights and measures, and it be made a finable offence for parties offering for sale any hay, wood or coal without its being accompanied with the Market Master's certificate, duly signed.

The opinions which our local buyers have given on the future of wheat are, we fully believe, actuated from honest intentions, but we do not endorse them fully. We all know that the price of wheat, so far as this country is concerned, is in a measure controlled by farmers and, the facts seem to indicate that these interests are just now on the bear side of the house, and everything is brought to bear to down the price. It is a fact that a large amount of wheat that has been put into the elevators, is still in the hands of speculators and this depression may be made for the purpose of freezing the farmers out. We dont say this is the case, but can see no other good reason, and we know that these speculators are none too honorable to play a game of freeze-out if they conceive that it is for their interest. If they do so consider it at this stage of the game, that is just what they are up to. We still believe that farmers will miss it hugely if they sell now.

The Union Temperance meeting will be held at the Methodist Church next Sunday evening.

It is said that the firm of Comstock & White, at Moorhead, is to be dissolved. That firm own some real estate in this county.

Mr. S. Langevin has purchased a French Buhr, twelve-horse power feed mill with which he will be prepared to grind feed for his neighbors at reasonable rates.

Note the change in Macdonell's ad this week. Mac deserves to do a rushing business for his enterprise and public spirit, and we are glad to note that he is doing it.

Mr. L. Ericsson has been over from Lisbon, D. T., on a visit to his brother, Max. He has a confectionery and stationery business over there and says that he is doing a fair business.

Chas. Greenhalgh has the agency for a valuable medical work, entitled, "The Science of A New Life," by John Cowan, M. D. It is a work that should be in the hands of all married people or those contemplating matrimony. The work is highly endorsed by the best medical talent of the land.

Chas. Greenhalgh has invented and patented a shell-loader which is a very ingenious device. We were permitted to see a portion of the model and should think that it would be a very handy thing to have around a hunter's camp. Charlie will have them for sale in time for the next bird season.

David Buchanan is disposing of his grocery interests here and will leave for Duluth in about two weeks where he has purchased a half interest in a large grocery house. We are sorry to see him go but are glad that he has so good prospects ahead as we are assured that he has. What is our loss will be Duluth's gain.

Mr. and Mrs. James Shay, of Glyndon, were in the city on Monday, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kistenmacher. Mr. S. was around during the day renewing old acquaintance. He says that Crookston is one of the best towns in the Northwest and is coming to the front in grand style. He notes many improvements since his last visit.

Mr. J. E. Mitton, a former resident of Crookston, was over from Park River, D. T., last week to interview Dr. Thomas for a set of teeth with which to masticate the No. 1 Hard of that famous region. This speaks well for Doc when people come so far to patronize him. J. E. reports that he is doing a splendid business in his hotel and we are glad to hear it, for if anybody deserves good luck, Mitton does. He is a No. 1 landlord and a good man to have in a town.

Peter Cornelius reports the loss of about 200 bushels of nice seed wheat from his granary on Section 15, in Fairfax. He had given a neighbor charge of the premises, so did not pay as much attention to matters as he otherwise would have done, and upon visiting the place recently found the lock on the granary door broken and a lot of wheat gone. It seems that enterprise abounds, even in this county, but it would not be well for the thief if Pete should catch him.

J. P. Marcum reports having made 900 pounds of butter in 240 days from two young heifers and two older cows. This is a pretty good record, but in order to be up to the standard sought by dairymen nowadays, should show a yield of two pounds per day from the cows, at least. The four should average two pounds per day each. This can be done, and if farmers keep on in their efforts to improve their stock, will be done, and the time is not far distant when it will not be considered a record hard to beat. Many will take exceptions to this prediction, but time will fully justify it.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris gave a progressive euchre party on Monday evening which was a very enjoyable affair, highly enjoyed by all who were in attendance. The evening was all that could be wished as to weather and we heard many comments by the most progressive among the guests that the event was the nicest of the season. Mr. Westler got away with the gentlemen's prize and Miss Westler captured the ladies' with Mrs. Ed. Carey a close competitor. W. H. Jennings was declared to be the most indifferent playist among the gentlemen and has a reward of merit to prove it. It is thought that it will make an abolitionist of him. Mrs. W. B. Dawley captured the ladies' second best, while THE JOURNAL modestly got away with the sur-prize.

We see no indications that Polk County farmers will take much interest in the farmers' meeting to take place in Moorhead this week. This is not right. Polk County farmers should be represented by a rousing delegation, as the meeting will doubtless be one of great importance to the farming interests of the country and could be made of great value. Will farmers ever awaken to the importance of standing up in defence of their own rights? Every other class do it, and it seems as though farmers would be driven to it at last in sheer self defence, if for no other reason. It is not particularly necessary to make a pilgrimage to Moorhead every time they want to shoot off their mouths in their own cause, but if we had a good solid home alliance we should be far better off than we are at present. Will it ever be done?

I. U. Jennings took a tumble to himself at the Favorite rink on Saturday night, spraining his wrist badly.

James Novotony, of Angus, went out to see J. O. Milne's Holstein herd on Tuesday. He was very well pleased with their appearance and will make arrangements to import one of them to his farm at an early day. He intends to try something else besides all wheat.

The excitement at the Favorite rink last Saturday evening was immense. Some of the boys dropped their wads on Jud who was beaten by a scratch. We are told that the expert from abroad had on a pair of skates that gave him an immense advantage over Jud.

That Blackmail Case.

This case, as has been reported, resulted in the binding over of the parties accused, (with one exception) and THE JOURNAL last week refrained from attempting to forestall public opinion by comment thereupon. When we first alluded to this case, several weeks since we promised to refer to it again later, and should have done so last week only that we expected that a public meeting would be called to give some expression in the premises. Such as yet has not been done. We have carefully considered all of the evidence given in the case, have personally interviewed many who were supposed to know all about it and our conviction in the matter is that it was the most barefaced attempt at blackmail we have ever seen. Some have seemed to view the case as though Mr. Brown himself was the person on trial. In the absence of any convicting testimony it will be seen by all such that Mr. Brown is the plaintiff in the case and the result shows him worthy the confidence and support of every right-minded citizen, and all such owe it to the good name and honor of this city to stand by him aid and support him to the best of their ability. Mr. Brown became convinced that there exists a regular system of blackmailing in this city, a system under which the character and honor of no man is safe from such dastardly attacks as these and it was as much to break up this nefarious business as any other that he furnished the sinews of war to prosecute the matter as far as he has. It is not necessary to point to his public and private career since he has lived here among us—for all know what it is, but it does seem to us that our citizens owe something to the honor of our city (if not to a public-spirited and honorable citizen thereof who has undertaken a disagreeable task for the good of the city) to call a meeting of the citizens to give an expression of their views at least. Moreover there should be a society organized to resist all such relics of barbarism as such attempts against the honor of upright and worthy citizens are. Either Mr. Brown is right in this matter or he is wrong. If he is right he has done the city a service that deserves a public recognition and all who believe in preserving the fair name of our city and protecting her citizens should manifest their sentiments publicly. The character of a public man, a citizen, has been publicly assailed. He has had the manhood to stand up and face his accusers to bring them to the punishment they deserve. Do the good people of this city endorse his action, or do they not, is a question that outsiders will naturally ask and it will only be answered by the actions of our citizens themselves. We believe, from all of the interviews we have had that the public endorses Mr. Brown's course fully and we trust that they will not neglect to make a public manifestation of their feelings on the subject.

Report of County Commissioners for Jan. 5th 1886.

The board of County Commissioners assembled at their office on the 5th day of January, 1886 and organized by electing Commissioner Brown as chairman for the present year.

The petition for changing the location of school district No. 12, living been set for a hearing of parties interested therein and all parties present having been accorded a hearing of their views upon the subject matter of said petitition and a sufficient proof of notice of such hearing been duly presented to the Board, it was ordered and determined to hear the prayers of the petitioners be granted, and all that portion of Sec. 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33, T 151, R 45 and Sec 5, 6, 7, 8, and 18 and 19, T 150 R 45, lying north of Red Lake River, be detached from school district No. 12 and organized into a new school district, to be known as school district No.——

Resolved that the assets and liabilities of said district No. 12, as the same existed up to, and at the date of this order shall be divided and apportioned between said districts No. 12, and No— as follows, towit:

School district No. 12, shall keep; retaid and own the school house, now in the school district and the school furniture contained therein, shall belong to said district No——

The monies now in the treasury of said district No. 12, shall after payment of the debts thereof; shall be equally divided between said districts.

The claim of Fred Fiedt for merchandise to paupers was referred back for vertification.

The sum of $30 was granted Gabriel Koinlang, out of the poor fund, as poor aid, it appearing to the Board that said Koinlang and family were in destitute circumstances.

The sum of $5. per month was granted for six months to Joseph Dacy, out of the county poor fund, the said Dacy being a pauper residing in the 4th district.

The sum of $8. per month for six months was allowed F. St. Germain of the 3rd commissioners district.

The sum of $60. was allowed Mr. A. A. Anderson for boarding and care of and funeral expenses of paupers of the 10th district.

The Auditor was authorized and directed to issue his warrant for all amounts allowed out of the poor fund.

The sum of $8. per month was allowed Edward La Copisiere for board and care of Mary Penault, a pauper of the 3rd district.

The sum of $8. per month was allowed Nels Nelson and $10 per month to Carrie Bergland, both of whom are in destitute circumstances.

The sum of $5. per month for 6 mo. was allowed Elsie Roy a poor person residing in the 4th district.

The sum of $6. per month for six months was allowed out of the poor fund to Lars Brandent a 4th district county pauper.

Mr. O. Nod was allowed $15. per month for three months for board of Mary Breton a pauper in the 4th district.

To The Honorable Board of County Commissioners, of Polk Co., Minn.

GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned, the Board of Auditors of Polk Co., Minn. respectfully report that we have this day examined the office of O. H. Lucken Esq., the Treasurer of said County without previous notice to said Treasurer and have counted and ascertained the amount of monies on hand and belonging to said Treasurer and find the following correct towit:

Dep. in Merchants Nat'l Bank	$10827.09
" First " "	$10844.40
Town; village orders on hand	$115.23
School Dist. orders on hand	$192.80
Silver, pennies and nickels	$24.58
Total	$22003.60

We further beg leave to report that we have examined the condition and status of the Bonds furnished by the two depositors and have decided to advertise for bids, from Banks or Bankers for recovering such deposits in compliance with the statutes.

The petition for a bridge in Garden Township, was referred to Commissioner Goodrich.

A motion offered by Commissioner Bradish, that the County precede to advertise for bids for repairing the bridge at Fisher, was lost by vote.

The sum of $6. per month for six months, was allowed as poor aid to Martha Hale, and the same amount was allowed to J. P. Borneman of the 1st district.

The sum of $12. per month from Dec 1st 1885, was allowed C. L. Hanson for the board and care of Martin Anderson a pauper.

Poor aid to the amount of $8. was allowed Paul L. Hagan.

The sum of $8. per month for a period of four months was allowed Mrs. LeBlanc of the 4th district.

The report of the late Grand Jury read and the Board approved the recomendations contained therein; but regretted that the means were lacking with which to carry out the more important points of said report.

Peterson's Magazine for February opens with a beautiful steel-engraving after the celebrated picture of "Cinderella," by the great English artist, Sir John Millais. Then there is a mammoth colored steel-fashion plate; a double-size colored pattern in embroidery, from the Art School; two other full page engravings; and about fifty other wood-cuts. Such a wealth of illustrations is unexampled. The novelet, "The Cedar Swamp Mystery," becomes more powerful as it proceeds. "A Cinderella of to-day" is one of the most charming love-stories we ever read. Besides these, there are numerous other stories, novelets etc., and no other magazine gives such original stories as "Peterson." As we have often said, every lady should take this magazine: for it is alike refined and useful, and the price, Two Dollars a year, places it within the reach. To clubs the terms are even lower. Now is the time to get up clubs. Specimens are sent gratis, if written for, so there may be no deception. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Moorhead News: Mr. F. J. Schreiber has put into practice this winter a new plan of wintering stock. He piled up large quantities of oat straw last fall, and has allowed his horses, mules, dry cows, steers and all animals above one year old to run at will about the straw piles. The result surpasses his expectations, as the stock are in better condition now than when work ceased and grass was killed by the frost. The stock have not been fed any other food whatever. They make holes into the straw piles which afford them protection in storms, so that the stock not only get their own living in the straw, but build their own shelter. Moral: Farmers, save your oat straw and do likewise.

Pioneer Press: The Philadelphia Tribune expired on Sunday morning, after seventeen days' existence and an expenditure of $2,000 with no returns. The projectors carefully figured out a net profit of $640 a week. After the first week they found themselves out of pocket about $1,000. The expected seven or eight columns of "ads," at $20 a column a day, did not materialize. The buyers at a cent a copy did not show themselves in formidable numbers; the setting up in nonpareil solid was found to be rather expensive when the composition bills had to be paid out of a nominal capital. That is the story of many a similar venture, and yet there are hundreds of people who still believe that it is possible to run a daily newspaper into a brilliant success on a few hundred dollars of capital.

For the Ladies.

We have made arrangments with the publishers of the Housekeeper, by which we are able to offer that paper as a premium with THE JOURNAL. The Housekeeper, as its name implies is devoted wholly to the interests of the ladies and is highly appreciated where known. We have arranged to have a copy placed in the hands of all our lady readers and if you like it we can supply you with a copy for 1886. In cases where the premium offer has already been accepted we will add the Housekeeper for a trifle. If any of our lady friends fail to get a copy soon and wish to see it a card addressed to this office will secure a sample copy. The Housekeeper is a monthly paper, and is highly prized wherever known.

Editor Journal:—In your issue of January, 7, '86, appears a communication on the wheat question, signed Farmer, in which he uses some, pretty severe language in regard to other people's opinions. But as for himself, he asserts that he must be right, but gives no facts in the case. Now we do not profess to be a prophet, nor did we base our opinions on any such theory, but drew them from our every-day observations of the market, and from an unbiased market report, furnished daily by the market reporter of the Pioneer Press as also from secretaries of Minneapolis and Duluth Board's of Trade and not for a paper run exclusively for any one class of people as did our friend, the farmer. A Farmers Weekly is all good enough in its place, such as open letters from farmers in different sections in regard to diversified farming; best crops to follow each other, seeds to sow etc., but when it comes to a Farmers Weekly published one week and not received by the subscriber, until a week or two weeks old, it will not do very well to be guided by such papers, in regard to the daily fluctuations of the wheat market. Now in your issue of the same date the Farmer's letter appeared, we gave the fact, that there is, at the present time held in Chicago elevators 15,000,000 bushels of wheat and at the present time of the year, there should not be to exceed 3,000,000. This 15,000,000 is all owned and controlled by bulls, or the long side of the market, and they have held this wheat for (3) three years past and on it there is 72 cents storage and the same wheat is only worth 80½ cents per bushel to-day on the Chicago market. Now they have got to soon unload this wheat or its entire worth will be ate up by the elevator charges and fall into the hands of elevator owners and as soon as it does they will throw it on the market in order to realize their charges and hence down goes the price. Our reasons for expecting high prices for the last crop at the beginning of the season, was from the fact, at that time there was a foreign demand for our wheat and flour and also a prospect for a foreign war. But as the demand dropped off and the war cloud blew over, it left us with all of our wheat on our hands, to consume ourselves as best we can. There were two other factors which again revived our hopes that prices might advance, one was the open weather in the East, there being no snow on the ground to protect the winter wheat and the snow blockades of of the west. Instead of a decrease in last week's statements, they show an increase of 136,339 bushels, and this too in the face of fifteen of the Minneapolis Mills, turning out their full capacity daily. Now this increase with the foreign markets still dull and depressed are the two factors of the low price for wheat and just so long as our wheat remains from 10 to 20 cents higher per bushel than England can buy India wheat for, and just so long as she can, there will be no activity and our wheat must be consumed at home. Foreign advices from Perth, Hungary state that the prices of flour has fallen so low that the Millers contemplate shutting down. The leading facts of the wheat question are that we have over estimated our influence in the world's markets. We have been carrying fifty millions of wheat for the importing countries and are now carrying near sixty millions bushels at a premium which has been steadily lost. We are holding our wheat in western granaries and elevators at seaboard prices. With no demand for wheat at the seaboard. What does all this portend, simply that we must meet the market for a portion of our surplus wheat or dole it out to the American stomach until spring, when the balance of our surplus will come to market and add to the bulk and after that Stagnation in trade. We may wear our European stock by their own consumption and then finally sell them our surplus at a good price, and we assure you that we know of no one more willing to accomplish this than we are. If our friend Farmer and all others in the Northwest, would, when they are compelled to sell their wheat, sell it to the mills only and let it be ground up and let it pass out of sight, they would do more to help themselves in obtaining better prices than any other way. Out of the past season's crop the farmers on the Manitoba Road alone have thrown into the elevators some ten thousand bushels of wheat and to-day there is on this one line of road some 6,500,000 bushels ready to be shoved on the market at a day's notice. If they had put this in the mills it would have been ground up and out of sight and not showing up as a visible supply weekly and helping depress the market. It has always been our aim to give every farmer the best grade his wheat will stand and at the same time do our employers justice and we have never as yet graded the man, but the wheat he had in his sacks regardless of who the party might be who owned it. We have no reasons as yet to change our opinions as to the high prices expected not being realized and are still of the opinion, that when 75 cents per bushel can be realized by the farmers for their wheat, then is the time to let go. It may be a little higher, but the length of time one would have to hold it, would not justify them in taking any chances on its going lower.

ANNEX.

Vicks Floral Guide for January is the handsomest number ever issued even by that enterprising firm. It contains 150 pages of interesting matter relating to the garden. A description can better be had by reviewing the work which can be had of the publishers at Rochester, N. Y.

Chronicles of Woodside.

Now, it came to pass, in the Province of Woodside, about the last days of the year, that there was silence in all the Province; there was no sound of mirth, not even the sound of a musical instrument. The harp, the psalter, the sacbet, and stringed instrument was not heard in all the land; even the weddings were taken to the Province of Mentor, and the countenances of the young men and maidens were sad; and their hearts were heavy with sadness. But it came to pass that while the people did wax sorrowful that one of the citizens of Woodside who was of good repute among the people, and whose name was Earl, said to the young men? "Now wist ye not that the old year is come to an end, and the new one cometh on apace, and the time for merry-making is at hand? Now, therefore, I pray ye act like men and make ready, for on the first night of the first day of the new year there will be music and dancing at the house of her whom is called Sible!" and the young men bowed themselves and said, "tis well even as thou sayst." Now, it came to pass that from that day until the merry-making that the young men of Woodside did hustle about to invite the maidens to come to the dance; and some went even into the goodly province of Mentor. And it came to pass that there lived in the Province of Woodside a young Northman whose name was James, and he was a descendent of those who broke the chariot wheels of Rome in olden time; and he went to the house of an old man who was once an high priest, and whose daughter was young and comely, and said to the damsel: "I pray thee be my partner to the merry-making even at the house of Sible, on the first evening of the new year." And the maiden answered and said: "Wist ye not that my father was an high priest and that I do not attend dances;" and the young man bowed himself and went out to mourn, with tears in his eyes and his fists doubled up. And it came to pass that on the evening of the first day of the new year that the chief musicians were called, and did assemble at the house of Sible, and there was assembled at the house many people, the young and the old and the middle aged; yea, even from the baby in swadling clothes to the aged and the infirm, and of old women not a few, and they did all dance before the musicians; even her who was chief leader in Sabbath school, who did pray and make lamentations over the sins of the people, did dance with one of the chief musicians, and did caper and prance like unto a young fawn, for her feet were like Hinds feet and she had a son who was a mighty hunter, whose name was Mimshi. Now, it came to pass about the second watch of the night, and while the music was playing and the dancers were dancing, that the ruler of the feast stood up and beckoned with his hand and said: "All hail!" and the people stood still at his words. Now, he of the feast said: "Know ye not that 'tis about the sixth hour of the night, and time to prepare the feast." Now she who is called Sible arranged the loaves and fishes, called in the ancient language "Fisk," and the milk and honey and olive oil, and the leavened bread, and they did all eat and were filled, and there was an abundance for all. Now, it came to pass after the feast that they did dance again with new energy until about the fourth watch of the night, which is morning. Then did the dancers become weary and the music ceased and the people took themselves each to their own home, and said one to another "It is good fun to be here!" But where and at what time the next merry-making will be is not recorded in the second book of Chronicles of Woodside.

CHRONICLER.

Wylie Waifs.

The train was several hours late on Thursday and Saturday.

Wheat receipts have fallen off some since the advent of cold weather.

A very pleasant party was given by Mr. Campbell on Wednesday night. Dancing was indulged in to a late hour.

A surprise party carried Mr. Hillgross' house by storm on Wednesday evening. All enjoyed themselves.

E. Hamery, of Red Lake Falls, paid our village a visit Saturday.

We expect better elevator facilities next year. The trade of this station is much too large for the present building.

Farmers are beginning to rub the rust from their plows. Mr. Oborough expects to turn 400 acres of prairie over. Many others will do equally well.

The farmers about here are beginning to realize that with their grass and grazing lands, they have the best stock-raising section of Polk County. Heretofore wheat has been king to the exclusion of everything else, and its reign has been a sorry one, piling the farmers with mortgages, as well as robbing the land of its fertility. We are glad to see that there is a change for the better. While few are able to indulge in blooded animals as yet, the beginning is made and but a few years will pass before the rich grasses of our prairies will bring wealth to the owners. A parallel case can be seen in the development of the southern half of the State. Fourteen years ago little was raised but wheat, and to-day it is one of the richest dairy sections of the country.

HAPPY CAL WAGNER.

The Veteran Minstrel at the Academy Last Night—Large Audience Despite Muddy Streets—A Good Entertainment—Coming Events.

Sioux City Daily Journal.

With the streets and crossings in such horrible condition as they were last night, and amidst darkness so thick it could almost be cut with a knife, the large audience that filled the Academy to see Cal Wagner's minstrels was certainly a surprise. But the reputation of this veteran of negro minstrelsy is too big and strong for bad weather. The large audience made good paying business for the managers.

The performance, too, was upon the whole excellent. Happy Cal is not playing entirely on his reputation. There is yet much of the same old originality and magnetism which have delighted audiences for so many years. And there are several assistants in the company of more than average merit. The dialogue of the opening part of the programme was rather worn and aged, though some of the reparteos struck home. The songs were fair, and as to the music generally it was good throughout. The specialities were far better than the dialogue. John J. Leonard's pedestal clog dancing was simply immense, and finer tumbling than that of Messrs. O'Dell and Ardell has rarely been seen in Sioux City. Cal Wagner's specialty in "Room No. 45" also brought down the house. His make-up was an event in itself. Robert L. Turner's novel musical performance was also an interesting feature of the performance.

The audience was an enthusiastic one, and applause came frequent and hearty.

Having disposed of my meat market business, and rented my building I desire to return my sincere thanks to all of my old patrons and friends for their kind patronage in the past and especially would I remember the farmers with whom my business relations have ever been the most pleasant. With sincere regards I remain yours truly,

HENRY STEEGE.

Mr. Chas. Greenbalgh, has been appointed agent for that great work relating to commerce and the industrial arts, entitled "The Universal Assistant and Complete Mechanic," containing 500 engravings and over 1,000,000 industrial Facts, Calculations, Receipts, Processes, Trade Secrets, Business Forms etc., from the Household to the Manufactuory. This is one of the most valuable works of its kind ever published, and should be in the hands of every capable engineer, mechanic and business man in the country. It being especially adapted to the use of engineers, and no first class engineer can afford to do without it. The price of this work is very low, only $3, which brings it within each of all. Persons living at a distance can secure the work by addressing Chas. Greenbalgh, Croockston, Minn. [37 tf]

Board of County Commissioners for Jan. 5th 1886.

The board of County Commissioners assembled at their office on the 5th day of January, 1886 and organized by electing Commissioner Brown as chairman for the present year.

The petition for changing the location of school district No. 12, having been set for a hearing of parties interested therein and all parties present having been accorded a hearing of their views upon the subject matter of said petitition and a sufficient proof of notice of such hearing been duly presented to the Board, it was ordered and determined to hear the prayers of the petitioners be granted, and all that portion of Sec. 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, T. 151, R. 45 and Sec 5, 6, 7, 8 and 18 and 19, T. 150 R. 45, lying north of Red Lake River, be detached from school district No. 12 and organized into a new school district, to be known as school district No.—.

Resolved that the assets and liabilities of said district No. 12, as the same existed up to, and at the date of this order shall be divided and apportioned between said districts No. 12, and No.— as follows, towit:

School district No. 12 shall keep, retain and own the school house, now in the school district and the school furniture contained therein, shall belong to said district No.—.

The monies now in the treasury of said district No. 12, shall after payment of the debts thereof, shall be equally divided between said districts.

The claim of Fred. Fieldt for merchandise to paupers was referred back for verification.

The sum of $30 was granted Gabriel Koinlang, out of the poor fund, as poor aid, it appearing to the Board that said Koinlang and family were in destitute circumstances.

The sum of $5, per month was granted for six months to Joseph Dacy, out of the county poor fund, the said Dacy being a pauper residing in the 4th district.

The sum of $8 per month for six months was allowed F. St. Germain of the 3rd commissioners district.

The sum of $60 was allowed Mr. A. A. Anderson for boarding and care of and funeral expenses of paupers of the 10th district.

The Auditor was authorized and directed to issue his warrant for all amounts allowed out of the poor fund.

The sum of $8 per month was allowed Edward La Copisiere for board and care of Mary Penault, a pauper of the 3rd district.

The sum of $8 per month was allowed Nels Nelson and $10 per month to Carrie Bergland, both of whom are in destitute circumstances.

The sum of $5 per month for 6 mo. was allowed Elsie Roy, a poor person residing in the 4th district.

The sum of $6 per month for six months was allowed out of the poor fund to Lars Brandent a 4th district county pauper.

Mr. O. Nod was allowed $15 per month for three months for board of Mary Breton a pauper in the 4th district.

To The Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Polk Co., Minn.

GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned the Board of Auditors of Polk Co., Minn. respectfully report that we have this day examined the office of O. H. Lucken Esq. the Treasurer of said County without previous notice to said Treasurer and have counted and ascertained the amount of monies on hand and belonging to said Treasurer and find the following correct towit:

Dep. in Merchants Nat'l Bank	$10827.09
[illegible] First [illegible]	$10844.40
Town village orders on hand	$115.28
School Dist. orders on hand	$192.80
Silver, pennies and nickels	$24.53
Total	$22003.60

We further beg leave to report that we have examined the condition and status of the Bonds furnished by the two depositors and have decided to advertise for bids from Banks or Bankers for recovering such deposits in compliance with the statutes.

The petition for a bridge in Garden Township was referred to Commissioner Goodrich.

A motion offered by Commissioner Bradish that the County proceed to advertise for bids for repairing the bridge at Fisher was lost by vote.

The sum of $6 per month for six months was allowed as poor aid to Martha Hale and the same amount was allowed to J. P. Borneman of the [illegible] district.

The sum of $12 per month from Dec 1st 1885 was allowed Carl Hanson for the board and care of Martin Anderson a pauper.

Poor aid to the amount of $8 was allowed Paul M. Hagan.

The sum of $8 per month for a period of four months was allowed Mrs. LaBlanc of the 4th district.

The report of the late Grand Jury read and the Board approved the recommendations contained therein but regretted that the means were lacking with which to carry out the more important points of said report.

Peterson's Magazine for February opens with a beautiful steel-engraving after the celebrated picture of "Cinderella," by the great English artist, Sir John Millais. Then there is a mammoth colored steel fashion plate, a double-size colored pattern in embroidery, from the Art School, two other full page engravings, and about fifty other wood-cuts. Such a wealth of illustrations is unexampled. The novelet, "The Cedar Swamp Mystery," becomes more powerful as it proceeds. "A Cinderella of to-day," is one of the most charming love stories we ever read. Besides these, there are numerous other stories, novelets, etc., and no other magazine gives such original stories as "Peterson." As we have often said, every lady should take this magazine, for it is alike refined and useful, and the price, Two Dollars a year, places it within the reach of all. To clubs the terms are even lower. Now is the time to get up clubs. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for, so there may be no deception. Address Chas. J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Moorhead News: Mr. F. J. Schreiber has put into practice this winter a new plan of wintering stock. He piled up large quantities of oat straw last fall and has allowed his horses, mules, dry cows, steers and all animals above one year old to run at will about the straw piles. The result surpasses his expectations, as the stock are in better condition now than when work ceased and grass was killed by the frost. The stock have not been fed any other food whatever. They make holes into the straw piles which afford them protection in storms, so that the stock not only get their own living in the straw but build their own shelter. Moral: Farmers, save your oat straw and do likewise.

Pioneer Press: The Philadelphia Tribune expired on Sunday morning after seventeen days' existence and an expenditure of $2,000 with no returns. The projectors carefully figured out a net profit of $840 a week. After the first week they found themselves out of pocket about $1,000. The expected seven or eight columns of "ads" at $20 a column a day did not materialize; the buyers at a cent a copy did not show themselves in formidable numbers; the setting up in nonpareil solid was found to be rather expensive when the composition bills had to be paid out of a nominal capital. The history of many a similar venture, and yet there are hundreds of people who still believe that it is possible to run a daily newspaper into a brilliant success on a few hundred dollars of capital.

Editor Journal:—In your issue of January 7, '86 appears a communication on the wheat question signed Farmer, in which he uses some pretty severe language in regard to other people's opinions. But as for him of the assertion that he must be right, but gave no facts in the case. Now, we do not profess to be a prophet, nor did we base our opinions on any such theory, but drew them from our every day observations of the market and from an unbiased market report, published daily by the market reporter of the Pioneer Press as also from secretaries of Minneapolis and Duluth Boards of Trade and not for a paper run exclusively for any one class of people as did our friend the farmer. A Farmers Weekly is all good enough in its place, such as open letters from farmers in different sections in regard to diversified farming, best crops to follow each other, seeds to sow etc., but when it comes to a Farmers Weekly published one week and not received by the subscriber until a week or two weeks old, it will not do very well to be guided by such papers in regard to the daily fluctuations of the wheat market. Now in your issue of the same date the Farmer's letter appeared, we gave the fact that there is at the present time held in Chicago elevators 15,000,000 bushels of wheat and at the present time of the year there should not be to exceed 3,000,000. This 15,000,000 is all owned and controlled by bulls or the long side of the market and they have held this wheat for (3) three years past and on it there is 72 cents storage and the same wheat is only worth 80½ cents per bushel to-day on the Chicago market. Now, they have got to soon unload this wheat or its entire worth will be ate up by the elevator charges and fall into the hands of elevator owners and as soon as it does they will throw it on the market in order to realize their charges and hence down goes the price. Our reasons for expecting high prices for the last crop at the beginning of the season, was from the fact at that time there was a foreign demand for our wheat and flour and also a prospect for a foreign war. But as the demand dropped off and the war cloud blew over it left us with all of our wheat on our hands to consume ourselves as best we can. There were two other factors which again revived our hopes that prices might advance, one was the open weather in the East, there being no snow on the ground to protect the winter wheat and the snow blockades of the west. Instead of a decrease in last week's statements they show an increase of 186,839 bushels and this too in the face of fifteen of the Minneapolis Mills turning out their full capacity daily. Now this increase with the foreign markets still dull and depressed are the two factors of the low price for wheat and just so long as our wheat remains from 10 to 20 cents higher per bushel than England can buy India wheat for, and just so long as she can there will be no activity and our wheat must be consumed at home. Foreign advices from Perth, Hungary state that the prices of flour has fallen so low that the Millers contemplate shutting down. The leading facts of the wheat question are that we have over estimated our influence in the world's markets. We have been carrying fifty millions of wheat for the importing countries and are now carrying near sixty millions bushels at a premium which has been steadily lost. We are holding our wheat in western granaries and elevators at seaboard prices. With no demand for wheat at the seaboard. What does all this portend, simply that we must meet the market for a portion of our surplus wheat or dole it out to the American stomach until spring, when the balance of our surplus will come to market and add to the bulk and after that stagnation in trade. We may wear our European stock by their own consumption and then finally sell them our surplus at a good price, and we assure you that we know of no one more willing to accomplish this than we are. If our friend Farmer and all others in the Northwest would, when they are compelled to sell their wheat, sell it to the mills only and let it be ground up and let it pass out of sight, they would do more to help themselves in obtaining better prices than any other way. Out of the past season's crop the farmers on the Manitoba Road alone have thrown into the elevators some ten thousand bushels of wheat, and to-day there is on this one line of road some 2,500,000 bushels ready to be thrown on the market [illegible]

Chronicles of Woodside.

Now it came to pass, in the Province of Woodside, about the last days of the year, that there was silence in all the Province; there was no sound of mirth, not even the sound of a musical instrument. The harp, the psalter, the sackbut and stringed instrument was not heard in all the land, even the weddings were taken to the Province of Mentor, and the countenances of the young men and maidens were sad, and their hearts were heavy with sadness. But it came to pass that, while the people did wax sorrowful, that one of the citizens of Woodside who was of good repute among the people, and whose name was Earl, said to the young men: "Now wist ye not that the old year is come to an end, and the new one cometh on apace, and the time for merry making is at hand? Now, therefore, I pray ye act like men and make ready, for on the first night of the first day of the new year there will be music and dancing at the house of her whom is called Sible." And the young men bowed themselves and said, "'tis well even as thou sayst." Now, it came to pass that from that day until the merry making that the young men of Woodside did hustle about to invite the maidens to come to the dance, and some went even into the goodly province of Mentor. And it came to pass that there lived in the Province of Woodside a young Northman whose name was James, and he was a descendent of those who broke the chariot wheels of Rome in olden time, and he went to the house of an old man who was once an high priest, and whose daughter was young and comely, and said to the damsel: "I pray thee be my partner to the merry making even at the house of Sible, on the first evening of the new year." And the maiden answered and said, "Wist ye not that my father was an high priest and that I do not attend dances." And the young man bowed himself and went out to mourn, with tears in his eyes and his fists doubled up. And it came to pass that on the evening of the first day of the new year that the chief musicians were called, and did assemble at the house of Sible, and there was assembled at the house many people, the young and the old and the middle aged, yea, even from the baby in swaddling clothes to the aged and the infirm, and of old women not a few, and they did all dance before the musicians, even her who was chief leader in Sabbath school, who did pray and make lamentations over the sins of the people, did dance with one of the chief musicians, and did caper and prance like unto a young fawn, for her feet were like Hinds feet and she had a son who was a mighty hunter, whose name was Mimshi. Now it came to pass about the second watch of the night, and while the music was playing and the dancers were dancing that the ruler of the feast stood up and beckoned with his hand and said: "All hail!" and the people stood still at his words. Now, he of the feast said: "Know ye not that 'tis about the sixth hour of the night, and time to prepare the feast." Now she who is called Sible arranged the loaves and fishes, called in the ancient language "Fisk," and the milk and honey and olive oil, and the leavened bread, and they did all eat and were filled, and there was an abundance for all. Now it came to pass after the feast that they did dance again with new energy until about the fourth watch of the night, which is morning. Then did the dancers become weary and the music ceased and the people took themselves each to their own home, and said one to another: "It is good fun to be here!" But where and at what time the next merry making will be, is not recorded in the second book of Chronicles of Woodside.

CHRONICLER.

Wylie Waifs.

The train was several hours late on Thursday and Saturday.

Wheat receipts have fallen off some since the advent of cold weather.

A very pleasant party was given by Mr. Campbell on Wednesday night. Dancing was indulged in to a late hour.

A surprise party carried Mr. Hillgross' house by storm on Wednesday evening. All enjoyed themselves.

E. Hamery, of Red Lake Falls, paid our village a visit Saturday.

We expect better elevator facilities next year. The trade of this station is much too large for the present building.

Farmers are beginning to rub the rust from their plows. Mr. Oborough expects to turn 400 acres of prairie over. Many others will do equally well.

The farmers about here are beginning to realize that with their grass and grazing lands, they have the best stock-raising sections of Polk County. Heretofore wheat has been king to the exclusion of everything else, and its reign has been a sorry one, piling the farmers with mortgages as well as robbing the land of its fertility. We are glad to see that there is a change for the better. While few are able to buy full blooded animals as yet, the beginning is made and but a few years will pass before the rich prairies of our county will bring wealth to the owners. A parallel case can be seen in the development of the southern half of the state. Fourteen years ago it was nothing but wheat, and to-day it is one of the richest dairy regions of the country.

HAPPY CAL WAGNER.

The Veteran Minstrel at the Academy Last Night—Large Audience Despite Muddy Streets—A Good Entertainment—Coming Events.

Sioux City Daily Journal.

With the streets and crossings in such horrible condition as they were last night, and amidst darkness so thick it could almost be cut with a knife, the large audience that filled the Academy to see Cal Wagner's minstrels was certainly a surprise. But the reputation of this veteran of negro minstrelsy is too big and strong for bad weather. The large audience made good paying business for the managers.

The performance, too, was upon the whole excellent. Happy Cal is not playing entirely on his reputation. There is yet much of the same old originality and magnetism which have delighted audiences for so many years. And there are several assistants in the company of more than average merit.

The dialogue of the opening part of the programme was rather worn and aged, though some of the repartees struck home. The songs were fair, and as to the music generally it was good throughout. The specialities were far better than the dialogue. John J. Leonard's pedestal clog dancing was simply immense, and finer tumbling than that of Messrs. O'Dell and Ardell has rarely been seen in Sioux City. Cal Wagner's specialty in "Room No. 45" also brought down the house. His make-up was an event in itself. Robert L. Turner's novel musical performance was also an interesting feature of the performance.

The audience was an enthusiastic one, and applause came frequent and hearty.

Having disposed of my meat market business, and rented my building I desire to return my sincere thanks to all of my old patrons and friends for their kind patronage in the past and especially would I remember the farmers with whom my business relations have ever been the most pleasant. With sincere regards I remain yours truly,

Mr. Chas. Greenhalgh, has been appointed agent for that great work relating to commerce, and the industrial arts entitled "The Universal Assistant and Complete Mechanic," containing 500 engravings, and over 1,000,000 industrial Facts, Calculations, Receipts, Processes, Trades Secrets, Business Forms etc. from the Household to the Manufactory. This is one of the most valuable works of its kind ever published, and should be in the hands of every capable engineer, mechanic and business man in the country. It being especially adapted to the use of engineers, and no first-class engineer can afford to do without it. The price of this work is very low, only $3 which brings it within the reach of all. Persons living at a distance can secure the work by addressing Chas. Greenhalgh, Crookston, Minn. [37-tf]

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 14.

'ROUND HOME.

Don't fail to see Cal. Wagner's minstrels on the 16th.

If Harry Eades has not an India rubber countenance, he comes as near to it as they make 'em. It is worth the price of admission just to see him mould his placid features. He is a whole show in himself.

Everybody laughed until their sides ached to see the antics of Eades and Cowles.

Don't forget that you have until Feb. 1st to get THE JOURNAL and Farm Stock and Home for the price of the one. All you have to do is to pay one year in advance, on THE JOURNAL. If you are a subscriber all you have to do is to settle up the old score and one year in advance at the same rate as though payment had been made in advance.

We don't propose to praise up our weather again until next spring. Last week we spoke about the gentle breezes, or words to that effect and the forms were hardly off the press and dried before old Boreas was "whoop-in-er-up" from Winnipeg at about 200 knots an hour—more or less. We like to tell the truth and keep our word once in a while, but how can a fellow know when to "holler" in such weather!

While we had a delightfully "fresh" little bliz last week, we find on reflection and reading reports from elsewhere that our storm was a gentle zephyr to a jimneycane, by comparison. We read of "snow three feet on a level;" "blockaded trains" and "howling winds" until we are led to wonder how people can be content to live in such a country anyhow. Why don't everybody sell out and come up here, where we know nothing about such things, only as we read about them in eastern papers and guess how dismal it must all be. Pretty well along into January, and as yet we have had no weather too inclement to be out in, (if you have to be out.) It is a little wonderful, even for this noted mild and gentle climate.

Fail to see "happy Cal. Wagner" and then go and kick yourself all over the country, because you did not improve the opportunity you had to see him.

The John H. Oake's Merry Makers and Crystal Chimes Co., entertained at the opera house on Wednesday evening and notwithstanding the small number present, did their best to entertain and please. The Crystal chimes, produced by passing their hands over goblets containing water was something new and surprisingly sweet. Mr. Oake showed himself a master of the flute, and Alice Oake's performances as a harpist were applauded and she was recalled as often as she would respond. The violin solo, by Benjamin Korn was well executed. Harry Eades kept the audience in an uproar every time he came out, which was often. The contortions of that man's face were wonderful to see. He personated several different characters without leaving the stage to change make-up and that he did well was attested to by the audible smiles of his hearers. Chas. Cowles was no less successful in his parts, which were are all comical in the extreme. This company is small but wonderfully entertaining and we are glad to be able to announce that they will appear again on the evening of January, 25th, on their return from Winnipeg.

Cal. Wagner's minstrels are said to be the best on the road.

The JOURNAL has received from Chas Greenhalgh, the agent, a copy of "Moore's Universal Assistant, or One Million Industrial Facts, Receipts and Calculations in Every Business." It contains 500 engravings illustrating different subjects and is a work of value to any business man and especially to the mechanic, machinist or engineer. Among many departments contained we find a Farmers, Lumber, Housekeeping, Dyers and Bleachers, Medical, Grocers and Confectioners, Tanners, Curriers, Boot, Shoe and Rubber Manufacturers, Marble Workers and Bookbinders, Painters, Cabinet-makers, Gilders, Bronzers, and Glass Stainers, Builders Calculations and other Important Information; Watch-makers, Jewelers, machinists and Engineers, Mill Owners, Mechanics, Telegraphy, Paotography, Hunting and Trapping, Book-keeping and Barbers; it also contains hundreds of Scientific Facts, Useful Items for Daily Rememberance, Facts for Gas Companies and Consumers, Farm Buildings, Agricultural Tables, Land Measurements, Geneological Facts and Origin and Formation of the Earth, Tables for Printers, Patent Office Rules, Charges, Facts Relating to Human Life, Areas of Seas, Lakes, and Height of Mountains, Special Laws of States and Territories and Tables for Miners. We have found the work to be a very valuable one and can heartily recommend it.

The Old Man's Story.

BY M. L. F.

An aged man passed down the street one day,
With feeble tread, and leaning on his staff;
A group of schoolboys met him on the way,
And rudely jostled the poor man and laugh'd.
His tottering form scarce stood the rude assault,
But, swaying to and fro, he reached a wall,
And begged the urchins in their mirth to halt,
And listen to the story of his fall.

They gathered 'round with interest intent,
And for the poor man improvised a seat;
So earnest on the story were they bent,
They crowded even to the stranger's feet.
Thus he began: "I was the only child
Of wealthy parents, with surroundings bright;
Their love so great, their discipline so mild,
My every wish to grant was their delight.

"I learned how easy 'twas to get my way,
And soon became the master of our home;
My gentle mother oft, in tears, would say,—
'From this, my darling, evil sure will come.'
My father bowed his manly form, and wept
To see his idol son to sin a slave;
But from the world my vice he would have kept
Till sorrow brought his gray hairs to the grave.

"And now, dear boys, the event of this day
Takes my mind back to my first real crime;
I stoned a blind man as he grop'd his way
From house to house, begging for half a dime."
(And here the tears coursed down the stranger's face
As he recounted this, his flagrant sin);
But had I ended then, my wicked race,
In this sad plight I should not now have been.

"I broke the Sabbath, gambled, drank and stole
(For which, I feared the law, and ran away);
With other crimes I stained my guilty soul
Which now before me stand in black array.
From bad to worse, I went from year to year,
Till, broken-hearted, my dear parents died;
And then, untrammeled in my wild career,
My large estate was scattered far and wide.

"I soon was brought to poverty and want,
Like the poor prodigal of whom we read;
An object of the thoughtless schoolboy's taunt,—
A perfect wreck became, in very deed.
I might have led a useful, honored life,
With a luxurious and happy home,
Surrounded with sweet babes, and loving wife,
Instead, in tattered garb the streets to roam.

"Too late, I've seen my folly, to retrieve
My sad condition, and stand up a man
In God's own image; yet I now believe
For sin like mine the blood of Jesus ran.
In deep contrition, I my guilt have laid
At His dear feet, who notes the sparrow fall,
And on His gentle breast I lean my head;
Dear boys, avoid my course; I've told you all."

The children, bathed in tears, while they had heard,
Caressed the stranger's silver locks, and said:
"We'll heed thy warning, treasuring every word;"—
They marked his silence—the poor man was dead.

CLAREMONT, N. H.

A Monster Indictment.

The liquor traffic is opposed to every minister of the Gospel in the country—is the Church's bitterest enemy—is the constant dread of every mother—is hated and detested by merchants and business men—creates 90 per cent. of the pauperism for which taxpayers must pay—employs a large army of policemen in our cities—makes 90 per cent. of the business of the criminal courts—puts out the fires on the hearth and consigns women and children to hunger, rags and cold—sacrifices the lives of 75,000 of its citizens corrupts ballot-box, and prevents an honest count of the votes of freemen—and last, but not least, fills the coffers of a debased and dangerous class of citizens. It comprises all other vices, for drunkenness means speculation, theft, perjury, robbery, arson, riot, fornication, adultery, murder and every crime in the catalogue.

Evils of High License.

President John Bascom, of the State University, delivered a lecture this evening on the subject of high license. He maintained that, conceding high license to be beneficial, the State has no right by legalizing such license to perpetuate the liquor evil. The temper that establishes high license will not pull it down even when it is found to be a failure. The speaker denied that high license would curtail the liquor traffic, reduce crime or tend to remove temptation from man, but that instead small saloons would close or consolidate; business would go entirely into the hands of daring and unscrupulous men who would make their saloons more attractive; and as brilliant light attracts and consumes more moths and flies than dim light, thus would grand saloons act. Having to pay high license, dealers will openly add billiards and cards to saloon accessories, and secret gambling and impurity—and in every way possible compensate themselves at the expense of the public for the increased license. The speaker said that since the government had established internal revenue liquor consumption had increased much more rapidly than population, and he declared that high license would have the same tendency. He asserted that legally recognizing the saloon in any manner was only a step in the direction of ultimate socialism. The only cause of danger of socialism in this country is poverty, which is born and bred in the saloon; that the saloon is were reckless speeches are uttered, and that in the saloon the socialistic mob will be fired with the final frenzy from which outbursts will come. He held that if nothing else did; socialism will yet bring this nation to judgment on the liquor question. President Bascom closed by saying that at present the nation is in no manner debauched more than in regard to general taxation, which the rich man escapes but the poor man pays—and by referring to corruption in politics which liquor produced.

Northwestern Immigration.

Minnesota and Dakota Still Receive the Lion's Share.

The immigration statistics supplied by A. E. Johnson & Co. touching the settlement of foreign-born people in the Northwest in 1885, show that this section of the country received a larger percentage of immigration last year than for any one time within the past decade. Tickets purchased for them by friends here bring them to a specific destination, the purchase place of the passage, and there were more prepaid passage tickets sent out from the Northwest last year in proportion to the total number of immigrants than for any preceding year. Besides, every prepaid passenger brings several with him who buy their tickets on the other side. The cheap rates from the seaboard to Chicago has also made the Northwestern immigration unusually large, because it gave people with small means a chance to come clear through to the new agricultural country in the Northwest where they could procure land of their own—the great ambition of European emigrants. The lands of Minnesota and Dakota are cheaper than those of Kansas and Nebraska, and this is an inducement which brought many to this section. The report suggests the wisdom of increasing the efficiency of the State immigration department, pays tribute to the excellent character of the German and Scandinavian immigrant, and concludes: "Our best farmers are those that come from the Middle and Eastern States. They frequently give employment to the new comer from the other side, and by their example and assistance encourage the emigrant to greater efforts. Their counsel and advice is of incalculable value to the Scandinavian neighbor. It is the mingling of the foreigner and the native-born—the co-education of their children—that produces our most desirable communities.

OUR BIG OFFER.

As an inducement for settlement of all over-due subscriptions we have made arrangements with Farm, Stock and Home, of Minneapolis which enables us to give that paper free to all our subscribers. At our own expense we have placed a sample copy of that excellent paper in the hands of all of our subscribers and others and we ask them to look it over and if they like it to call and subscribe. We will also accept payment on all back subscriptions at the regular advance rates. We have moreover prepared a list of some of the best papers with which we will club, thus giving our patrons an opportunity to obtain a great deal of reading matter for a little money. You will do well to call at the office of THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and see what we can do for you.

MORSE & MORGAN.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST.

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultrymen, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1 50.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Lyman Anderson and Harriett E. Anderson, his wife, mortgagors, to The Board of Trustees of Oberlin College, mortgagee, dated the 16th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December A. D. 1882 at 2:30 o'clock a. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 66, 67 and 68, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and nineteen dollars and ninety-seven cents ($419.97) and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 15th day of January A. D eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, the sums paid by said mortgagee for taxes and interest thereon and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, lawful attorney's fees in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-four (24,) Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

APPLES IN THE NORTHWEST.

Words of Encouragement From Peter M. Giddeon and John S. Harris.

Farmers Advocate.

Peter M. Giddeon, superintendent of the State Fruit Experimental Farm, at Excelsior, Minn., recently took a trip through portions of Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and thus writes of what he saw and his impressions of fruit growing in Minnesota:

I have been looking around through Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota for live apple trees, and found some though very few that really have life and vigor to live on and bear fruit for years to come. Dead and dying trees were found in profusion wherever I went, and not till I went to C. G. Pattens, of Charles City, Iowa, did I find true encouragement in the form of good sound thrifty seeding trees, yielding as he said, good fruit and large crops, with dead and dying trees all around them. Even the old ironclads were badly demoralized, and the Russians, though the trees were young, but few showed health, and none half so large as seedlings of same age, and but few samples of fruit of even the best of the Russians, whilst seedlings of some age bore in profusion His works show intelligence, care and perseverance successfully rewarded. And if not a mine of wealth to him, certain his trees will do him honor, and perpetuate his name as a benefactor of his race, as generations yet unborn luxuriate on the products of his toil.

Our own new seedlings generally gave us a fair crop this year, though the most of the fruit buds were so near in bloom when winter set in that they were injured, therefore the crop not so profuse as usual. And just before gathering time the orchard was culled of all the best samples, and yet I made a showing at the American Pomological meeting held at Grand Rapids, Mich., in September, that I was awarded a silver medal. We have a nice collection of hardy seedlings of our own growing, of good quality, and in succession from August 1st to March and yearly we are adding to the list, so no one need despair of successful fruit culture in Minnesota.

The ruin of apple trees last winter was a freak of nature never known in America before, and may never occur again. Extreme winters seldom recur in less time than 10 to 14 years, so that those who plant now have a sure chance for a paying investment. For no grain crop will pay such profits in 10 years, as an orchard of Wealthy, Duchess or our newer ironclads, even should it chance to have to be resent at the end of each ten years, which is not likely to often be the case, as no doubt the ordeal of tree killing has past. But be that as it may, it is not likely that we will ever have a harder one than the last, and what stood that no doubt will stand all future extremes, so take courage reset and go ahead. Don't yield at one rebuff and deprive yourself and family of the luxury of good apples.

The ruin of trees is not confined to the Northwest alone, but a wide belt, including Minnesota and Nothern Iowa, and stretching in length to Columbus, Ohio, and further I am not informed. Over that space passed a warm current of air last fall, that started the sapflow, so that some trees in warm soils and situations were in bloom, our own just opening their bloom buds when winter set in. Consequently any tree that could not stand to be froze hard in full sapflow had to die, and therein is the value of our Siberian crops that withstood the ordeal when all else failed around them. And in further proof that it was the warm current that really done the damage, is evident from the fact that other winters equally cold did not hurt the trees, and then too we find that in Michigan and on east and northeast trees were not hurt, whilst the same varieties were killed in States further south, where the cold was not so extreme. Yet no one in Ohio, Indiana or Illinois will doubt their ability to grow apples, will plant and grow with profit the same variety that just killed out, and with our new ironclads, our chances are full better than theirs, and they who are first to plant will reap the surest and largest reward.

Of interest in the same connection, we append an extract from a paper by John S. Harris, of Houston County, this State, read before a late meeting of the Dakota Horticultural Society, merely premising that Mr. Harris is one of the oldest and most practical, intelligent and successful fruit growers in the Northwest:

"Your society starts under more favorable auspices than did ours. In a certain sense we have ploughed the field and sowed the seed for you to reap the harvest. We started without any knowledge of the comparative hardiness and adaptability of varieties to this soil and climate, and our earnest, working members have been, for more than a score of years, conducting experiments the result of which you can now avail yourselves of. We are your near neighbors, and at least as favorably located for fruit growing as you are We have demonstrated that a majority of the favorite varieties grown in the Eastern and Middle States are failures here. We tested them and continued to throw out the worst until we now retain for general planting in all parts of the State only the Duchess of Oldenberg, Tetofsky and Wealthy, the Siberians and their hybrids. We recommend experiments with a few New Russians. The Wealthy is not retained on the list because of perfect hardiness, but because it comes into bearing while very young produces liberal crops of beautiful and good fruit, and may very generally be relied upon to live long enough to be a paying investment. All American varieties of pears, and all varieties of "tame plums" have been persistently tried with us, and are known to be so near a failure that the agent or nursery firm that would sell them to unsuspecting or ignorant farmers are swindlers and ought to be arrested and punished as such. We recommend the planting of the best native plums, which are so universally distributed over the State, and are endeavoring through cultivation to improve them. I believe we have in this native fruit the foundation of the best plum the world has ever known! We have pretty thoroughly tested the American grape, and find we have many localities where, if winter protection is given, they may be successfully and profitably grown. Our soil and climate is adapted to their most perfect development, and we recommend the cultivation of grapes in every locality where the season is long enough and warm enough to ensure their perfect ripening."

FARM NOTES.

THE HOME OF THE HOLSTEIN.

Those who have been across the Atlantic and still another ocean, the German or North sea, one of the most striking features of the landscape, after landing on that wonderfully industrious country called Holland or the Netherlands, is the large and beautiful black and white cattle grazing along the banks of their numerous banks of their canals and lowlands. Here in this moist country grows the very finest of succulent grasses. The lowness of the country topographically necessitates the building of interminable levees to protect their lands from being covered with water and save their crops and grass. It has been a continuous struggle with the German ocean for six centuries to stop its encroachments. Its moist and damp atmosphere has nourished the finest pastures. Here in this land of dykes have flourished one of the hardiest and most industrious people of the world, the Dutch, and here they have raised one of the finest breeds of cattle that is known. We may term Holland the dairy house of Europe. They have supplied dairy products not entirely to their own country but largely to other nations. Dutch milk in London, Brussels, Paris, and many other cities, and Dutch Cheese all over the world. A cow in that country that does not give her five gallons of milk per day is considered only fit to fatten for the butcher, and an animal who gives 10 gallons per day is not an unusual thing. They have bred for quantity of milk as well as for size and weight. Their rule is to select the finest bull calf from the largest and finest milking family, and it stands for the district. The belief in a "survival of the fittest," and the balance goes to the shambles. Under this system a breed of cattle has grown beyond all others in perfection as milk stock. In passing along in the railway car through Holland, Friesland, Holstein, and the Baltic provinces, the appearance of these grand black and white cattle, with their immense udders, is a truly interesting sight, and no American traveling in that country should not fail to avail him self of visiting the dairy farms of that country, the source of so much wealth to those historical people.

UNTAINTED BUTTER.

Customers are great fault finders. They find fault when they do not know what the trouble is, and often when there is no cause of complaint. But if the butter is a little off, somebody must take a scoring besides themselves. We do not blame anyone for finding fault with poor butter, says the Western Rural. Bad butter is about as disagreeable as bad eggs. But we do not insist that the customer shall know where the fault lies before denouncing either the maker or seller. Sometime ago we recomended to a friend to buy a tub of butter that had come under our notice and which was certainly a very fine article. In a couple of weeks we saw him, and he said his wife wanted no more of that butter. She said it was the worst butter she ever had. We became interested and went to his house, and asked the lady to permit us to see how she kept her butter. She took us to a room in which there was a perfume that poured out as soon as the door was opened in such a volume that almost stifled us. In this room she had several jars of sweet pickles, and no one need to be told how these will scent the atmosphere. She had mince meat in the room, also apples and some of them in a rotting condition. In addition to this she keeps victuals, including remnants of the traditional boiled dinner. In short there was enough scent in that room to spoil all the butter in town; and there stood the butter in the midst of it all, uncovered and absorbing outside flavor all the time. No wonder she did not like the butter. She said the butter was all right at first; but that "it did not keep." We tried to explain the dficulty, but were not sure that we made any impression.

Now, the influence that spoiled the butter in the city will spoil it in the dairy. There is no use trying to have good sweet, clean butter, unless our surroundings are scrupuously clean; and usually there is no excuse for uncleanliness. Certainly there is no excuse for making or keeping butter in the midst of uncleanly surroundings.

THE NECESSITY OF SALT.

Says the American Agriculturist: Salt is an indispensable part of the blood, flesh and tissues. An ox will consume two ounces per day, and it is probable that this large allowance—large as it is, compared with usual inadequate supply provided—might be increased with advantage. A large stock ranger or rancher, informed the writer that four ounces per day would be taken for each head of steers in a herd, in localities where the soil was deficient in this necessary substance; clearly a needed article of food, indispensable for the support of the animal system. He moreover stated that he used five sacks of salt for his cattle, where other stock feeders used one, and that this full supply of salt, he firmly believed, was the reason why he had never lost a single head of cattle by black leg (anthrax fever), or horses by colic, or swine by cholera. Perhaps the free use of salt has also been the reason why in 30 years' experience the writer has never lost any animal larger than a chicken by disease. Perhaps a little more attention in this direction might have saved the few fowls which have been lost. For our constant practice has been to give the cows a small handful each twice a day with their food; the horses have always had a similar allowance, and sheep as much, once a week. The pigs have had about as much as the sheep, dissolved in their slop, or added to their other food. Just now, when the prevalent diseases among animals are more rife than usual, this matter has a very timely interest. But as salt in excess is an acrid poison, caution must be used against giving it in excess, especially when animals which have been deprived of it take it with great avidity.

Holstein-Friesians.

What an old Experienced Dairyman has to say about Holstein-Friesians and their Grades.

BELIEVES IN THE GENERAL PURPOSE COW.

An old experienced stockraiser, writing to the National Stockman gives his views upon a subject that he has made a lifelong study, and as it is a subject of vast importance for the farmers of the Northwest to consider what kind of stock will be best for them to adopt we always prefer to give the valuable experiences of those who have tried them than to give any mere theoretic view, however pleasing it may appear. He says:

ED. STOCKMAN:

I wish to say a word on this subject as the cow must be the mother of the stock on the farm, and as the majority of our stock is common purpose stock I will call them by that name. I wish to speak to that class of farmers that make dairying and stock-raising a combined one of the main branches of their business, believing as I do, that the majority of the farmers are of that class. Now, concerning breeds, have we found anything that is equal to the Holstein-Friesians and their grades? With them we have good cows fine steers; fine heifers, in fact, fine stock. If a calf happens to be a male he is worth raising, as he is sure, with good care, to make a fine animal; and if a heifer, with good care in feeding she will make a good cow. As a rule it is not true that every heifer will make a first-class cow. This is true of all breeds. But in the grade Holstein-Friesians we have two chances. If she does not prove good for milk she still will pay to raise, as she will take on flesh readily and will weigh from 1100 to 1400 pounds, and in ordinary times will bring $40 to $70. Now look at the Jersey. If she is not a good milker what is she worth for beef? Weighing only 700 to 900 pounds, and worth from $15 to $30, she has not paid for the cost of keeping, and as for the steers, they are not considered worth raising. Now we want a breed of cattle that we can stock our farms with, and make them pay for raising. It sometimes happens to a farmer as it did in my case this last spring. Out of 20 calves only 4 were heifers. Had I been keeping a stock that the steers were worth but little, I should have had a poor show of young cattle, but as it is I have 20 fine calves from a thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian bull, and I expect to have some good young cattle to help keep my farm stocked. Now I wish to say a word about the "beefy cow" I read so much about in the Stockman. It is not that the grade Holstein-Friesian cows run too much to flesh, but rather that they are not fed enough to furnish milk and beef both. With liberal feeding they will carry enough to sustain their own constitution and respond well at the pail. If with liberal feeding they take on flesh, there is no loss, for she will buy another with her carcass.

As to the idea that if a man wants a cow to make butter he must get one breed, and if to make milk another and if to make beef still another, I would say—we are not all specialists. We don't want to milk the whole capacity of our farms. We must have a cow that will raise a steer as well as give milk and pay her owner 100 cents on the dollar of her cost, and I believe the grade Holstein-Friesians comes the nearest to it of anything we have yet found.

Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excellent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just began a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice recipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady, who would like to see the number containing the first of those series will recieve one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

How Six Girls Made Money.

Marion Edmonds Roe, who wrote the popular articles under the above title, which appeared in The Housekeeper of 1884, begins a new series in the January number, under title of "How a Happy Home was Made and Kept." The Housekeeper has come rapidly to the front, and is now approaching 100,000 circulation. It is deservedly popular, its columns being filled with sound common sense and practical wisdom. Send for January number, which is mailed free to any address by Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 21.

'ROUND HOME.

The train on Tuesday morning was an hour late.

The great sale at Fontaine & Anglim's still goes on with unabated vigor.

H. M. Pierce's card may be found in the columns of THE JOURNAL. H. M. has proved his worth by the success he has reaped in the past.

Dunc Terry has gone to Iowa after a carload of new milch cows and a carload of good work horses. He expects to be away about three weeks.

Ole Bang left last week for a trip through Southern Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin. He goes to look at stock and will be away two or three weeks.

If it is insurance you want drop in and see what H. M. Pierce can do for you. As appears elsewhere, he represents many old and fire-tried companies and is prepared to give great satisfaction.

Wilkinson & Cromb have taken possession of their new quarters in Fournet block and hang out their banner to the breeze in the columns of THE JOURNAL. They are a whole team and will doubtless do well.

There will be a grand ball and raffle of a sofa pillow valued at $20, at Ericsson's Hall, Thursday evening, Jan. 28th. Pillow can be seen and tickets bought at the second hand store. Tickets to dance, including chance on pillow, $1.

A. J. Clark is getting to be the newspaper absorber of the Forthwest. His latest acquisition is the Argyle Banner, which he recently purchased of Brown. He now has control of every paper in Marshall County, but how he is to retain it is a puzzle.

Ole Rudi received last week some photographic views of the residence of his uncle in Salt Lake City. It shows quite a contrast to Ole's prairie home, being surrounded by beautiful shade trees, but in a few years the difference will not be as great if Ole's trees do well.

Phil Porger says: "'Cheesecrys,' (or as you Americans call it, 'Great Scott,') them insurance fellers is one big frauds! I insure mit dot fellers for seven hoondred und they sent me check for two hoondred! I doud like dot! I sue dot fraud concern right away off pretty quick, understand me vell!"

Wm. Ross and W. F. Zwickey returned from the Grand Lodge meeting at St. Paul on Friday. The evening they left, St. Paul was preparing to lay the corner block for the great ice palace and a big time was anticipated. W. F. received the honor of being elected Grand Junior Warden, a fitting recognition of the Northwest.

Archie Shannon has returned from a visit to the old folks at home in Ontario, and reports having had a splendid time. He says, however, that he prefers Crookston as a place of residence, while the old country will do as a place to visit occasionally. Business is pretty slow there, and while it is not the liveliest here that ever was, it is a decided improvement.

On Thursday evening last H. M. and Mrs. Pierce entertained a large number of their friends at progressive euchre. Their large and beautiful house was crowded to its utmost capacity with a happy throng and all enjoyed the event exceedingly. Mrs. Reilay and Mrs. Adams took the ladies' prizes and Messrs. DeCamp and Palmer the gentleman's. The season was one long to be remembered.

At the last session the Board raised the salary of the County Attorney to $1,200. We have since got onto the reason. The day it was done Leo, in going up to the Court House, froze his countenance solid, so that the genial smile he had on when he left his office remained immovable all day. The accident also gave him cheek enough to demand a raise and the Board had not the heart to refuse.

Happy Cal Wagner appeared at the Opera House on Saturday evening last and was greeted by a full house. Happy Cal is a host in himself and Sam Price did well as "Bones." The house was kept on the broad grin during the most of the performance. The company is not the best one "Happy Cal" ever introduced but was probably as heavy as he could afford to take to the Pacific coast, whither he is going.

According to the report of H. A. Mason, signal service observer at Crookston, the average temperature for November was 30.2 above, and for December 16.2 above. This does not look like the coldest country in the world. But very little snow fell during the two months, not enough to make good sleighing nor enough to spoil the wheeling. The month of January, so far, has been no improvement in this particular and will not average colder than December.

The entertainment at the hall last Friday evening was a very pleasant affair and passed off smoothly. Each and all did their part nicely and the declamation by little Miss Gracie Perry was remarkably well rendered and brought the house down. Little Miss Alma Fontaine sang her little song sweetly and well, eliciting hearty applause, while "The Drunkard's Wife," by Miss Una Copeland, was eloquently rendered. That clog dance was not almost as good as the clog dancing of Wagner's troupe.

Wm. M. Box, of Warren, was in the city this week.

R. B. Reilay returned to civilization again this week. He will remain a week or so and then goes to Philadelphia to live.

Fontaine & Anglim have a neat little machine that measures and winds cloth as accurately as a $1500 clerk. It comes handy when taking an inventory of stock.

A. G. Gallasch and his sister, Miss Jennie, started for their old home last evening. They will take in the ice carnival at St. Paul. A. G. intends to be away about a month.

John Watts has gone to Clinton, Ont., to his old home, and don't know whether he will return or not. We would not be surprised to see him again with the little birds of spring as smiling as a basket of chips.

The Grau Opera troupe will appear at the Opera house on Saturday evening next in the Mikado. This company comes highly recommended. Tickets for reserved seats $1. Now on sale at Berthiaume Bros.

Edward Carey has been appointed city scaler by the Mayor, to attend to the measurement of all wood and the weighing of all hay and straw coming to this market for sale. Mr. Carey can be found on the corner of Main and Robert Street, from 8 a. m. to 12 and from 1 to 6 p. m.

If any JOURNAL readers are disposed to grumble about this country they should read an extract which we are permitted to copy from a letter recently received by Mr. Knuppe from a Polk County man who is spending the winter in Illinois. By its tenor one would get the idea that there are worse places than the Red River Valley.

Terry & Collins a short time since brought in a car load of cows; they have sold them all out and Dunc has gone after another load. The secret of it, seems to be that the boys get only the best cows and sell them at reasonable figures. "Wait till the bull-dog dies, Maria," or in other words, wait till Dunc gets back and go and get a choice cow.

Phil Porger complains bitterly of the manner of doing business conducted by the Continental Insurance Company in matters of hail insurance. He says that he insured for $700 and the company sent him a draft for $200 to call it square. He says that he indignantly returned the check and will sue them for the full amount if they don't get nearer the figure than that.

Thirteen Towns: Notwithstanding the scarcity of snow Mr. T. B. Walker will procure the 40,000,000 feet of logs he proposed to get this winter. Monday night he had 8,000,000 feet banked, and he is now rolling them in at the rate of 6,000,000 feet and over per day. He has 101 four horse teams and 600 men engaged in cutting and hauling logs, and with fifty-two days of favorable weather he will easily bank the remaining 32,000,000 feet. The vast amount of money expended in procuring such a crop of logs would surprise the most sanguine person. Mr. Walker is also expending a large amount of money in repairing dams preparatory to driving this vast amount of logs.

The farmers' meeting at Moorhead did not amount to much in point of numbers, but made up in interest. There are a few earnest workers among the farming class who are laboring earnestly to arouse a sufficient amount of interest to induce the farmers to awaken to their own interest and organize for self-defence. As the case is to-day the farmer is entirely at the mercy of the speculators who, by banding together, are able to so control the movements of the market as to place the prices within their own control to a great extent, and to thus reap the benefits that the men who did the work necessary to produce the wheat is justly entitled to. Now, if the farmers of the country were only organized they could easily swap places with these fellows and control their own market. We will suppose that a National organization of farmers was in existence. All of its doings would be known to every farmer through his town organization. We will call the organization "The Farmers' Alliance." The Alliance in such a case as this, when there is too great a surplus of wheat in the market, would advise the sowing of a less quantity of wheat, say one-third less, one-fourth less or one-half less. The result would be, that every farmer would act in harmony with that advice and the next crop would be reduced by just that proportion and the price would be enhanced in due proportion. This state of things can never be accomplished under the present system, (or lack of it). And there are a thousand other ways by which the farmer could derive incalculable benefit. Some may say that they could not obey the mandate of an alliance to sow so many acres and no more because they are obliged to raise all the wheat they can to pay their debts, and they are obliged to sell just as soon in the fall as possible for the same reason. If a farmers alliance was in existence the alliance could readily find a way to dissolve every objection of this kind that ever could arise. "In union there is strength" is just as true with the farmers to-day as it was in old colonial times when a mere handful of struggling patriots broke the bonds and released themselves from the toils of a powerful nation in the face of what in all reason seemed insurmountable difficulties. What the farmers need and all they need to render them masters of the situation is organization.

Mr. E. C. Davis obtained judgment against the city in the sum of $25 for services as engineer.

Farmers should not lose courage by the antics of the speculators. The market is coming out all right.

There will be a grand carnival on roller skates at the opera house, on Thursday, Jan. 28th, in the evening. A good time is assured.

Mr. J. C. Huyler has been elected to the position of alderman in the Second ward in place of Paul Bataglia who has removed from the ward.

Hon. H. Steenerson has gone to St. Paul in the Kundert matter. Somebody has been trying to hab-'is-corpus and Steenerson goes down to see about it.

It is reported that the Manitoba road has purchased the franchise of the Grand Forks, Crookston & Duluth railroad company and intends to build the line next spring.

A musical convention will be held in this city next week by Prof. Gutterson, of Owattonna, to close with a grand concert at the opera house on Friday evening. A rare opportunity is thus afforded our citizens for musical culture.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Isaiah Gervais has been seriously ill during the past two weeks, but is again able to be out. Mr. Gervais has been very unlucky the past two years, having been dangerously ill three times during that period.

Jim Creighton says progressive euchre is no where beside the little game of cards he has discovered and can play better than the man can that made it. For full particulars, (and a full hand) call on Jim. He has to have a new pocket book to get one big enough to carry the money he is willing to risk on the game.

Jud Carruth was beaten in the race at Fergus Falls by about two feet. Both used the ball-bearing skates but Jud had only received his just before the race while Bromley was perfectly familiar with them having practiced with them a great deal. Jud will try the Winnipegers a whack and has gone there for that purpose.

County Treasurer Lucken says these are cold days to pay personal taxes but it will be a cold day indeed if you neglect that important duty until the spring time comes; on March 1st spring commences. On that day they will spring a ten per cent. penalty and if that don't fix it on April Fool day the business goes into the hands of the Sheriff and—"the Lord have mercy on your soul!"

The Council publish an ordinance establishing a public market and locating it on Main Street between Robert Street and the river; to appoint an inspector whose duties shall be to inspect, weigh and measure all wood, hay or straw; shall collect from the owner thereof ten cents for each load; provides further that any person who shall sell without said inspection shall be punished by a fine not greater than fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

The city council at its last regular meeting passed an ordinance establishing the wood and hay market on Main Street from Robert Street south to the river and embodied in the ordinance the appointment of a scaler, whose duty it shall be to measure all wood and weigh all hay offered for sale, and made it compulsary on the part of all persons offering such for sale to produce the scaler's weight or measurement of each load so offered. The scaler to receive a compensation of 10 cents per load for all weights and measurements to be paid by the person offering the hay or wood for sale.

F. T. Haseltine, the Crookston nursery man, has gone to Madison, Wis., to enjoy a well earned rest of a few weeks with his family. F. T. has worked hard during the past season, has done a big season's work and is prepared to enjoy his furlough. During his absence his business will be in charge of a good man so that his patrons will not suffer by his absence. He informs us that he has made large plans for the coming season and expects to do double the business he ever did. Upon his return, which will be in a few weeks our readers will be duly informed as to that portion of his plans which concerns them. All business communications should be addressed to him at Crookston and they will receive prompt attention.

The clipping which we take from the Grand Forks Plaindealer seems to justify the prediction which we made last week that the drop in the price of wheat was brought about solely for the purpose of freezing the farmer out, but Nature comes to the rescue and now comes the report of bare fields and extreme cold weather in the winter wheat belt and the probability that great damage will result. Add to this the probability of a complication that will exclude the India wheat from the English market and we have the prospect again good that wheat will be exceedingly good property before another harvest. It now seems beyond a peradventure that the late unpleasantness was solely in the interest of the bear side of the house, because in fact of all the most strenuous efforts to depress the price it has ruled firm and even made a slight gain. Speculators can do a great deal but it would seem that there is a limit even to their power.

Where Did they Come From?

Chris Houston tells us that he has found small fish in his watering trough, and can account for their presence there only upon the theory that they came from the flowing well. The fish are from 2 to 2½ inches long. Chris has captured a few of them and they appear to be as lively and healthy as they make 'em. This looks like a fish story, but the fish are a stubborn fact and came from somewhere.

Wheat will go Up.

But it may be not until it is all in the hands of the speculators. They are getting in a hurry to secure it and are beginning to squeeze the farmers out of the deal and as soon as that is done we shall see wheat higher. It is not for the interests of the monopoly to have it down so low forever and it can't be long now before they will be as anxious to see it come up as anybody and then they will begin to lay the wires to that end. All who have wheat to sell should hang onto it now with a firmer grip than ever and not allow the grand bluff which the monopolists have put up to accomplish its purpose.

The following is a copy of part of a letter received by John Knuppe from Mr. J. A. McKibben, who has a farm near Euclid and who went back to Illinois last fall to spend the winter and buy stock to bring up next spring. The letter is dated at Dakota, Stephenson County, Illinois, Jan. 12th, 1886:

"Yours came to hand some time ago which found us well as usual. We have had three weeks of mud and rain here, until the last week the cold wave struck us and the mercury stood 27 below and has stood from 6 to 20 since. Such weather is enough to kill any one. We can hardly wait until spring comes as we are so anxious to get up to the farm again. Times are close here; wheat 60 cents; oats 25; barley 35; corn 28; rye 50; potatoes 50; hogs $3.50 per hundred; beef 5 cents by the quarter and hay $5 per ton."

Our little burgh presented a lively scene just before Christmas, and judging by the amount of Christmas goods sold, every one must have been remembered by Santa Claus.

The Christmas tree was a success, but owing to the crowd, only part of the programme could be carried out. There were many presents. Mrs. Kankel and Mrs. Sohler each had a fine organ. Mrs. Gilmour a fine hanging lamp, and others too numerous to mention.

School commenced, under the management of Mr. Hall.

A fancy masque ball came off last Tuesday evening. Your reporter was not there, but from report it was an enjoyable affair. Mr. Owen Nelson was dressed as an officer, Mrs. Della Gilmour as a bride, Miss Alice Gilmour as a black domino, Masters Chas. and Otto Kankel and Fred Barholz dressed as little girls and they made a decided hit. Mr. Kankel was resplendent in a variegated suit of blue and yellow, and a plug hat. Messrs. A. O. Solem and Gene Winslow made decided hits in Ethiopian characters. Mr. Sohler claims his costume was the most easily recognized on the floor, as he was dressed to represent "Old Man Sohler." There were so many other nice costumes that I cannot describe them.

Condemnation proceedings against the lands over which they could not secure the right of way, have been commenced by the Duluth & Manitoba Railway Company. They evidently mean business.

OLD SLEUTH.

The new market place suits everybody, apparently.

Lee & Herrick will close their mill today, for awhile, owing to their inability to get wheat enough to run it.

Robert Houston & Co. are putting up their new quarters preparatory to receiving their new goods, which will be along about the 1st of February.

Vicks Floral Guide for January is the handsomest number ever issued even by that enterprising firm. It contains 150 pages of interesting matter relating to the garden. A description can better be had by reviewing the work which can be had of the publishers, at Rochester, N. Y.

A man named Draper has been indulging in a little crooked foolishness "against the peace and dignity of the State of Minnesota in such case etc." and skipped the tra-la-lee. Getting wind that the aforesaid Draper's wife was about to travel for her health and take her family along—what there was left of it after the head broke off—Ed. Charboneau resolved himself into a "shadow"—(a healthy shadow, he) and took the same train with the lady. We can imagine the scene when husband and wife meet—tears of joy, kisses, greetings, constable, warrant, arrest, separation, bastile, trial, more bastile—curtain.

The Longfellow entertainment, at Carman, Friday evening Jan. 22d. The exercises will consist of recitations, including Hiawatha's Wooing; The Wreck of the Hesperius; a dialogue from his New England Tragedy, John Endicott, and songs, among which will be the Day is Done, The Bridge, Good Night, and also a Sketch of his Life. The instrumental music, will be presented by Mrs. Milne on the organ, Mr. McGregor on the violin, and we hope to have one of the best pianists at the piano. Mrs. Jessie McLean formerly of your city has consented to greet her old friends once more with song. Altogether a good time will be enjoyed. Come one and all. Exercises to commence at 7:45 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

St. Paul Globe.

It is secretly whispered that J. J. Hill, President of the Manitoba Railway Company, has purchased the franchise of the Grand Forks, Crookston & Lake Superior Railway Company, and the line the Manitoba Company intends building from Crookston to Duluth will be built on this charter. The Grand Forks, Crookston & Lake Superior Railway Company was organized with a capital stock of $2,000,000 January 12th, 1884, by Crookston & Grand Forks parties to construct, equip and operate a main line of road from the west bank of the Red River, in Polk County, by the way of Crookston to Lake Superior, with a branch of said road to commence in range 44 and run in a southwesterly direction to a point on the west bank of the Red River in Norman County.

Fairfax, Jan. 19th, 1886.

EDITOR JOURNAL;—Again, in your last issue appears those "opinions on wheat" given by Annex, which are becoming to the farming community ubiquitous, given free gratis. Premature as they were when first they appeared in the JOURNAL; and it is not hard for the farmers to divine the motives for which they are given from week to week, as the game progresses, owing to the fact that farmers who have stored wheat in the various elevators, and drawn a certain per cent upon the same, are now being notified, that if they do not call and put up a margin on their wheat, thus stored, they will loose ownership of the same. Preconcerted as the game is it can not but place those who have stored and drawn certain amounts upon their crop, otherwise, than in an unlooked for financial embarrassment to nearly every farmer in the Northwest. As it most truly has became a game of freeze out on the part of these monied gamblers who are forcing a one-sided game upon the farmers, which at the most, need but last a few weeks and every farmer, except a few, who are able to put up the margin demanded by these combined workings of these monopolists, who have concentrated themselves together to force the market down; and in this underhanded manner gain absolute ownership of the wheat of the Northwest. That by the true visible supply, it can be seen, by common reasoning that after the home stomach is supplied, there will be no great surplus of wheat for those Chicago bulls, to get hold of and keep for several years until it gets musty, to be used in the future, by more musty minded wheat opinionists—and that after this scheme is worked, it is pre-evident, that those high prices looked for, will be realized; but by these gamblers, who will have gained ownership of the larger share of our wheat by this unexpected turn of the game, by making a one-sided game of freeze out, and having the power, of throwing the producer out, by running in a cold band of their own dealing. And as to that foreign demand which one of the "opinionists" speaks of so disparagingly and also other imaginary things, which they are, or were trying to use in favor of the farmers, to influence us into marketing our wheat at the mill, so as not to have us be the losers, which is very kind—but your shallow game did not succeed up to your sanguine expectations, I think; and it will not surprise us in the least, that in the very near future you will have the chance and pleasure of paying those prices that you looked for at the beginning of the season. One of the opinionists, who at the beginning of his career—as the brass mouth piece of the Millers' Association bugle, in giving his opinions on wheat, undoubtedly, thought he smelt good fodder in the distance, takes upon himself the responsibility of answering my communication of two weeks ago, and in a long winded endeavor tries to explain the motives for which they gave their opinions, to which he signs himself ANNEX, which we think is very appropriate, which every farmer thinks who has had ocasion to once sell to one of you local buyers a load of our No. 1 hard wheat, and received the usual allowance of opinions, (which were given free of charge) along with weights and dockages, makes them truly think that you are annex—annexed to the Millers' Association of Minneapolis, which ever since your opinions appeared in print, we have all had the horrible suspicion that you are an emissary of Charlie Pillsbury. Annex states that the farmer used some pretty severe language, which I admit, but it is my intention to use more of and shall in my next communication endeavor to give a complete and full renovation of these manipulations of our wheat markets by these gamblers, if opinions still continue as numerous as heretofore, if the game of freeze out continues. You say that I assert that I must be right, which I certainly think I am right, and further that I give no facts in the case or any statistics, very sorry Annex, shall in this article endeavor to relieve your mind by so doing. Annex further says that he does not profess to be a prophet; but that he based his opinions from every day observation of the market, and from an unbiased market report taken from the Pioneer Press; very good Annex, we take our opinions from the same, only not in that UNBIASED manner that you speak of, and also take, read and go by that Farmers Weekly, that you speak of as being all right in its way, as far as diversified farming is concerned, but you think as to the wheat market, it is not to be followed, in that you are mistaken, acting upon the fact and old addage that "all is fair in war," that that Farmer's Weekly you speak of as not to be a paper to go by, in regard to the fluctuations of the markets, that owing to the gamblings in wheat, which you modestly speak of as fluctuations, and owing to the fluctuations, that same Farmer's Weekly has a man out spying the movements of these gigantic gambling monopolists, which he duly and correctly reports the same to the Farmer's Weekly, which so far has been found to be correct, in its assertions against these monopolies. As to those imaginary statistics, they certainly the outcome of a deluded mind. I would ask you as a sane man and a man of reason, if when you was giving those statistics which certainly are beyond reason, did you for an instant think that they would be believed by a people, who are passably well read upon the wheat market, having had ample chance to keep posted. As we agreed with you, that we also took our views from the Pioneer Press, in order to give you some facts as to the honest standing of the visible supply, (not the imaginary,) supply of wheat on hand and the general standing, we clip the following from the Pioneer Press of the 14th inst:

MOVEMENTS OF THE CROP.

"There was marketed at all stations in the Northwest in 1884, 47,000,000 bushels, in round numbers. There has been marketed this year 35,200,000 bushels. There is now in store in county elevators outside of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, 9,385,000 bushels. Taking the crop at 55,000,000 bushels, and allowing 14,000,000 bushels for bread and seed, there is yet remaining in farmers hands to come forward only about 6,000,000 bushels, making the total in country elevators and to come from farmers about 15,000,000 bushels.

Crop of 1885	55,000,000
Amount marketed up to Jan. 1, '86	35,200,000
Deduct for bread and seed	14,000,000
Balance left in farmers hands	5,800,000

The following table shows the available stocks:

In Minneapolis	6,162,752
St. Paul	1,200,000
Duluth	5,150,000
In country elevators	9,385,030
In farmers hands	5,800,000
Total amount available for milling and shipment from now until new crop	27,732,782

It is safe to say there will be shipped from Minneapolis during the next eight months 2,000,000 bushels and from other points in the state as much more, making 4,000,000 that will go out of the State, exclusive of the Duluth shipments. Duluth has 5,000,000 bushels, and will probably receive 2,000,000 bushels more. None of this wheat will be available for mills in the state, as it has all been sold to Buffalo and other Eastern millers. This makes a total of 11,000,000 bushels, which, taken from 27,734,000 bushels, the total amount available, leaves only about 16,000,000 bushels, from which all the mills in the state must obtain their supplies from now until harvest.

REQUIREMENTS OF THE MILLS.

The mills of Minneapolis alone have a daily capacity of 28,000 barrels of flour, or 126,000 bushels of wheat. If run at two-thirds of their total capacity they will require 2,200,000 bushels per month, or over 17,000,000 bushels before the new crop comes in. Last year the mills made 3,245,000 barrels of flour from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1. This required 15,000,000 bushels of wheat in round numbers. Should they make the same amount this year there will be left only 1,000,000 for consumption of mills outside of Minneapolis. It is estimated that these outside mills in Minnesota and Dakota makes as much flour as the Minneapolis mills. It does not seem probable, therefore, that there will be any great surplus of spring wheat after the mills have been supplied; but on the contrary there will be an actual shortage."

Annex, the statistics given above do not seem to be of the same meaning that you in your imaginary mind gave last week, trying as you was, to explain, but what it was, is only left to the conjecture of a people, to be hoped that the source from which the ficticious statistics comes, may be considered, as the declaration of war; and that war cloud you speak of across the waters, as having blown over, and left us with no foreign demand, I agree with you Annex; that that war cloud did blow over, and that it blew to this side of the waters, and has been gathering threateningly for several months against these gigantic monopolies, who are manipulating the wheat market, in such a manner that is bringing ruin to the producer, also disaster to all other legitimate business.

Against Wheat Gambling.

Ed. Plaindealer.

Whatever of sectional differences and the strife of political factions may divide our people, the common wealth of our new northwest should engage the united support of all classes. That great danger threatens the agcultural producing portion of our land, from gambling in options of its chief products no thinking man will undertake to question. It is a well known fact that gambling in wheat options in Chicago, or at least the options in wheat alone exceeds by several million bushels, the combined aggregate of all the wheat in the United States now on hand. What is the result? Gambling in options of wheat absolutely worthless now in Chicago and New York elevators, and the invisible or non-existing wheat for which options are out, has brought this country face to face with impending danger to all legitimate interests. It is said that $40,000 has gone from circulating medium from this city alone for wheat options during the past three months. Who has been benefited by this drain? Has it been the legitimite business interests of our community? Not by any means. Then, where has the money gone outside of the commission paid to the brokers? The answer must be, to the monopolies, engaged in the conspiracy to down the deluded option dealer, producers and to line the coffers of the conspirators. Who are the conspirators who seeks to impoverish our country to satisfy the grasping of avaricious greed? The answer must necessarily come—the capitalists of New York and Chicago, backed by the Miller's Association. Some say "Oh! it can not be the Millers' Association have had anything to do with it, because they entered into an effort to break the combination existing in Chicago some six weeks ago." Is that so? How and for what purpose was that widely published effort made public? Simply this: The Millers' Association had entered into a conspiracy to issue blank notes to all elevator corporations subject to its rule, on which the deluded farmer should borrow a certain per cent. of the market value of his wheat and when at any time the elevators, really the Millers' Association, should deem themselves unsafe in the advance, they could dispose of the wheat upon which the loan was made, unless a sufficient margin should be forthcoming within the time designated by the elevator, or in fact the Millers' Association. The conspiracy in its progress prematurely forced the wheat market down and the predetermined program to unload the wheat upon which farmers had secured loans, was exposed and the whole country became alarmed, and on the verge of exasperation, when a halt was called. The agents of the conspiracy halted and published to the world the great battle going on between the Minneapolis Millers' Association and Chicago capitalists to break each others backs, the Association posing as the friend of the producer. These and other similar operations continued until the existing exasperation of an indignant people became allayed when the pre-arranged course of the conspirators was again resumed and dragged every other legitimite business interest of our country face to face with an impending crisis. Is it not time, then that the people should unite in their might to secure a remedy such as shall prevent the possibility of such conspiracies against their common weal.

Very truly yours,
W. T. COLLINS.

The Squeeze Commenced.

Plaindealer.

Notices are now being sent out to the farmers who have stored wheat in the M. & M. elevators and have borrowed money on, they must call and put up a margin or the wheat will have to be sold, as per cute little provision on the back of their wheat tickets. The elevators deeming themselves unsafe. There will be going up a howl out of the North west that can be heard to the Gulf of Mexico during the next few days, but there is no use kicking. They are simply resuming the squeeze where they left off a month ago, and were forced to give it up until the combination could be worked so as to shoulder the blame on somebody else. The matter was so thoroughly ventilated then that the scheme was dropped, but now they have covered their tracks well, and heaven only knows where it will end. There is one thing certain—by manipulating the market the conspirators are simply carrying out a preconceived plan of robbery, and it will unquestionably place many Northwestern farmers in a financial plight beyond all hope of redemption.

INTERESTING TO GARDENERS.

A new Radish has just been introduced to American gardeners, which, if possessed of the points claimed for it, and we have no reason to doubt it, every gardener in the United States will want to try. The introducers exercised their usual care before recommending it, distributing small quantities of seed among the leading gardeners of Rochester in the spring of 1884, that they might be assured of its retaining the good qualities exhibited in the first experiment. The Floral Guide says of this Radish, which is named "Vick's Early Scarlet Globe Radish," that the unanimous testimony of those who tried it is that it is the earliest and best variety for forcing, and in color, also, the handsomest; mild in flavor, crisp and juicy, able to stand a great amount of heat without becoming pithy, and will prove an excellent radish for garden culture. If our readers want to learn more of this new radish, we would advise them to send ten cents to James Vick Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y., for a copy of the valuable Floral Guide. The amound may be deducted from the first order. It is a wonderful as well as beactiful work, of 150 pages of instructive reading about flowers and vegetables, with a thousand illustrations.

Wheat in Minnesota and Dakota.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 18.—A statement is made of the amount of wheat marketed, in store and yet in the farmer's hands in Minnesota and Dakota, compiled from reports from 1,200 elevators and warehouses in the State and Territory. From the best information obtainable, the wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakota for 1885, was 55,000,000 bushels. Crop in the State and Territory in 1884 was 63,000,000 bushels. There was marketed at all stations in the Northwest in 1884 47,000,000 bushels in round numbers. There have been marketed this year 35,000,000 bushels. There is now in store in country elevators outside of St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth 9,385,000 bushels. About 16,000,000 bushels may be allowed as remaining in the hands of the farmers for home consumption and for seed. This would leave only about 6,000,000 bushels in the hands of the farmers for sale. This with the 9,000,000 bushels in the country elevators would make only 15,000,000 bushels yet to be placed on the market in Minnesota and Dakota, an amount much smaller than has generally been estimated. There can hardly be a surplus, and if the mills continue making flour at the rate of last year there will be shortage before the new crop comes in. Estimates show that the farmers in the western part of the State and the Territory where the bulk of the wheat is raised, have freely disposed of their crop, while those in the southern part have been very slow to sell. The total available stock for milling and shipping is 27,734,782 bushels, but as a large amount of this has been sold for shipment eastward, there can only be the 15,000,000 above estimated for the use of the mills until the new crop comes in. The mills in Minneapolis alone used this amount last year from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, and mills outside of the State and Territory used as much more.

THE RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

THEIR COURSE CRITICISED.

MOORHEAD, Special Telegram, Jan. 15.—Last evening farmers and others identified with them in sentiment and interest met here. Hon. H. G. Stordock was elected chairman and L. Osborn secretary. Speeches were made by a large number. They embodied experiences of producers and others relating to the operation of new railroad warehouse laws. The sentiment of the meeting was that both laws are good and just, but their full benefits have not been applied. They held that the commissioners had not exercised some of their plainest and most salutary powers, among which is the power to say to railroads that the charges for transportation of grain and other freight over the two roads through this section was unreasonable, and should be made reasonable by reduction; that they had permitted certain elevators to have the benefit of State inspection and weighing without requiring such elevators to take out licenses and comply with the law, which had worked an injury upon Duluth, where all the elevators had been obedient to the law; it also worked injury to producers in that it had destroyed in some respects the advantages of equally competing markets. The following committee of five was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the sentiments of the meeting in these regards: Lyman Loring, George N. Lamphere, A. M. Burdick, Hon. Charles Canning and O. G. Farsdale. The committee met this morning and reported the following, which was unanimously adopted by the meeting to-day:

Whereas, There has been no material reduction in freight rates on wheat, the great staple product of this section, to terminal points for the last ten years; and, whereas, the volume of business of the railroads has increased in a manifold degree during the said period; and, whereas, the chief industry of this region has been, from various causes, greatly depressed for the last two or three years; and, whereas, the railroad commission created at the last session has the power to say what rates are unreasonable on railroads in this State; and, whereas, it is known to be the universal sentiment of the wheat growers of Northwestern Minnesota that the rates for the transportation of wheat to the terminal points are unreasonable and extortionate; therefore,

Resolved, That this meeting respectfully requests that the commissioners shall determine whether or not the present rates are unreasonable, and if found we demand that the said commissioners shall require the roads to make rates reasonable.

Whereas, Only two elevators in Minneapolis and none in St. Paul have complied with the requirements of the warehouse law, and State inspection and weighing have been applied to elevators which have disregarded the law, which law we regard as just to all parties concerned, therefore,

Resolved, That State inspection at any but licensed elevators is a direct violation of the said warehouse law, and we demand of our commissioners to compel these warehouses to take out license or withdraw the State inspection service therefrom.

Resolved, That if the grain law cannot be enforced according to its intent, as we understand its provisions, it is the imperative duty of the government to call an extra session to amend the same; and in case the government will not meet the wants of the people in this respect, it is the sense of this meeting that the farmers should organize and build small shipping warehouses and ship their wheat to those elevators only that comply with the law.

On motion of F. J. Schreiber the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a delegate convention, composed of three or more delegates from each county in the Fifth Congressional District, be called for the 3d, 4th and 5th of March next, to meet at Erickson's hall in the city of Moorhead, to take such further action in regard to this and other matters of interest to the farming industries of this district as may at that time be deemed to require action or discussion, including efforts to secure a competitive market for grain and appropriations for drainage. Resolved, further, that we extend an invitation to the board of trade of Duluth to be present by committee.

The following resolution was also adopted:

Resolved, That the secretary of this meeting shall forward a copy of these resolutions each to Gov. Hubbard, the railroad commissioner, the board of Duluth, the chamber of commerce of Minneapolis and the chamber of commerce of St. Paul.

NEW VEGETABLES.

A splendid trio! Vick's Early Scarlet Globe Radish, Vick's Ideal Dwarf Cauliflower, Vick's King of the Dwarfs Pea. The claim made for the Radish is that of the earliest and best variety for forcing, of handsome color, mild flavor, crisp and juicy, excellent also for garden culture. The introducers are congident the Cauliflower will prove superior to any other, and the claim is based on the following distinct points; Extreme earliness in heading, produces larger and more solid heads, will stand longer without breaking, and most important of all, the protecting habit of growth of the inner leaves, which, growing toward the center, completely shelter the head from the rays of the sun. For the King of Dwarfs Pea, the claim is made that it will fill a place not occupied by any other dwarf. The vines are sturdy and remarkably vigorous, bearing a profusion of pods, which are closely packed with large Peas, while in flavor, it is unsurpassed. We recommend our readers who are interested in gardening to send to James Vick, Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y., ten cents for a copy of the Floral Guide, a beautiful and instructive book of nearly 150 pages about Flowers and Vegetables, and over 1,000 illustrations. The amount paid for the book may be deducted from the first order.

HOW'S YOUR OPTION?

A TIMELY ARTICLE IN FAVOR OF PROTECTIVE LEGISLATION BY CONGRESS.

Against Options.

To the Editor of the Grand Forks Herald.

The northwest, while blessed with all the elements necessary to remunerative returns for the past year's production of crops, is now confronted with bankruptcy for all who have held their grain for a higher price. What are the causes entering into this threatened danger? Simply that the laws of our country permit gigantic monopolies and wealth to combine into conspiracies and gambling in the chief element of this nation's wealth, wheat. If the operations were confined to dealing in actual wheat on hand, it would be bad enough, but during the past three months gambling in options to the extent of nearly double the amount of actual wheat on hand has been going on to the great injury of not only the producer but to every other legitimate business of our country. The gigantic monopolies of New York, Chicago and Minneapolis combining their wealth in these conspiracies of gambling in the chief product of our land threatens this country with grave peril. Is it not time that our people, engaged in legitimate industries, raise their voice and demand of Congress the enactment of stringent laws for the suppression of these gigantic conspiracies against the wealth of our country? Gambling in options in such products as pork, butter, lard and wheat have been of several year's growth, and it has been productive of more wide spread bankruptcy, not alone to the dealers and producers, but to all kinds of legitimate business than has attended all other vices combined of our country. The growth of this great vice, of gambling in options and consequent assumes, from year to year, gigantic proportions and it is now high time that the people arise in their might and demand a halt in the further progress of this withering blight.

Grand Forks Don't Propose to be Left Out in the Cold.

The city of Grand Forks put in a bid of $4,000 for the Territorial Fair, being the largest bid put in. The city of Huron, where the last fair was held, bid $1,000 and got away with the prize; but Grand Forks don't propose to be left out entirely and has gone to work to get up one of her own and we will bet a big red apple that she will get up the best show. She don't intend to confine herself to the Dakota side of the drink, but has invited her neighbors from Minnesota to take a hand and has secured the promise of several big herds of thoroughbred cattle, among the number being Jim Hill's, N. P. Clarke's and others. We congratulate our neighbor upon her pluck and predict for her a grand success.

The following is the list of officer duly elected and installed at the late meeting of the grand lodge A. F. & A. M. at St. Paul: R. H. Gove, Rochester, Grand Master; J. H. Brown, Litchfield, Deputy Grand Master; J. A. Kiester, Blue Earth City, Grand Senior Warden; A. Barto, Sauk Center, Grand Junior Warden; J. H. Thompson, Minneapolis, Grand Treasurer; A. T. C. Pierson, St. Paul, Grand Secretary; George B. Arnold, Kasson, Grand Orator; J. J. Hillman, Winona, Grand Chaplain; J. E. Getman, Dodge Center, Grand Senior deacon; W. F. Zwickey, Crookston, Grand Junior Deacon; S. S. Kilvington, Minneapolis, Grand Marshal; George N. La Vaque, Duluth, Grand Standard Bearer; Henry L. Simons, Glencoe, Grand Senior Steward; O. J. Wood, Montevideo, Grand Junior Steward; A. L. Cramb, St. Cloud, Grand Pursuivant; J. C. Fischer, St. Paul, Grand Tyler.

The following trustees were elected: Henry R. Wells, of Preston; J. H. Thompson, of Minneapolis, for four years; W. D. Cornish, St. Paul, for three years; A. T. C. Pierson, St. Paul, for two years.

The next annual meeting will be held in St. Paul in January, 1887.

We have received the following pieces of music: "Mary Darling Must You Leave Me," by H. P. Daniels. This little song is one of the prettiest effusions we remember to have seen. The words are excellent, while the author of "Silver Threads among the Gold" seems to have written a song which will make him more famous than "Silver Threads" did, and certainly this song is far ahead of that one in elements of lasting popularity. "Little Ah Sid," (the Chinese kid,) by J. P. Skelly. Since Bret Harte unearthed "Ah Sin and his tricks that were vain," nothing on the "Chinese subject" has appeared that is equal to that little song in point of interest. The subject concerns a little "Chinese Kid" who on first seeing an "American Bumble Bee" takes it to be "a Melican Butterfly, which him will katch 'em sure." He does katch 'em, puts the Bumble Bee in the seat of his Jeans, "where he'll mash 'em shure," and shure the Melican Butterfly proves very hot. Get the song and if you don't sing, read the words. They're worth the candle. "Mikado Waltz," by Coote. An arrangement of the most taking airs from Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera. Containing the gems only. All the above retail for 40 cents each, but the publishers offer to mail the lot postpaid on receipt of 60 cents, which is one-half of the regular price. Address Richard A. Saalfield, 12 Bible House, New York.

Vick's Floral Guide for 1886, the pioneer seed annual of America, comes to us this year a real gem, not a dry list of hard botanical names, but over thirty pages of reading matter, among which are articles on Roses, House Plants, Cheap Greenhouse, Onion Culture, Mushrooms, Manures, Young Gardeners, and very interesting reading, followed by about 150 pages containing illustrations, descriptions and prices of seemingly everything the heart could desire in the line of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs, Potatoes, &c. It is a mystery how this firm can afford to publish, and really give away, this beautiful work of nearly 200 pages of finest paper, with hundreds of illustrations and two fine Colored Plates, all enclosed in an elegant cover. Any one desiring goods in this line cannot do better than send 10 cents for the Floral Guide, to James Vick, Seedsman, Rochester, N. Y. Deduct the 10 cents from first order sent for seeds.

"The Feeding of Infants," is the title of an article by Dr. J. Lewis Smith in Babyhood for January, in which the writer graphically describes certain evil effects of artificial feeding, and gives important directions for weaning and nursing. Among other articles are: "The Baby's Mother," by Helen F. Grafton; "Our Baby and How We Undid Her," the first of a humorous series,) by Martha O. Ingles; "Cat-Naps and their Causes," "Baby's Curls," etc., etc. [$1.50 a year; fifteen cents a number. 18 Spruce Street, New York.]

Mr. Chas. Greenhalgh, has been appointed agent for that great work relating to commerce and the industrial arts, entitled "The Universal Assistant and Complete Mechanic," containing 500 engravings and over 1,000,000 industrial Facts, Calculations, Receipts, Processes, Trade Secrets, Business Forms etc., from the Household to the Manufactory. This is one of the most valuable works of its kind ever published, and should be in the hands of every capable engineer, mechanic and business man in the country. It being especially adapted to the use of engineers, and no first class engineer can afford to do without it. The price of this work is very low, only $3, which brings it within reach of all. Persons living at a distance can secure the work by addressing Chas. Greenhalgh, Croookston, Minn. [37 tf]

Seely's Exchange.

The harvest is past, the summer is ended but Seely's good nature has no end. The very choicest of refreshments in my line, including Thomas and Jeremiah and all kinds of foreign and domestic gentlemen always on deck. Now is the time for a nice bowl of hot soup and Charlie is the boy to dish it up. Call and see me, boys. Remember Seely's place, the cosiest little place this side of Chicago. (11-tf)

For the Ladies.

We have made arrangments with the publishers of the Housekeeper, by which we are able to offer that paper as a premium with THE JOURNAL. The Housekeeper, as its name implies is devoted wholly to the interests of the ladies and is highly appreciated where known. We have arranged to have a copy placed in the hands of all our lady readers and if you like it we can supply you with a copy for 1886. In cases where the premium offer has already been accepted we will add the Housekeeper for a trifle. If any of our lady friends fail to get a copy soon and wish to see it a card addressed to this office will secure a sample copy. The Housekeeper is a monthly paper, and is highly prized wherever known.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 21.

The following is the full text of the bill introduced by Honorable Knute Nelson, on the 5th, to open to settlement, the Red Lake Indian Reservation. We publish it in full to give our readers an opportunity to judge of its merits. The copy was sent us by Mr. Nelson, together with all the rest of the bills that he introduced that day:

A Bill.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled. That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, auhorized and directed, as soon as practicable, in person or through three commissioners to be appointed by him, to obtain and acquire for the United States of America, from the Red Lake Chippewa Indians, in the State of Minnesota, their cession and relinquishment, in writing, of all their title and interest in and to said Red Lake reservation, for the purpose and upon the terms hereinafter stated; and such cession and relinquishment shall be deemed sufficient if made by the chiefs or head men of said tribe of Indians in a public council or meeting of the band, and assented to by a majority of the male adults of said band present at such meeting; and the acceptance and approval of such cession and relinquishment by the Secretary of the Interior shall be deemed full and conclusive proof of the assent of said Red Lake Chippewa Indians to said cession and relinquishment.

Sec. 2. That as soon as the cession and relinquishment of said Indian title is obtained, the Secretary of the Interior shall cause so much of said reservation as is agricultural or pine lands to be surveyed as government lands are surveyed; and in making such surveys the surveyor shall carefully ascertain and note and return on the plat and in the field-notes all forty-acre or lesser tracts on which there is any pine timber standing or growing, and which tracts are for the purposes of this act termed pine lands; and upon the completion of such surveys the Secretary of the Interior shall cause the stumpage upon each forty-acre or lesser tract of said pine lands to be estimated and appraised by three competent men, to be appointed by him. Such stumpage shall be estimated by the thousand feet board measure, upon each separate tract of forty acres or less; and such appraisal shall be at the rate of a certain sum per thousand feet, and shall be in no event less than one dollar per thousand feet.

Sec. 3 That after the said pine lands have been surveyed, and the stumpage thereon estimated and appraised as aforesaid, the Secretary of the Interior shall, after giving three month's notice through newspapers of general circulation published at St. Paul, Duluth and Crookston, in said State, through the United States land officers for the district where the lands are situated, offer for sale and sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash in hand, in forty-acre or lesser tracts, the stumpage on said pine lands, with ten years right of removal; but such sale shall not be for less price than the appraised value, nor shall the stumpage on any tract be sold at a less price than two dollars per acre, nor shall more than one-twentieth in acreage or quantity of timber of the stumpage of said pine lands be disposed of in any one year, or otherwise disposed of than in this act provided, nor shall the United States part with the fee-simple in said pine lands.

Sec. 4. That as soon as any of the lands on said reservation other than pine lands have been surveyed, the Secretary of the Interior shall give notice thereof, which said notice shall be published in at least, ten of the principal papers published in the State of Minnesota, for the full term of sixty days from the date of said notice; and at the expiration of said sixty days, the lands so surveyed, and no others, shall be disposed of by the United States to actual settlers only, under the provision of the homestead acts: Provided; That each settler, under and in accordance with the provisions of said homestead acts, shall pay to the United States for the land so taken by him the sum of fifty cents for each and every acre, in four equal annual payments, and, shall be entitled to a patent therefor, only at the expiration of four years from the date of entry, according to said homestead laws, and after the full payment of said fifty cents per acre therefor; and any conveyance of said lands so taken as a homestead, or any contract touching the same, or lien thereon, created prior to the date of such patent, shall be null and void: Provided further, that settlers who have not had the benefit of the pre-emption laws shall be entitled to enter homesteads under the provisions of this act, notwithstanding they may previously have had the benefit of the homestead laws.

Sec. 5. That the funds arising from the sale of the stumpage of said pine lands, and the funds arising from homestead entries, under this act, shall be disposed of as follows: Out of said funds shall first be paid all expenses of the surveys, estimates and appraisals herein perscribed, and the balance remaining of said funds, shall be placed in the Treasury of the United States, and draw interest at the rate of three per cent per anum, which interest, and so much of the principal as the Secretary of the Interior may see fit, shall be by him expended for the benefit of said Indians, for such purposes, in such sums, and at such times, and in such manner as he may, in his discretion, from time to time determine.

Sec. 6. That the said Indians may continue to occupy said pine lands as a reservation, and use the dead and down timber thereon for fuel, until otherwise provided for by law; but they are in no manner to intefere with or hinder the purchasers of stumage in the full enjoyment of their stumpage right; it being the true intent and meaning of this act that the said Indians may continue to occupy and hold the said pine lands as hunting, fishing, and trapping grounds, and for haying and pasturage, until otherwise provided by law; but such occupancy and use to be without any prejudice or hindrance to the rights of purchasers of stumpage.

Sec. 7. That the Secretary of the Interior shall, under such rules as he may determine, make atonements of said lands other than pine lands to said Indians in severalty as follows: To each head of a family, one quarter-section; to each single person over twenty years of age, one-eighth of a section, to each orphan child under twenty years of age, one-eighth of a section; and to each other person now living, when he or she shall have attained the age of twenty years, one-eighth of a section; but such allotments shall be made as to leave the allotees in a tract separate and distinct from and not intermingled with other settlers; and for the purpose of filling such allotments the Secretary of the Interior shall withhold from settlement and entry on the eastern or southeastern side of Red Lake, or elsewhere on said reservation if necessary, a quantity of land sufficient for such allotments so made as herein provided certificates shall issue to the allottees, which certificates shall be of the legal effect, and declare on their face that the United States does and will hold the land thus allotted, for the period of thirty years, in trust for the sole use and benefit of the allottee, or his or her heirs as aforesaid, the land so allotted; discharged of said trust and free of all liens or incumbrances.

Sec. 8. That the provisions made for said Indians in this act shall be deemed and taken to be compensation in full for their cession and relinquishment of all their right and interest in said reservation of the said reservation to the United States of America as herein contemplated: Provided, That except as to the cession and relinquishment and the survey of the lands as provided in this act, none of its provisions shall apply to the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections in each township so surveyed, or to the swamp lands on said reservation, but the same shall be reserved to the State of Minnesota in accordance with the acts of Congress heretofore passed in relation to such lands in said State: Provided further; that in case the Secretary of the Interior in making the allotments provided for in this act shall deem it necessary or proper to allot any parts or portions of said sixteenth and thirty-sixth section or of said swamp lands to said Indians, he is hereby empowered to do so, and thereupon said State shall be entitled to select equivalents therefor.

Emerson International: Mr. A. Rinskopf arrived home last Thursday night from a trip to Crookston, Grand Forks, Devil's Lake City and Neche. He came across country from Neche Thursday afternoon in the stage and nearly perished with the cold, the stage getting stuck in a snow drift and he having to walk half a mile to a house. He reports all the towns mentioned as doing a good business, but prefers Crookston to any of the lot.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultry-men, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the Journal only $1.50.

Cost of Wheat Raising in Dakota.

Northwestern Miller.

We have heretofore given the figures of reputable Dakota and Minnesota farmers on the cost of raising wheat in Dakota, and now present another collation.

In reply to inquiries of the Italian Minister of Agriculture for information, Commissioner Dunlop prepared the following interesting tables, on the cost of wheat production in Dakota, as showing the average expense to the ordinary farmer, based upon actual results as they came within his knowledge, in central Dakota. The expense of wheat raising varies but little throughout the territory, and these estimates, taken in connection with the comments thereon by the Commissioner, will give the non-resident a very correct idea of the cost of lapor and other items entering into the production, harvesting and marketing of an acre of wheat.

COST OF PRODUCTION PER ACRE.

Plowing	$1.50
Seed 1½ bu at 80 c	$1.20
Cultivation and sowing	.50
Harvesting and stacking	$1.25
Threshing and marketing	$1.60

STATISTICS OF FARM OF 160 ACRES.

Plowing 160 acres at $1	$160.00
Seed for same, 240 bus. at 80c	192.00
Cultivating and sowing at 50c per acre	80.00
Harvesting and stacking, at 50c per acre	200.00
Threshing and marketing 3,200 bus at 10c	320.00
Interest on capital invested, $2,000 at 10 per cent a year	200.00
CR.
Crop of 3,200 bus (yield 20 bus an acre) at 80c	$2,560.00
Balance to net prophet	1,408.00
Cost of production per acre (including interest)	$7.20
Cost of production per bu	.36

The cost of production depends upon the methods employed by the farmer, upon his means, and upon the character and extent of his operations. The figures given in the above tables were made up by those furnished by several farmers out of their own exprience in Central Dakota, during the past two or three years, and are based upon what it costs the average farmer who puts in his own time behind the plow, with the help of, perhaps a couple of men to prepare the ground and put in the crop, and who hires his threshing and harvesting done with other machinery than his own.

FARM NOTES.

THE SOFT MAPLE.

Among the timber trees adapted to the Northwest, the soft maple is one of the earliest to propagate and it possesses many characteristics that should commend it to the tree planter. Its light, fan-shaped seed ripens the last of May, when the ground is generally in good shape. The seeds may be picked from the tree as they turn brown, or gathered from the ground when they fall. They should be sown as soon as possible, as they soon loose their vitality. They can, however, be kept for a few days, if kept cool and dry. They should be shaken up and aired every day, as they heat and mould very quickly when closely packed in barrels or boxes. There are about 10,000 seeds to the bushel. If planted in a permanent plantation the seeds may be dropped one foot apart, in rows four feet apart; if in the nursery, they may be drilled thickly in drills four feet apart, and should be covered only about half an inch with loose soil. They will be up in three or five days, when they should be cultivated and the cultivation continued for six weeks. They will make a growth from four to six feet the first season. Planted as single trees on the lawn or street they are usually forked, and easily broken by the wind. If closely planted they grow straight and smooth, and will in ten years, average five inches in diameter, when, by cutting out every other tree, they would give from 30 to 40 cords of wood to the acre, after which they should be thinned out each year. A five acre lot, after ten years, would supply a family, if not cut too fast. Maple is excellent for fuel and makes a fair quality of lumber and will on almost any soil, grow rapidly as long as grass and weeds are kept down.

CABBAGES.

At a farmer's meeting in Boston, Mr. Gregory, the well known seed man, read a paper on "Cabbages and Cauliflowers." From the report in the Ploughman we select a few points. About manure he says:

"If you want a big crop of cabbages you have got to use a big lot of manure. There is no way getting around that. For instance, I have seen sixty tons of cabbages to the acre. Sixty tons means an average of thirty pounds to the cabbage, and 4,000 cabbages to the acre. That takes an immense amount of nitrogen and potash out of the soil. It takes out about 240 pounds of nitrogen and 630 pounds of potash. In other words in order to get that amount of nitrogen, it would require 34 tons of barn-yard manure, and it would take 50 tons of manure for your potash. So you see now what the problem is in your practical manuring—34 tons of barnyard manure for your nitrogen and 50 for your potash. There is where commercial fertilizers come in to advantage. With them you can get just the amount you want and not have to buy a lot of another kind you do not want. That is you can get just the amount of nitrogen you want without any waste. In the use of barnyard manure, you have to waste one element for the sake of getting the other. But in using barnyard manure for such a crop as cabbages, you need not fear that it will be wasted. When I say that I mean this, that we take nothing from the soil. Of course what your soil gets is more than taken out has value for the year afterward. It will be taken out up to such a point, and beyond that you have it still remaining. The crop will only take so much."

In planting he puts the seed in the hill where the plants are to grow, if the land can be got ready in season. He thinks this much better than transplanting.

For the green cabbage worm, he uses pyrethrum, applied with the bellows when the dew is on. He does not know the cause of club root, but finds that it is better not to plant on the same field many years in succession. He advises crossing or mixing varieties, rather than to keep one variety for a long time. He thinks that fair corn land makes good cabbage land; and that grass land for cabbages should be plowed in the spring, as late as possible, so as to let the grass get all the growth it can, as it takes ammonia from the air, which when plowed in, enriches the soil.

UNCOOKED FOOD MOST PROFITABLE.

The Farmers' Club of Elmira, N. Y., several years ago, took some pains to gather statistics from several dairy farms where cows were fed steamed hay and grain, the food cooked and fed in warm stables. A like number of dairy farms were visited where the cows were fed on un-cooked provender of similar character—hay and straw. From all these farms was obtained the records of milk production, and figures approximating accuracy relating to the amount of hay and grain, having reference also to value. When these figures were subjected to analysis it was found that in every instance a quart of milk obtained from uncooked food was produced at less cost than a quart from cooked food, and in the latter case no charge was made for the labor of cutting and cooking the fodder, which are items of some importance. It will be borne in mind that labor is more abundant and fodder higher priced in New York than in states further west.

WHICH STOCK PAYS THE BEST.

The question is often asked, says a correspondent of the Western Rural, "which stock pays the best returns on the farm, cattle, horses, sheep or swine?" and in answering this question properly there are several things that must be taken into consideration. The most important of these are the following: Price and location of the farm, nature of the soil and the number of acres occupied by the farm. These points all have an influence on the profit realized from raising the different kind of farm stock, and must be taken into consideration to make a judicious selection. On most ordinary farms all four varieties mentioned can be raised to an advantage in small numbers, but it is the specialty of the farmer that needs the most attention. This is an important selection to make with all farmers who raise stock, but there are so many modifying influences, so many different kinds of farms so differently situated, and so many kinds of farmers, that it is impossible to answer the question concisely, and it will have to be decided to a certain extent by the farmer himself.

Cattle are quite profitable in all Western states, where the land is not so expensive and valuable for agriculture as it is in the East, while some of the smaller stock can be raised to good advantage nearer the large Eastern markets.

The nature of the soil makes considerable difference. For if a man has a farm composed of rich, level land, not liable to wash, he will, perhaps, find more profit in raising hogs; for on such soil he will be able to raise large crops of corn and clover.

All stock are profitable in their place and after the selection is made the farmer should study the wants of his stock carefully and supply every detail and the result will always be satisfactory.

Northern Grown Garden Seeds.

The Publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., give $1.00 of garden and flower seeds of the subscriber's own selection to every one who subscribes for one year before February 15th, 1886. Send to address given above for copy of the January number, which gives full particulars. Northern grown seeds produce earlier and more vigorous plants, and once tried no others will be used.

The First Lady Gets It.

The publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send it one year free, to the first lady who applies from any postoffice in the United States where there is now no subscriber. Any lady can ascertain whether there are any subscribers to The Housekeeper by asking the postmaster, and if there are none write to the publishers, claiming the prize, sending the addresses of two or three ladies who are good housekeepers. The subscription price of The Housekeeper is $1.00 per year; and it is cheap at that price. Specimen copies FREE.

Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excellent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just began a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice recipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady who would like to see the number containing the first of these series will recieve one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

How Six Girls Made Money.

Marion Edmonds Roe, who wrote the popular articles under the above title, which appeared in The Housekeeper of 1884, begins a new series in the January number, under title of "How a Happy Home was Made and Kept.' The Housekeeper has come rapidly to the front, and is now approaching 100,000 circulation. It is deservedly popular, its columns being filled with sound common sense and practical wisdom. Send for January number, which is mailed free to any address by Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

For the Ladies.

We have made arrangments with the publishers of the Housekeeper, by which we are able to offer that paper as a premium with THE JOURNAL. The Housekeeper, as its name implies is devoted wholly to the interests of the ladies and is highly appreciated where known. We have arranged to have a copy placed in the hands of all our lady readers and if you like it we can supply you with a copy for 1886. In cases where the premium offer has already been accepted we will add the Housekeeper for a trifle. If any of our lady friends fail to get a copy soon and wish to see it a card addressed to this office will secure a sample copy. The Housekeeper is a monthly paper, and is highly prized wherever known.

A Bonanza to Every Farmer.

We offer a premium which will prove a bonanza to every farmer who accepts our offer. Farm, Stock and Home is a Minnesota institution, adapted to our soil and climate, edited by a life long Minnesota farmer and a paper that is invaluable to every progressive farmer. We have made such arrangments as will enable us to give every subscriber of THE JOURNAL a copy of this valuable agricultural paper

FREE FOR ONE YEAR.

This offer must be accepted before January 1st 1886. If you wish to secure lots of reading matter for the coming year subscribe for THE JOURNAL and Farm, Stock and Home at just the price of THE JOURNAL.

A GIFT Send 10 cents postage, and we will mail you FREE a royal, valuable, sample box of goods that will put you in the way of making more money at once than anything else in America. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time or all the time. Capital not required. We will start you. Immense pay sure for those who start at once. STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

Seely's Exchange.

The harvest is past, the summer is ended but Seely's good nature has no end. The very choicest of refreshments in my line including Thomas and Jeromiah and all kinds of foreign and domestic gentlemen always on deck. Now is the time for a nice bowl of hot soup and Charlie is the boy to dish it up. Call and see me, boys. Remember Seely's place, the cosiest little place this side of Chicago. (11-tf)

STOP. Before subscribing for an agricultural paper, consider where it is published and whether the teachings are adapted to the latitude in which you live. Farming in the Northwest cannot be conducted as it is East and be successful. FARM, STOCK AND HOME, of Minneapolis, is edited by the farmers of the Northwest themselves, and is the best, most practical and reliable paper a farmer can have. It is printed twenty-four times a year for only 50 cents; or we will send it and a copy of the JOURNAL for one year for $1.50. [25-tf]

The JOURNAL will club with the following papers at the prices named below:

The JOURNAL and

Farm, Stock and Home	$1 50
Weekly Pioneer Press	2 30
American Agriculturist	2 50
Northwestern Farmer and Breeder	1 75
Breeders' Gazette	3 50
The Independent	4 00
Toledo Blade	2 40
Farmers Advocate	2 50
Farm, Field and Stockman	2 75
Western Rural	2 90

The prices quoted above are for both the JOURNAL and the paper named and are strictly cash prices from which there can be no deviation. All in arrears can obtain any of the above papers, or all, at clubbing rates by paying up arrears and one year in advance.

CROOKSTON, MINN., JANUARY 28.

'ROUND HOME.

Miss Lola Box gave a party to her friends on Friday evening of last week.

R. N. Borden has purchased D. Buchanan's stock of groceries and will continue the business at the old stand.

D. Bray thinks it is no fun to monkey with a saw. One dropped on to him and he feels pretty sore over it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Palmer, of Angus are visiting with friends in the city and taking in Prof. Gutterson's musical entertainments.

John N. Ives, as attorney for Phil Porger has brought suit against the Continental Insurance Company for the amount of Phil's insurance.

A dispatch from the 'peg says that Jud has scooped somebody on wheels. One fellow tried him on and beat Jud by one point—the fellow fainted. Jud don't know how to do that.

The musical convention will wind up with a grand concert on Friday evening of this week. A fine program will be arranged and a good time provided Tickets now on sale at Berthiaume Bros.

The Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office have kindly furnished us with a copy of Sparks' new rulings which will be found elsewhere in this issue. They will be found of special interest to those desiring to prove up.

Doc Henault has been tearing the mouth all out of justice and is about to put in a new one. We trust that this will enable justice to so thoroughly masticate his cases that they will digest more readily futurely. (P. S. We like to forgot to say that G. H. Palmer gets a new set of teeth in the deal.)

We are under obligations to Benton & Waldo for a picture of the big ice palace, now nearly completed at St. Paul. By it we should say that the palace will be a big thing in ice. St. Paul has just laid herself out for a big time, and if she don't have, she will not be to blame. She generally "gets there" when she tries.

The Baptists intend to ocupy their new church building next Sabbath. It is not fully completed as yet, but will be a beautiful structure, when completed. They have labored faithfully to build the beautiful temple, and we are glad to note the success they have so far attained and trust they will strike no snags. The church is heated by one of the new patent Minneapolis heaters.

A. L. Jackson, of Edna, dropped down upon us on Monday, invading our sanctum for a good-natured chat. He has a fine three-quarter blood Holstein bull, which he says beats the world as a roarer—and he is a roaring good animal. He has now quite a herd of cattle that he has raised, and will soon have the boss dairy herd of the county. His experience with stock so far justifies his opinion that stock is better than wheat.

J. H. Hanson, the irrepressible, has kindly sent us a ticket of admission to the big ice-house in St. Paul, together with a program of proceedings. Hanson is the man what the railroads always employ when they want to boom Minnesota, and Uncle Sam hires him when he wants to get up a big show at New Orleans and J. H. can always get there in good shape. The program for the big doin's at the ice-house indicate that J. H. is right on deck as usual and a big time will be had. If we was a John Jacob Aster-house we would like to go down and buy that ice and be happy in the possession of the n-icest house in America.

H. M. Pierce has the warmest stock barn in the county—or, if he hasn't the other one is too warm. His cows just wallow in summer weather in that barn and don't have to make rainbows of themselves trying to extract a bit of warmth from the south side of a wire fence. The barn is by no means an expensive one, but is such as any farmer can have, if he will. Mr. Pierce is one of those men who believe in providing for the comfort of his dumb animals and the creatures all appreciate it; the cows making ample returns at the pail. His Guernseys are going through the winter in nice condition; the five months thoroughbred calf looks like a yearling. (By the roadside, those Guernseys have the appearance of being the boss cows for butter, and H. M. doth affirm by the smoke stack they are.)

A. Gilman was up from Fertile on Tuesday and reports business in his line—loaning and collecting about so-so; more loaning than collecting. He tells us that he will go out to Hill River next week with a party, who go to secure certain rights and privileges for Sohler & Kankle, who intend to build a large flouring mill there as soon in the spring as they can get at it. This they will do to benefit the farmers, who live away in the eastern part of the county and have so far to go to mill. Mr. G. says he fears the new road, for which bonds were recently voted, will not be built for reasons that he does not care to disclose at present. Yet he, with the rest of the people interested, will abide in hope. He says his friends and neighbors are all enjoying excellent health, as if they did not all come [illegible] raising wheat.

The band boys have hired the Favorite rink and will try their luck at it.

Berthiame Bro's are talking of establishing a branch jewelry business at Duluth in the near future.

The committee have reported favorably on Mr. Nelson's bill relating to the Red Lake Indian Reservation.

S. E. Clapin has left Barnesville to its fate and is here, Micawber-like waiting for something to turn up.

It is said that Dr. Nelson and a Mr. Opheim intend to put in a stock of general merchandise at Aldal shortly. Here's "Ho," doc.

Say, Ed., the sidewalk is no place to stack hay on. Aint there room enough on the streets for a load of hay to stand? Or do you have to get it on the solid to measure?

Will Carlton came in from Angus on Tuesday and left for the pinery on Wednesday with feed. He is of the impression that he can make more clean money raising feed for the pineries than he can make in wheat and intends to do it more extensively next year.

The Northwestern Farmer, published at Fargo, is an excellent paper, devoted to the agricultural interests of the Northwest. It has recently been greatly improved and is offered at half price for a short time. Now is the time to catch on. Specimen copies may be seen and subscriptions left at this office.

E. O. Flanders tells us that he has had quite enough of the all wheat system, and that he intends to sell off his surplus machinery more than enough to work 160 acres, and put in 15 or 20 good cows next spring. He had built a large barn for his grain business which will come in good play for his stock. And so it goes and will continue until every good farmer in the county will have a good herd of his own.

"Old man Sohler," as Mr. X. Sohler is called "down to Sohlerville," gave a grand house-warming in his fine new residence, last Saturday evening, which was attended by hosts of his friends from all over the county, lots of 'em coming from Red Lake Falls. We are told that the finest spread of the season was set forth in due time and the way it was "mowed away" was proof positive of its merits. All were well pleased "on this o'casion."

Anent the rumor that Rev. F. K. Roberts had lately lost $1000 on wheat options, we are credibly informed that such is not the case. While we have not had the opportunity to put the question to the Rev. gentleman direct yet we have been told by a gentleman, a particular friend of Mr. R., that the wheat option rumor is all bosh. He says that Mr. R. bought $3,000 worth of wheat recently that will net him a neat little sum at any time he wishes to sell.

H. H. Buchholz, head miller for Sohler & Kankel's mill was up to enjoy city life on Tuesday. He reports grinding brisk nowadays; both mills having all they can possibly do to supply the demand. Farmers come from a distance of over fifty miles east to these mills. The company have a house with a cook-stove, and bunks in it, wherein their customers can spend the night comfortably, when they have to remain over night, and nary a cent to pay. S. & K. are bound to please their customers, if they don't lay up a cent.

It is a pity that so good a troupe as the Oakes Bro's Merrie Makers could not have had better houses than they did in this city and we hardly know how to account for it. It is true that the first night was extremely cold and blustery and on the second they were sandwiched between two big attractions yet, considering the merit of the troupe they certainly deserved a far better reception. The music was exceptionally fine and the acting good. Harry Eades was a whole show in himself and elicited favorable expressions as did the rest. There was a flaw somewhere as Crookston is considered a good show town and has never been known to give the cold shoulder to any as good show was is the Eades'. It is possible that the reason may have been that they were not well advertised.

Ed. Charboneau returned from his detective trip last week without a prisoner. He went to Barnesville on the same train with Mrs. Draper; at Barnesville he took the Fergus line, arriving in Minneapolis long enough to have two policemen at the depot when the main line train arrived. But here he was doomed to disappointment, as no Draper appeared to meet the lady, who purchased a ticket for Watertown, D. T. Ed. concluded he had business there also and went along. He found his man there all right enough but, of course, he had no authority to meddle with him; so he returned to secure proper authority. County Attorney Leo, thinking that one trip was enough expense for the county, to stand insisted that the parties in interest put up for the expense of the second trip. They have not seen fit to do so and unless they do the trip will not be made. Ed. says he can get his man all right if the parties are anxious enough about it to put up the expenses. Draper is preparing to go to Canada and Ed. has a man on watch to nab him when he shows up in Minnesota. Draper is charged with disposing of mortgaged property and should he be brought back it would doubtless go hard with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Anglim give a large euchre party this evening.

D. Buchanan says he shall leave for Duluth in about ten days.

M. E. Bartlett has gone up to his farm in the Thirteen Towns, to see how the sheep prosper.

The recent light snows have greased the track sufficiently to make excellent sleighing, which is heartily enjoyed by all.

Rauenbuehler has rigged up a sewing machine stand into a grind-stone, and is ready to grind knives and scissors at a moment's notice.

The Longfellow entertainment at Carman last Friday evening was well attended, considering the zero, and is pronounced a success.

Mike Leguee sold his two-year old colt to Hon. Jas. Hill, of Wisconsin. The animal brought 15 cents per pound and was dirt cheap at that, Mike says.

The reason Mark Rauenbuehler is kept so busy supplying the demand for harness is because his harness are A No. 1, and his work the best in the city.

Terry & Collins are getting to the front as dealers in stock. They will soon have on hand a carload of good work horses which will be sold on reasonable prices and terms.

There will be a meeting of the W. C. T. U. on Friday afternoon, January 29th, at 3 o'clock, in the Baptist chapel. All the members are earnestly requested to be present as important business is to come before the meeting.

Oakes Bro's gave an entertainment at the Opera House on Wednesday evening last to a small house. Somehow they did not do very well here either time, but their entertainment was a good one and heartily enjoyed by the few who witnessed it.

Alex. McKinnon's appointment as postmaster has been confirmed by the Senate and Mac has been officially notified of the fact, but it don't seem to make him a bit handsomer than he was. Makes him tired though, the way they demand a larger bond.

Without doubt Hoard's Dairyman is the best dairy paper published in the United States. It is devoted entirely to the dairy interests, edited by a thorough dairyman, and no farmer, who is making butter and cheese can afford to be without it. Specimen copies may be seen and subscriptions left at this office.

The coming meeting of the State dairymen at Red Wing promises to one of unusual interest, and all who are interested in their business should make an effort to be there. Some of the most noted lecturers on this topic will be in attendance and the meeting will be one of vast importance. It will open on Feb. 2d.

Mark Rauenbuehler, the Broadway harnessmaker, informs the JOURNAL that he is kept extremely busy keeping up with his orders. He is kept on the jump supplying the demand for new harness and repairing old ones. For a good square deal in harness, and a good honest harness, call on Rauenbuehler, corner of Broadway and Third street.

Norman County Index: Last Tuesday Miss Helen McDonald and Mr. Jacob Snyder, both of this city were married at the residence of the bride's brother in Crookston by Justice Geo. H. Palmer, The happy couple returned to Ada Wednesday evening, and were met at the train by the Ada band and serenaded. They will reside in the Stromme house.

Terry & Collins are not so slow. Realizing the fact that the demand for good milch cows will be great this coming season they have decided to take a hand in supplying that demand. They have already sold one carload this winter and Dunc is now below picking up two carloads more. He will be back in about ten days with a choice lot of milkers to show. The prices and terms will be made to correspond with wheat prices.

Graus' Opera, at the hall last Saturday evening was slimly attended considering the character of the entertainment. The "High Executioner" was immense. His "Willow, tit-willow" brought the house down and had to be repeated several times. "Yum Yum" was—yum! yum!! Her singing is said to rival Kellogg's best efforts. The son of the Mikado was excellently well taken, while the disappointed and heart-broken female who tried in vain to capture him on the merits of her "lovely shoulder-blade," could not have been better presented. The entertainment as a whole was splendid and gave great satisfaction.

The Northwestern Farmer and Breeder, Fargo, Dakota, (now in its fourth year,) one of the best agricultural and stock papers in the Northwest, has temporarily reduced its price to fifty cents a year to more thoroughly introduce it throughout the country. It also offers free to every subscriber until May 31st, 1886, fifty cents worth of fresh garden, flower and field seeds, from the catalogue of the northern seed grower, F. N. Lang, Baraboo, Wis. This is a most liberal offer, for The Northwestern Farmer is now enlarged in size and improved in many respects; it is printed on fine book paper, beautifully illustrated and gives twenty pages of interesting and instructive reading, especially adapted to farmers in this section. Sample copies free. Address Edward A. Webb, publisher, Fargo, Dakota.

Burkhardt & Co. have one ice house filled and another one nearly so. Since they caught onto the idea of running their book-keeper by steam, business has been lively with them.

Fred Dickenson reports the arrival of a bouncing pair of Twin Holsteins—a brother and sister. Fred declares they are the finest calves in Polk County and he don't care where the next come from. He will be prepared to show some handsome stock in a few years. He don't expect to be forever tied to the tail of the Millers' Monopoly kite.

Nelson's bill to establish a northern judicial district with sessions at Fergus Falls and Duluth, meets with general approval here, and would be of immense benefit to this country. As it is now, it is about as unhandy as could well be devised. We trust that the bill will become a law, but have our doubts about its being passed at this session.

Fargo Argus: A gathering of old timers were figuring out the productiveness of the Red River Valley the other day, when one remarked: "Why, there is my old friend Hutchins down the river near Georgetown, has seventeen children; and there is John Miller, who lives on the line between Cass and Traill Counties, and old man Probstfield just across the river in Clay, and Martin Scow down in Noelo township—these four settlers have raised fifty-two children. Martin Scow has a daughter born in Cass County old enough and well qualified to teach.

The Wheat Market.

Since our last issue wheat has made a gain of two cents in this market and more than that outside. It happens, about a certain time every year that wheat in this market does not respond with alacrity to a rising outside market and this is about that time of year. Wheat in Duluth is strong and indicates an early rise. The visible supply is decreasing encouragingly and we see no earthly reason for changing our opinion that wheat, at present prices, is as good property as one can hold. The attempt to freeze out the farmers from the deal does not seem to have been as successful as the speculators desired and everything indicates better prices and better business in the near future.

THORNE'S BLACK FLAG.

This company, which was billed for Tuesday evening failed to show up and we were told as the reason that the Manitoba company would not haul their car for less than seven cents per mile in addition to regular fare for each member. The following from the Grand Forks Plaindealer looks as though there might have been some other reason why the Black Flag failed to wave in these diggins:

"Edwin Thorne and his Black Flag company, in their own special car, with magnificent scenery, etc., etc., which was billed for Gotzian hall last night failed to present themselves, to the disgust of not a few, who had counted on seeing a good performance. Thorne got on a hilarious old tear in Fargo, and a result the house was empty Friday night. Thorne was put into his "magnificent" car and taken to Minneapolis, and Manager Drew was wired here to cancel. Thorne was under contract with Mr. McGuire for the Montana circuit, and it is not known what will be done with that. The eminent actor will be liable to learn the law relating to contracts if he shows up here again. Any man on a starring tour, with Thorne's reputation, that will get so drunk he can't get to the next town, ought to be kept in a cage instead of a private car.

For Sale!

Being about to change my business I will sell my whole farming outfit consisting of good work horses, harness, sleds, wagons, plows, drags, mowers, hay rakes, self-binders and a thousand and one other articles too numerous to mention. Will sell for cash, on time, or trade for good cows. Call on

JOHN KNUPPE,

1842. A PROCLAMATION. 1886.

Know Ye! Know Ye All! Men, women and children—that the great staff of editors, who headed by Dr. George Thurber, have kept the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST AT THE FRONT for twenty-five years are now re-enforced by Chester P. Dewey and Seth Green, the Fish Culturist. We propose to add to the hundreds of thousands of homes in which the

American Agriculturist

is read, and revered from the Atlantic to the Pacific an old time friend and counselor. We are accordingly enlarging the and adding other features, so that it is to be, from this time onward, essentially a HOME PERIODICAL, as well as being devoted to Agriculture and Horticulture. CAN SEE NO GOOD IN BLOODED CATTLE.

Mr. R. Neill writes Farm, Stock and Home from Morrison County, an article that will set every live, progressive farmer who sees it, to thinking, and it should call forth a short reply from every farmer interested in the agricultural welfare of our State, showing facts and figures which prove wherein it does pay to keep the best of everything. We have not space for a reproduction of Mr. Neil's article, but he says in substance that "it does not pay the average farmer to buy good stock because he can't afford to keep stock simply for the glory of it!" True enough, but if the "average farmer" had $1,000 to put out to interest, and there were two banks in town, one with a limited capital would give him 5 per cent, the other with an unlimited capital, rendering his investment absolutely safe, would pay him 10 per cent. interest, which one should he choose? He says "the average farmer" can't make a living in blooded stock. The same amount of feed required to keep poor stock alive will pay a handsome profit, fed to thoroughbreds or high grades. He thinks it is better for the "average farmer" to keep on raising what he calls "native stock," that by giving them the same feed that the thoroughbreds have had FOR A LONG TIME they will AT LAST beat the thoroughbreds. This line of reasoning only shows the superiority of the cattle he condemns, because it recognizes THE FACT that his natives MAY be improved by the very means that long-headed men have adopted and pursued to make the thoroughbreds what they are, and this course has given the improved breeds their power to stamp their improved type on their progeny. He might as well advise farmers to use an old mower and reaper that could be bought for $150, that could be made as good as new by the expense of $150 for repairs and take his own time in the heat of harvest to make the repairs, rather than to buy a new one for $300 that could go right ahead and do twice the amount of work in the same time as the old one would require. As well might he say that the first reaper ever made is better for the average farmer than the perfected self-binder, with all the improvements that years of experience, care and painstaking have given it. But it would be a hard thing for him to prove this to the "average farmer" without more facts and figures than he uses to show that the thoroughbred animal is no better than the scrub stock. He says the "native stock" is good enough. That is a very broad assertion and covers a wide range; it may even include, and probably does, some of that very thoroughbred blood that he condemns, and it is within the range of possibilities, at least, that the particular "native cow" that he calls so good, may be a grade Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey, Guernsey or some other good breed. There are hundreds of grades in the country whose owners know nothing at all about their origin, and call them common natives. They are good cows, but instead of giving the credit to the breed that gave them their good qualities, through ignorance of their origin those good qualities are ascribed to the scrub side of the house, and some writer like Mr. Neill, takes these isolated cases, and through them attempts to show that native scrub stock is better for the average farmer than the best improved breeds. If we allow that theory, we must allow that it will not do for the average farmer to adopt any of the modern improvements in any department of his business, for that theory means that there is no such thing as improvement for the average farmer. He says he claims that the average farmer can get more butter, more cheese and more beef out of the "native cow" than from any fancy breed in the market. If this is true it is important, not only to the "average farmer" but to every other farmer; but unfortunately, Mr. Neill brings no facts nor figures to prove his assertions true, while on the other hand the farmers who own the breeds he condemns, not only bring out an unanswerable array of facts and figures, showing the superiorty of the breeds they raise, but their large bank accounts also show it, and whenever any "average farmer," led by by these evidences is persuaded to go into blooded stock intelligently, you never see him drop the business to engage in the breeding of scrubs again; but you do see him get rid of his scrubs as fast as he can, and make big money by the change of breeds. This is the EXPERIENCE of every intelligent farmer who ever adopted thoroughbreds as against the "observations" of one man who never had any personal experience with the improved breeds, but it is a fact that there are too many Mr. Neills among our farmers that prevents the introduction of the improved breeds more extensively than they are. It is a sad fact that there are hundreds, who like Mr. Niell can not realize the fact that great improvements can be, have been and are constantly being made in their business and hence we see so very many, hampered with the old obsolete ideas of farming which keeps them in utter poverty and will until they learn to keep abreast of the improvements of the age in which they live. Mr. Niell's article all throughout is worthy of no more confidence than is the assertion that he makes as to one particular breed, when he says that "they are not adapted to the climate of Minnesota because they are vereditarily tender," [illegible] by the history of this breed as [illegible] esota, for they are not only raised successfully, but have proved themselves so well adapted to our climate that they are fast becoming the leading breed and are having the best sales, and are giving the best satisfaction of any breed we have. It is a very easy thing to find fault, when a person is so inclined, but it is one thing to find fault, and another to prove your-self right in your assertions.

Court Rules—Minnesota.

Ordered, that the following rules of this court be, and they are hereby, amended so as to read—

Rule 9. The party removing a cause to this court shall, at least one day previous to the argument, deliver to the clerk eight copies—one for each of the judges, one for the reporter, one for the clerk, and one for the state librarian—of the printed case or paper book, and of the assignment of errors, and of his brief or points and authorities. The case or paper book shall consist of so much of the return as will clearly and fully present the questions arising on the review, with reasons of the court below for its decision, if any were filed; also the notice of appeal, and the verdict or finding and judgment, if there be one. The folios of the case or paper book shall be distinctly numbered in the margin. Prefixed to the brief, but stated separately, shall be an assignment of the errors asserted and intended to be urged. Each specification of error shall be separately, distinctly and concisely stated, and the several specifications of error shall be consecutively numbered. When the error specified is that any finding of fact of the court below or a referee is not sustained by evidence, it shall specify particularly the finding complained of. No error not affecting the jurisdiction over the subject-matter will be considered, unless stated in the assignment of errors. On the opening of the argument the other party shall, in like manner, furnish eight copies of his brief, or points and authorities.

Rule 11. At least twenty days before the term of this court at which a cause is noticed for trial by the appellant or plaintiff in error, and in all cases at least twenty days before the first term of this court commencing more than eighty days after the appeal is perfected or writ of error served, the appellant or plaintiff in error shall deliver to the adverse party a copy of the paper book, and of the assignment of errors, and of his points and authorities; and on or before the first day of the term at which the cause is noticed for trial the respondent or defendant in error shall furnish the adverse party a copy of his points and authorities.

Rule 28. Paper books, the assignment of errors, and briefs shall be neatly and legibly printed with black ink on white writing paper, properly paged at the top, with a margin on the outer edge of one inch and a half. The printed page shall be seven inches long, and three and a half inches wide, and the paper page shall not be more than nine inches long or seven inches wide. Each brief shall be signed by councel preparing it, and each paper book and brief shall be stitched together, with its proper designation and the title of the cause printed on the outside.

Land Office Rules.
To Guide Registers and Recievers in Taking and Scrutinizing Proofs.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15, 1885.

To Registers and Receivers and officers authorized to take affidavits and proofs in public land cases:

GENTLEMEN:—The large number of defective, irregular, and insufficient proofs presented in public land cases, and the looseness which attesting officers, particularly others than Registers and Receivers, have exercised their functions, make it necessary that the following directions be complied with:

1. In case of final proofs and entry applications, the parties, whether applicants, claimants, or witnesses, must be properly identified before you. Attesting officers (including Registers and Recievers) must certify that the parties appearing are personally known to them or that their identity is satisfactorily established. The names of persons vouching to identity must be stated. Identifying affidavits should be required in all cases where necessary.

2. Each question in final proofs must be orally asked and answered in the presence of the attesting officer. Applications, affidavits, and final proof questions must be thoroughly explained so that there can be no possibility that the parties will misunderstand the purport of their affidavits or the full meaning of the questions asked for the effect of their answers. Ready made proofs presented merely for pro forma acknowledgement without verification, cross-examination, or evidence of identity will not be considered such proofs as required by law.

3. Officers taking affidavits and proofs must test the accuracy and reliability of the statements of applicants and claimants and the credibility and means of information of witnesses by a thorough cross-examination. Questions and answers in such cross-examinations will be reduced to writing and the cost thereof included in costs of writing out [illegible] rected to a verification of the material facts alleged in the case, and especially to the actual facts of residence and other requirements, the use of the land and the purpose of the entry is made or sought to be perfected for claimant's own use and occupation or for the use and benefit of others.

5. Registers and Receivers and other officers must carefully see that parties and witnesses are swearing to actual facts, and not to constructions of law as to what constitutes facts. This requirement will be particularly observed in respect to facts of alleged residence.

6. Proofs must be taken on the day and before the officer named in the advertisement, and at his office, and between the hours of 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. Proofs taken privately or in secret, or otherwise in substance irregularly, will not be accepted.

7. Proofs must in all cases be made to the satisfaction of Registers and Receivers. Proofs that are not satisfactory must be rejected. Registers and Receivers are authorized to avail themselves of all means of information in respect to the validity of entries and the interests in which they are made, and will not allow entries which they have good reason to believe collusive, speculative, or otherwise fraudulent.

8 Registers and Receivers must thoroughly scrutinize all proofs taken before others than themselves. They will not accept proofs so taken that are defective or insufficient, and they must see that all papers are complete and perfect before an entry is allowed of the papers transmitted to this office. This rule will be imperatively insisted upon.

9. Registers and Receivers will promptly call to the attention of special agents, and report to this office all cases which in their opinion need investigation.

10. Should officers (other than Registers and Receivers) taking affidavit or proofs know, or have occasion to suspect the existence of fraud in connection with any case, they should at once report all the facts to the Register and Receiver.

11. Officers taking affidavits and testimony should call the attention of parties and witnesses to the laws respecting false swearing and the penalties therefor, and inform them of the purpose of the Government to hold all persons to a strict accountability for any statements made by them.

12. In no case are papers aethorized to be executed in blank. Papers signed or falsely authenticated will be treated as fraudulent, and the acts of an officer misusing his official signature and seal will not be respected by this office, but the attention of the proper authorities will be called to his misconduct.

13. Officers taking applications, affidavits or final proof, will not be permitted to act as attorneys in the case.

14. Attorneys at law appearing in land office proceedings at local land offices must file an appearance stating specially whom they represent. Attorneys in fact must file the written authority of their principals.

Guaranteeing Grades.
A Question of Importance to Grain Men to Be Definat ly Settled.

Minneapolis Evening Journal.

The question whether the purchaser of a country warehouse receipt can compel the party who issued it to guarantee the grade named in the receipt at terminal points, came before the arbitration committee of the chamber of commerce Saturday. A farmer delivered wheat to George H. Christain & Co. of Argyle, for which he received a receipt giving the grade as No. 1 northern. This was subsequently sent to A. B. Taylor & Co. at Minneapolis to sell. They offered it to Christain & Co., but failing to obtain a satisfactory price, ordered the wheat sent to Duluth. The warehouse receipt was sent to Argyle, where it was taken up by the agent of Christain & Co. (who issued it) and cancelled. When the wheat arrived at Duluth the state inspector graded it:

"No. 1 Northern; one pound off for dirt. Note—Frosted."

The wheat weighed 56 pounds. The state law requires that No. 1 northern wheat shall weigh 57½ pounds. Christain & Co. refused to make good the grade, and Taylor & Co. bring action to recover the difference between the price obtained for the wheat and the price of No 1 northern in the Duluth market on that day. The amount involved is small, but Taylor & Co. desire to establish a precedent for such cases. The state grain law does not cover this point, but gives the state inspector control over wheat at terminal points only. A number of elevator companies guarantee grades at terminal points while others do not.

The elite of Black River society met at H. Swanson's Monday evening. Dancing was kept up until the "wee sma' hours."

A number of Wylie young people witnessed the play of Felix Poutre, at Red Lake Falls Sunday evening. They did not catch on to the words, but the actions were expressive.

The farmers should be more particular in regard to the quality of wheat used for seed. The poorest grain of the crop, frozen or otherwise, is put in the ground, with the result that in the fall the elevator men reap a harvest of curses.

Fosston Facts.

Thirteen Towns.

Mr. Orla Hostetter, of the firm of Hostetter Bros., had the ends of his first and second fingers of his left hand taken off by a rotary saw Monday. He was changing the gauge while the saw was in motion, when the monkey-wrench, he was using to unloosen the bolt that regulates the gauge, slipped and his hand came in contact with the saw. His fingers were promptly dressed by his brother, Melvin, and he is now able to tend to business.

A contractor informed us Monday that it is rumored in his camp that glanders has made its appearance among horses at the Enneberg stopping place, on the McIntosh road. If this is true, the proper authorities ought to visit the place and kill every horse affected, as there is no clue for this loathsome disease, except a lead ball through the medium of a rifle.

LATER—A horse belonging to Ole Nesse dropped dead on the McIntosh road six miles from Ennerberg, Monday, with glanders.

Mr. Andrew Steenerson, of Crookston, dined at the Belmont Tuesday. He was on his way home from the pineries, where he has been for some weeks past recuperating his vital powers. Reports everything O. K. at the camps and says they will get in their 3,000,000 feet of logs with 45 days of favorable weather.

WOODSIDE WARBLES.

Cold, colder, coldest, this will answer the weather question, Your correspondent is still confined to his room, and most of the time to either the bed or chair, but the cold does not effect his mind. The monotony of the confinement was greatly relieved last week by the visitation of Mr. E. D. Childs of Carman, who was out looking after his woodland interests in Woodside; a visit from such a man does an old cripple good. And now Mr. Editor as regards the chronicles of Woodside and who the author of them are, is all right, but your correspondent is accused to his face as being the author. But we hope the following explanation, will at once and forever settle the question. We have twice said in the JOURNAL, that we was confined to our bed and chair, but it is from the effect of scurvey and the bursting of one of Longstreet's bomb shells, at the siege of Knoxville, Tenn., in 1863, so it is not the "Chronicles," as may be supposed that ails us, for we have not got the chronicles, neither did we ever have, and we was never exposed to that disease, unless it has been within the last week. Hoping this explanation will be accepted, we will try and rake up some items of news, which is a hard task just now.

Messrs. Goodrich & Roame have had a little bad luck, on accouut of the very cold weather of last week, having the water pipe of their saw mill froze up, but are now ready for business again.

Mr. Hooper, of Crookston, was in our neighborhood on the 7th, and went from Mr. Snyder's to Crookston on the 9th, the coldest day of the season.

We are to have a new store in Woodside. Mr. Tagley is now putting up a building near Mr. Gideon Stoddard's residence, (Woodside P. O.) and will soon be able to sell goods to customers at reasonable prices.

Messrs. George West and Howard Redlon took a trip to Sohler's mill on the 21st inst. and got caught in a January blizzard. The boys say that by straining that blizzard through their moustache and teeth, that they could breathe quite comfortable, and it was so warm they both went to sleep. But at last accounts both were in a fair way to recover, thanks to their moustache.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "K" of mortgages, on page 568. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes, lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1885, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 57-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date thereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100,) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100,) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100,) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

THE REPRESENTATIVE NEWSPAPER OF THE GOLDEN NORTHWEST

It distinctly represents DEMOCRATIC IDEAS, LIVE ISSUES and ECONOMICAL GOVERNMENT, and in the interest of the latter, it is firmly in favor of the

REDUCTION OF THE WAR TAXES

As levied on the labor of the country by the present iniquitous tariff.

It will fight Monopolies;
It will fight Intolerance;
It will fight Illiberalism;
It will fight Malefaction in whatever party found.

While it is Democratic to the back-bone, it is broad and liberal in its political views and tolerant toward those who differ from it in opinion, and is an especial representative of the non-office holding and non-office seeking people.

It is not an organ, except of MORAL FORCES and LIVING IDEAS. It will stand manfully by President CLEVELAND in his struggle to restore honesty to the Government service, and in his declared war upon party bossism and the rule of partisan cliques.

As a Newspaper, the GLOBE shall not be excelled in either the East or the West. It is a member of the Western Press Association and has the exclusive franchise for this territory of the United Press Association. Besides, it participates in all the news advantages of the New York Press Association and the leading News Associations of Europe and other countries. It has its own leased telegraph wire to Chicago and the Eastern cities, and maintains a corps of correspondents representing every important city and town in the Northwest, and to this list of active news-gatherers it is constantly adding.

The management of THE GLOBE is always alert for that which will instruct and amuse, and promptly avails itself of every new and novel feature suggested by the brightest and most aggressive American journals. The attractive illustrated articles, racily written; the choice daily stories; the charming social chat; the valuable labor department; the crisp relation of local events; the ably edited farmer's department, which aid in making the GLOBE the brightest and breeziest of Family Papers, are all evidences of this.

Another Railroad.

From the present outlook, Crookston will get one more railroad in the coming spring, if not more. There seems to be no doubt that the Manitoba road will start for Duluth direct. Should this be the case the depot and other railroad buildings will be moved up on 19, near the switch, the Duluth road going directly east from that point, crossing the river on or near the Porger place. Should a road commence operations we may look for reasonably lively times for 1886 and it is not unreasonable to look for a revival in real-estate of no small importance. Should the Duluth road be commenced, it would have a tendency to call in a desirable class of people, who would come to invest their means and take a hand in the development of the vast resources of this great country.

P. R. Nowlan left for Winona last week, where he may reside in the future. Everybody is sorry to see Pete leaving, and hope that a way may be opened for his early return. He is one of the best boys on the road.

An accident occured at Lee & Herrick's mill on Wednesday, by which the main shaft was broken square off. It will require about two weeks to put it in repair. Morrissey Bro's will do the business with neatness and dispatch.

Tollif J. Farden was in from Tilden last week, and dropped in to set the subscription ahead a peg and give a bit of an inkling as to the news in his vicinity. He informs us that the case of diphtheria, that our Mentor correspondent of last week mentioned, proved to be only a case of severe cold; that all of the croup cases are doing nicely, and the neighbors are all happy and hopeful for the future; Andrew Bakken after a successful fall's threshing, in which he won the golden opinions for clean and rapid work, has opened a good hotel and proves himself to be as good a landlord as he did a thresher. Tilden went against the rail road bonds. Much wheat will be sown next spring, but the farmers are all anxious to get into stock as soon as possible.

The St. Hilaire Spectator says: "Ole Olson was the lucky winner of a horse, at a raffle at Crookston last week." That accounts for the fact that we did not get an order this week to print 100 tickets for a "raffle of a bay horse twelve years old!" The old hoss has gone to St. Hilaire, and we begin to feel lonesome already. We had no sooner got the JOURNAL started in 1877, when in came an order for 100 raffle tickets for that same old hoss about 12 years old, and every winter since, we have printed about 100 a week or thereabouts, and the horse never got any older than he was the day we printed the first tickets for him. Bro. Dunn used to divide the honors (and the emoluments) with us and one time when Dunn had printed the tickets, the owner had busted up in business, went clear broke and Dunn in order to get his pay, took a ticket and blessed if he didn't win the old brute! (And he wasn't any older than he ever had been—same old twelve year old he always was. We forget rightly what he did do with him, but as he was too spry (and venerable) for Dunn, to use in his business, we believe he traded him for a shot gun and shot him-self, (slightly) with the gun. But all this can't happen to occur again, for Ole has won the hoss and exported him. Well, he is an old stand by—the fastest horse in the country and all Ole has got to do to keep him going, is to come to the JOURNAL office and get 100 raffle tickets printed. Everybody wants the old hoss, on such occasions, and he always goes off like hot cakes.

Northwestern Breeders' Association.

The twentieth annual convention of the Northwestern Dairymens' Association will be held at the Opera House in the City of Beloit, Wisconsin, commencing Tuesday, February 16th, and continuing four days. This Association, the largest in membership of any organization of the kind in the United States, has become famous on account of the exceeding great value of its yearly conventions in bringing to the front the best dairy thought of the times. It comprises in its membership some of the most noted and successful dairymen in the northwest. The addresses forged from the close practical experience of those men, and the discussions, which follow, invariably bring out a multitude of valuable truths for the instruction of those that listen. Every man who is wrestling with the problem of "how to make the cow pay," should attend this convention. Beloit is situated in Southern Wisconsin on the Madison Division of the C. & N. W. Railway and the Racine & S. W. Division of the C. M. & St. P. Railway. Reduced railroad fare will be afforded to all who attend and become members of the convention.

A very interesting program has been prepared, embracing in the subjects discussed all branches of the dairy question. Full opportunity for the exhibition of Dairy Machinery will be afforded and breeders of dairy cattle are invited to attend the convention and exhibit selections from their herds.

OUR BIG OFFER.

As an inducement for settlement of all over-due subscriptions we have made arrangements with Farm, Stock and Home, of Minneapolis which enables us to give that paper free to all our subscribers. At our own expense we hve placed a sample copy of that excellent paper in the hands of all of our subscribers and others and we ask them to look it over and if they like it to call and subscribe. We will also accept payment on all back subscriptions at the regular advance rates. We have moreover prepared a list of some of the best papers with which we will club, thus giving our patrons an opportunity to obtain a great deal of reading matter for a little money. You will do well to call at the office of THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and see what we can do for you.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultry-men, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1 50.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brawon, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 133 to 134, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($61.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

FARM NOTES.

Grass Raising.

It matters not how widely farmers may differ in judgment conerning the relative value and profits concerning crops, all will agree to the importance of raising standard crops of grass in preference to all others, as the foundation stone to all profitable farming. Therefore, it is not a matter of surprise when a farm becomes run down from over pasturage, or deficient in hay, that the first outcry should be for more grass. This is the great cry now among farmers everywhere, and he is rated the best farmer who cuts the greatest number of tons of hay, and can keep a corresponding number of cattle. Grain raising and pasturing may be made mutually profitable for a time, without a rotation of crops, but the time is certain to come when grain farming needs [illegible] to be alternated with grass. The use of special fertilizers, however liberally they are applied, will not prevent, although it may delay, the entire impoverishment of the soil for a time, but the result is always the same in the end. That the destruction of the fertility of the farm is accelerated just in the proportion to the weight and substance of the crops removed from the soil, and the speed with which it is effected, is now admitted by all, and its fertility is extended just in proportion to the good judgment of the farmer engaged in cultivating it.—Orange County Farmer.

THE WHEAT SURPLUS.

Carefully compiled statistics show that Minnesota and Dakota farmers have sold 35,600,000 bushels of the wheat of 1885, leaving only 9,000,000 in country elevators and 5,000,000 still in farmers' hands, from which all the mills obtains their supplies from now until harvest of this year. It does not seem probable that there will be any great surplus of spring wheat after the mills have been supplied, but on the contrary there will be an actual shortage should the mills continue to make flour at the same as last year.

FLAX.

A remarkable instance of the waste of a valuable product is afforded by the fact that out of 85,320 tons of flax fibre grown last year in the United States only 699 tons were utilized for manufacture. At the same time 5,000 tons are imported yearly. This waste, no doubt, occurs because farmers have given more attention to growing seed than to the fibre. Seed and fibre cannot be grown together. For seed, thin seeds and stout stalks are required, and this produces course fibre; for fine fibre, thick sowing and slender stalks, with few side shoots are desired; moreover for the fine silky fibre the stalks are cut before the seed is ripe. The ripe stalks however are exceedingly valuable for twine, but unfortunately this fibre is driven out of use by a substitute made out of paper.—New York Times.

BUTTER MAKING.

The notion is to prevalent that good butter making is not for winter, and one sees the majority of farmers managing to have their cows come in in the spring, just before grass comes. Then the butter comes chiefly in the pasture season, when, of course, the product must be at its cheapest. Now we do not claim that butter is easily made and without a good deal of extra care in the winter, even if the calving time is right, but we do know that with good feeding it can be done, with greater remuneration than in summer. First the stables must be dry and comfortable, and along with this the feed must be right. Good cornstalks are better for cows than hay. Clover, while richer in the nutritive values than the grasses, is not so good for butter. Cows turned in to the best field of clover will eat the grass of the fence corners before they will touch the clover. For winter feeding second growth clover is much better than the first cutting. Corn in any shape is excellent feed for milch cows, and should be given twice a day. Winter butter naturally tends towards a white color; feeding carrots freely will render it of a better color. We do not object to an artificial coloring of an improved kind, if it be judiciously used.—Homestead.

WINTER DAIRYING.

Winter Dairying, which is the most profitable all the time, in order to be made remunerative, requires good accommodation for the comfort of the cows, and good liberal rations of rich food bountifully given. It is folly to expect cows fed on dried up corn stalks oats, straw and swamp hay, and have to seek their protection from cold winds and driving storms on the lee side of a barbed wire fence, to prove at all remunerative in the dairy. It is only possible for them to yield a very little milk, and that of the poorest quality.—Dairy and Farm Journal.

CREAMERY VS. FARM DAIRYING.

A Wisconsin creamery reports a business the past season up to Oct. 1st, of 123,000 pounds of butter made, which was sold so well in market that $26,044.44 have been paid the producers of the cream, which sum is estimated to be more than $9,000 above what the same cream would have brought had it been made up by each farmer at home by private dairying. And this estimate is based upon the price that the three highest grades of dairy butter were sold for in New York City. This is a good showing for the factory system over that of farm dairying. It also greatly relieves farmers' wives.

WINTER PROFIT WITH COWS.

Butter can be made in winter at a profit with a beef idea coupled with it. It is done "in this wise," to use a Yankee term. Select good farrow cows. A great deal hinges on this word good. It means in this connection, a cow that will respond to feed, both in the pail and on the ribs. This is not so much of a mixed proposition as one at first might suppose. We are dealing with farrow cows.

This embraces the idea that nature is closing in on her efforts to convert food into milk, and as a period of growth and renewal of bodily functions has begun there will be a natural tendency to growth or a filling out and renewal of the bodily parts. The food then will be divided in its results, and some of it will go into milk secretian and some to building up and renewing the bodily tructure. These are the two avenues of gain, and on this double road it will pay to push things, and give the cows all they can eat of rich foods. We must look ahead and find out if their food will be readily assimilated and converted into milk and flesh, and so combined that they will work well together.

The first thing to secure is thorough mastication, for without this there is always more or less loss of food, even though it may be swallowed. Some folks think that if food is only gobbled down it is all right, whereas it may be all wrong. Eating is a different thing from gobbling or cramming food down. It embodies the idea of mastication and when this is done the full value of food is obtainedt

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN THE TEMPERANCE REFORM.

BY MARY T. LATHRAP.

For the Witness.

Since the era of the Gospel temperance reformation, which began with the crusade and has since developed into the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and various other reform movements for the dissemination of total abstinence principles among the people, there has been notable painstaking along the line of prevention, in teaching the children and youth the danger of alcoholic beverages before they reach the hour of strong temptation.

In this effort for the men and women of to-morrow three distinct lines have been pursued, which we might designate as

Moral suasion,
Intellectual suasion, and
Gospel suasion.

The first, moral suasion, has been largely carried on in juvenile temperance meetings, Bands of Hope, temperance schools, etc., under the wing of these organizations of older people.

The text-books for this style of teaching are procured from temperance publishing houses, and for this reason are not in the homes of the children or known to them in any familiar way.

The lessons taught can be summed up thus: Alcohol is a poison, and is found in all the intoxicating drinks of commerce. It ruins the body, spoiling brain, blood, and nerves. It ruins the moral nature, causing profanity, vice and crime. Therefore, because alcohol degrades men, breaks the hearts of loving women, and curses innocent children, shun it, whether found in cider, wine, beer, or whiskey.

The pledge is used, the bright song sung, the prayer said, and these children go to their homes.

Now, what is back of this method of teaching temperance truth to make it impressive and potent in all after life? A company of earnest women only, not well known to many of their pupils, specialists and fanatics, as they often hear them called.

These children, at the home fireside, repeat some of the lessons of the temperance school, and father looks up from his paper to smile, and sarcastically say, "Stuff, Nonsense. Those women are crazy on this temperance business!" And mother, with more caution, born from the heart, says, "It is certainly good sometimes. Beer helped me so much when I was ill, and true temperance is to use it in proper quantities." So the home decides against the lesson. Then, outside, they see some men and women high in church and social life, drink with easy grace the dangerous wine, they hear from good society the Crosby-ian defence of moderation, and find the average newspaper pouring its fire of spleen and sophistry against total abstinence and abstainers, until we may well ask what becomes of the [illegible] Hope meetings. Back of these truths freshly learned, the half-captured mind sees a few earnest, unselfish souls, while all the great world seems to be on the other side. "So the fowls of the air" gather up the good seed.

We do not undervalue this line of effort; it is working wonders; but manifestly at grave disadvantage. Plainly, all that is needed cannot be accomplished this way. Such methods reach but a few at best, and the truth lacks authority with these gay students when they reach the counter-influence named.

The second mode, intellectual suasion, is a later thought of the reform, and of more commanding power, when fairly tried. Science, in its unresting research, divested of sentiment and prejudice alike, has been forced by its own demonstrations to the side of total abstinence. Richardson, Carpenter, Hargreaves, Hunt, Davis, Palmer and others at the topmost round of medical science, shut alcohol up into the narrow realm of an irritating, narcotic poison, never taken by persons in health without injury, seldom used in materia medica without danger.

This new revelation in the field of science is set over against sophistries centuries old, which declare alcohol to be a "good creature of God," food, medicine, and a delightful social blessing.

How is the new truth, which is not gush, not sentiment, but God Almighty's law, written in the body, to be brought before the whole people until musty errors are banished?

Clearly the schools of popular education are the very home for such revelations as these, divested, as they are, of distinctive moral beings, and dealing with bone and blood, instead of heart and soul.

Progress in intellectual suasion has given us fifteen States, and now Washington Territory, with educational laws which secure such knowledge to the children of the people, and bring them face to face with the death-blow of alcohol in the body.

But when this new science is grasped what is back of it? More than in the first instance, surely. Teachers, text-books, scientific demonstration, but what then?

Some facts intellectually acknowledged move to immediate and safe action; but facts with mighty moral complications, facts which contend with custom, appetite, avarice, and sin, need more than mental recognition to change modes of life. A boy with an inherited and pampered thirst for stimulants will take a risk on his liver and nerves to gratify the devilish gnawing within. So our youth are not yet secure, even after moral suasion has appealed to their good aspirations and convictions, and intellectual suasion revealed the truth to the mind.

Where, then, is the climax of power for establishing sobriety, purity, and self-control as the law of life? We say earnestly, solemnly, urgently, in the school of the church, where truth at the tribunal of conscience becomes more than a sentiment, more than a syllogism, and moves to the realm of law.

Look at the forces which give authority to temperance teaching on this hallowed ground, where the children congregate. The pastor recognized by these unspoiled hearts as the messenger of God. The superintendent whom they revere. The teachers they love as those who seek their highest good. Thus the church brings to this work a mighty personality, which cannot be commanded elsewhere; while stronger still than this personality is the church with doctrine and sacrament, the bible with its divine commands, and Christ with His uttermost salvation.

When this is reached in very deed, the wine-glass is powerless.

By all means appeal to the highest aspirations, by all means give broadest scope to the intellect, but before the soul hates evil, it fears God; before the heart turns decisively from the voice of the flesh, it hears with reverent, all-absorbing love, the voice of Jesus Christ.

Our nation to-day is staggering under the weight of a century of inherited appetite. A real, ever-intrusive danger faces its children, and to meet this danger will require heart, brain, and spiritual faculties, alive to to the truth that temperance is not only a misfortune and weakness, but a sin before God.

The Church is the conscience of the world, and this reckless world will never reach a higher level of thinking on any subject than the people who call themselves Christians.

The school of the Church, therefore, is largely deciding the judgment of to-morrow upon this great question, whether the future shall be sober or drunken; and what this christian republic shall finally do with its legalized infamy.

FARM NOTES.

Grass Raising.

It matters not how widely farmers may differ in judgment concerning the relative value and profits concerning crops all will agree to the importance of raising standard crops of grass in preference to all others, as the foundation stone to all profitable farming. Therefore, it is not a matter of surprise when a farm becomes run down from over pasturage, or deficient in hay, that the first care should be to grow more grass. This is the great cry now among farmers everywhere, and he is regarded the best farmer who cuts the greatest number of tons of hay, and can keep a corresponding number of cattle. Grain raising and pasturing may be made profitable for a time without [illegible] to be alternated with grass. The use of special fertilizers, however liberally they are applied, will not prevent, although it may delay, the entire impoverishment of the soil for a time, but the result is always the same, in the end. That the destruction of the fertility of the farm is accelerated just in the proportion to the weight and substance of the crops removed from the soil, and the speed with which it is effected, is now admitted by all, and its fertility is extended just in proportion to the good judgment of the farmer engaged in cultivating it.—Orange County Farmer.

THE WHEAT SURPLUS.

Carefully compiled statistics show that Minnesota and Dakota farmers have sold 35,000,000 bushels of the wheat of 1885, leaving only 9,000,000 in country elevators and 5,000,000 still in farmers' hands, from which all the mills obtains their supplies from now until harvest of this year. It does not seem probable that there will be any great surplus of spring wheat after the mills have been supplied, but on the contrary there will be an actual shortage should the mills continue to make flour at the same as last year.

FLAX.

A remarkable instance of the waste of a valuable product is afforded by the fact that out of 85,320 tons of flax fibre grown last year in the United States only 600 tons were utilized for manufacture. At the same time 5,000 tons are imported yearly. This waste, no doubt, occurs because farmers have given more attention to growing seed than to the fibre. Seed and fibre cannot be grown together. For seed, thin seeds and stout stalks are required, and this produces coarse fibre; for fine fibre, thick sowing and slender stalks, with few side shoots are desired; moreover for the fine silky fibre the stalks are cut before the seed is ripe. The ripe stalks however are exceedingly valuable for twine, but unfortunately this fibre is driven out of use by a substitute made out of paper.—New York Times.

BUTTER MAKING.

The notion is to prevalent that good butter making is not for winter, and one sees the majority of farmers managing to have their cows come in in the spring, just before grass comes. Then the butter comes chiefly in the pasture season, when, of course, the product must be at its cheapest. Now we do not claim that butter is easily made and without a good deal of extra care in the winter, even if the calving time is right, but we do know that with good feeding it can be done, with greater remuneration than in summer. First the stables must be dry and comfortable, and along with this the feed must be right. Good cornstalks are better for cows than hay. Clover, while richer in the nutritive values than the grasses, is not so good for butter. Cows turned in to the best field of clover will eat the grass of the fence corners before they will touch the clover. For winter feeding second growth clover is much better than the first cutting. Corn in any shape is excellent feed for milch cows, and should be given twice a day. Winter butter naturally tends towards a white color; feeding carrots freely will render it of a better color. We do not object to an artificial coloring of an improved kind, if it be judiciously used.—Homestead.

WINTER DAIRYING.

Winter Dairying, which is the most profitable all the time, in order to be made remunerative, requires good accommodation for the comfort of the cows, and good liberal rations of rich food bountifully given. It is folly to expect cows fed on dried up corn stalks, oats straw and swamp hay, and have to seek their protection from cold winds and driving storms on the lee side of a barbed wire fence, to prove at all remunerative in the dairy. It is only possible for them to yield a very little milk, and that of the poorest quality.—Dairy and Farm Journal.

CREAMERY VS. FARM DAIRYING.

A Wisconsin creamery reports a business the past season up to Oct. 1st, of 128,000 pounds of butter made, which was sold so well in market that $28,044.44 have been paid the producers of the cream, which sum is estimated to be more than $9,000 above what the same cream would have brought had it been made up by each farmer at home by private dairying. And this estimate is based upon the price that the three highest grades of dairy butter were sold for in New York City. This is a good showing for the factory system over that of farm dairying. It also greatly relieves farmers' wives.

WINTER [illegible] COWS.

[illegible] will respond to feed, both in the pail and on the ribs. This is not so much of a mixed proposition as one at first might suppose. We are dealing with farrow cows.

This embraces the idea that nature is closing in on her efforts to convert food into milk, and as a period of growth and renewal of bodily functions has begun there will be a natural tendency to growth or a filling out and renewal of the bodily parts. The food then will be divided in its results, and some of it will go into milk secretion and some to building up and renewing the bodily structure. These are the two avenues of gain, and on this double road it will pay to push things, and give the cows all they can eat of rich foods. We must look ahead and find out if their food will be readily assimilated and converted into milk and flesh, and so combined that they will work well together.

The first thing to secure is thorough mastication, for without this there is always more or less loss of food, even though it may be swallowed. Some folks think that if food is only gobbled down it is all right, whereas it may be all wrong. Eating is a different thing from gobbling or cramming food down. It embodies the idea of mastication and when this is done the full value of food is obtained.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IN THE TEMPERANCE REFORM.

BY MARY T. LATHRAP.

For the Witness.

Since the era of the Gospel temperance reformation, which began with the crusade and has since developed into the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and various other reform movements for the dissemination of total abstinence principles among the people, there has been notable painstaking along the line of prevention, in teaching the children and youth the danger of alcoholic beverages before they reach the hour of strong temptation.

In this effort for the men and women of to-morrow three distinct lines have been pursued, which we might designate as

Moral suasion,

Intellectual suasion, and

Gospel suasion.

The first, moral suasion, has been largely carried on in juvenile temperance meetings, Bands of Hope, temperance schools, etc., under the wing of these organizations of older people.

The text books for this style of teaching are procured from temperance publishing houses, and for this reason are not in the homes of the children or known to them in any familiar way.

The lessons taught can be summed up thus: Alcohol is a poison, and is found in all the intoxicating drinks of commerce. It ruins the body, spoiling brain, blood, and nerves. It ruins the moral nature, causing profanity, vice and crime. Therefore, because alcohol degrades men, breaks the hearts of loving women, and curses innocent children, shun it, whether found in cider, wine, beer, or whiskey.

The pledge is used, the bright song sung, the prayer said, and those children go to their homes.

Now, what is back of this method of teaching temperance truth, to make it impressive and potent in all after life? A company of earnest women only, not well known to many of their pupils, specialists and fanatics, as they often hear them called.

These children, at the home fireside, repeat some of the lessons of the temperance school, and father looks up from his paper to smile, and sarcastically say, "Stuff! Nonsense! Those women are crazy on this temperance business!" And mother, with more caution, born from the heart, says, "It is certainly good sometimes. Beer helped me so much when I was ill, and true temperance is to use it in proper quantities." So the home decides against the lesson. Then, outside, they see some men and women high in church and social life, drink with easy grace the dangerous wine they hear from good society the [illegible] Hope meetings. Back of these truths freshly learned, the half-captured mind sees a few earnest, unselfish souls, while all the great world seems to be on the other side. "So the fowls of the air" gather up the good seed.

We do not undervalue this line of effort; it is working wonders, but manifestly at grave disadvantage. Plainly, all that is needed cannot be accomplished this way. Such methods reach but a few at best, and the truth lacks authority with these gay students when they reach the counter-influence named.

The second mode, intellectual suasion, is a later thought of the reform, and of more commanding power, when fairly tried. Science, in its unresting research, divested of sentiment and prejudice alike, has been forced by its own demonstrations to the side of total abstinence. Richardson, Carpenter, Hargreaves, Hunt, Davis, Palmer and others at the topmost round of medical science, shut alcohol up into the narrow realm of an irritating, narcotic poison, never taken by persons in health without injury, seldom used in materia medica without danger.

This new revelation in the field of science is set over against sophistries centuries old, which declare alcohol to be a "good creature of God," food, medicine, and a delightful social blessing.

How is the new truth, which is not gush, not sentiment, but God Almighty's law, written in the body, to be brought before the whole people until musty errors are banished?

Clearly the schools of popular education are the very home for such revelations as these, divested, as they are, of distinctive moral beings, and dealing with bone and blood, instead of heart and soul.

Progress in intellectual suasion has given us fifteen States, and now Washington Territory, with educational laws which secure such knowledge to the children of the people, and bring them face to face with the death-blow of alcohol in the body.

But when this new science is grasped what is back of it? More than in the first instance, surely. Teachers, text-books, scientific demonstration, but what then?

Some facts intellectually acknowledged move to immediate and safe action; but facts with mighty moral complications, facts which contend with custom, appetite, avarice, and sin, need more than mental recognition to change modes of life. A boy with an inherited and pampered thirst for stimulants will take a risk on his liver and nerves to gratify the devilish gnawing within. So our youth are not yet secure, even after moral suasion has appealed to their good aspirations and convictions, and intellectual suasion revealed the truth to the mind.

Where, then, is the climax of power for establishing sobriety, purity, and self-control as the law of life? We say earnestly, solemnly, urgently, in the school of the church, where truth at the tribunal of conscience becomes more than a sentiment, more than a syllogism, and moves to the realm of law.

Look at the forces which give authority to temperance teaching on this hallowed ground, where the children congregate. The pastor recognized by these unspoiled hearts as the messenger of God. The superintendent whom they revere. The teachers they love as those who seek their highest good. Thus the church brings to this work a mighty personality, which cannot be commanded elsewhere, while stronger still than this personality is the church with doctrine and sacrament, the bible with its divine commands, and Christ with His uttermost salvation.

When this is reached in very deed the wine-glass is powerless.

By all means appeal to the highest aspirations, by all means give broadest scope to the intellect, but, before the soul hates evil, it fears God; before the heart turns decisively from the voice of the flesh it hears with reverent, all absorbing love, the voice of Jesus Christ.

Our nation to-day is staggering under the weight of a century of inherited appetite. A real, ever-intrusive danger faces its children, and to meet this danger will require heart, brain, and spiritual faculties alive to the truth that temperance is not only a misfortune and weakness but a sin before God.

The Church is the conscience of the world, and this reckless world will never reach a higher level of thinking on any subject than the people who call themselves Christians.

The school of the Church, therefore, is largely deciding the judgment of to-morrow upon this great question, whether the future shall be sober or drunken, and what this christian republic [illegible]

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, MINN., FEBRUARY 4.

Mr. A. F. Draper's family departed from our city Wednesday for their new home at Red Lake Falls.

Caspar Sands has been having a bit of a lay off, while he went up to the farm to take some stock that he recently bought. He intends to make a large stock farm and grow up with the country.

The Norwegian Methodist's have purchased a lot on Ash Street, for the purpose of erecting a church building, plans for which are being drawn. Work will be commenced upon it in a few days.

Conductor Alexander met with an accident that delayed him several hours last Saturday. Fortunately nobody was seriously hurt, though all of the elements of a first-class wreck were on deck. Alex was in big luck.

H. Steenerson went to St. Paul in the Kundert matter this week. He will take in the Ice Palace, (as much as possible) ere his return. It has been suggested that the ice house will taste better next summer, in ice-cream and sich.

Treasurer Lucken is preparing for his duties as State Treasurer by raking in big taxes and receipting therefor in due and ancient form. He will make an excellent Treasurer of State, though we dislike the idea of losing him from the county.

THE JOURNAL has received a neat card from the First National Bank of Park River, D. T., David H. Beecher, Pres't, Franklin Edgerton Vice Pres't, and Sidney Clarke, Cashier. The bank starts off under the most favorable auspices and we wish the management abundant success.

Capt. H. W. Donaldson of Kitson County, passed through on Tuesday enroute for the big doin's at St. Paul. He reports business slack in Kittson County. Says that wheat will reach 90 cents in this country before another crop comes on, and says all who can hold will be decidedly the gainers.

The ice carnival at St. Paul will be profusely illustrated by the Pioneer Press during February, and it will be well worth your while to subscribe at once for a month, if not longer, through the resident agent, or if there is none, send in your name to the home office of the Pioneer Press at St. Paul. Mail orders must be prepaid.

Mrs. Gomer Evans, of Angus, was in the city on Saturday last. She says that Mr. E. was one of the farmers who was called upon to put up a margin on his wheat or sell. He was fortunately able to put up thus saving his opportunity to get something nearer its worth. THE JOURNAL sees yet no good reason for changing its opinion in relation to the wisdom of holding for better prices.

The St. Paul ice carnival is attracting great attention in all parts of the country. Not less than five thousand men will be arrayed in the picturesque winter costumes at the storming of the palace, which occurs early in the month of February. The Pioneer Press, with characteristic enterprise and dash, has made arrangements to properly illustrate these interesting and novel scenes, and all who are interested should at once subscribe.

The rage among newspapers for illustration has found its way into the Northwest, and during the carnival at St. Paul the Pioneer Press proposes to make this feature very prominent. Special artists have been secured in addition to those regularly attached to the paper. All sports, processions and ceremonies connected with the ice carnival will be elaborately reproduced. We advise our readers to send in their subscription at once.

Forty clubs in St. Paul alone, averaging two hundred strong, propose to devote themselves solely to winter sports and carnival fun during the first two weeks in February. Many more will come in from other directions—Winnipeg, Duluth, Stillwater, Minneapolis, Red Wing and many other cities will be represented by large uniformed clubs. Nothing like it has ever before been seen in this country. All the features, sports, etc. will be elaborately illustrated in the Pioneer Press. Now is the time to subscribe.

The sacred concert was fairly well attended and met with a very cold reception. This would seem to imply that it was not appreciated by the audience but was owing to the fact that the "patent steam heater" failed to make much of an impression upon the atmosphere. The program was an excellent one, highly enjoyed by all who were bold enough to stick their heads outside of their fur wraps long enough to hear it. The "Egyptian" harp, played by a native Egyptian, tempted everybody to come out of his shell and listen and the music struck the crowd in solid chunks. Talk about your St. Paul ice house! Crookston has one that will discount it in everything but beauty. We should advise the boys, if they intend to entertain their friends in the future to "warm it up" a bit. They can appreciate a "warm reception" after the experience of Sunday. Taken as a whole the case may be summed up thusly: The program was an excellent one and well carried out, with exception of the heating apparatus.

February opened out in business-like manner, introducing as cold weather as we have experienced this winter.

D. H. Fisk was up from Ada on Land Office business one day last week. D. H. has entered the new year in good shape.

The masonic sociable, on Wednesday evening was a pleasant event. These sociables will occur every two weeks during the winter.

Paul Bataglia is away for the carnival. While he will take in the big ice-house he will also do a stroke of business and will lay in a large stock of furniture on the side.

Chris Houston rejoices in the arrival of a young son and heir on Sunday evening of last week. Mother and boy doing nicely and Chris acts like a capitalist.

Fred Dickenson reports another. A boy on Sunday night, January 24th. Fred says he is more than ever convinced of the wisdom of diversified husbandry—it don't pay to raise all wheat in this country.

It seems that we gave the Morrissey brothers more time than they required to fix up Lee & Herrick's break-down. The job was done, and well done and the mill ready to commence operations by the latter part of last week.

Chas. Dickenson was in from the lumber camp on Saturday. He says the boys will succeed in getting out the full cut this season. Bailey has his half in and Bagley the same or nearly so. Sleighing is good now and business being rushed. The boys are all in good health and excellent spirits.

J. W. Kelley came in from Sletten last week to thaw out his nose. He has been hauling feed to the pineries and during a late cold snap froze his proboscis badly, which does not add to his beauty materially; however as this was the most serious feature in the case he thinks he can stand it all right.

Fred Stauff let the light of his genial countenance beam upon his many friends one day last week. He declares that the manipulations of the market by the wheat buyers makes him very tired. He don't see much encouragement ahead for wheat-raisers and intends to stock his farm and try something else. When this practice becomes universal times will be all right for wheat-raisers and everybody else.

E. C. Davis brought the model of his new railroad tie to show us. The idea is to utilize old rails for ties. They are bolted together in such a way that when the rail is put on it will be impossible for the track to spread, thus preventing the possibility of the recurrence of the terrible accidents that have heretofore occurred by spreading rails. The tie, when completed has a ground surface of eight inches and the manner of construction, and fastening of the rails to the ties is so simple that the wonder is that it has not occurred to somebody before. It looks as though Mr. Davis has struck a bonanza and we trust this may be the case as no one is more worthy of it.

The Times man goes for McKinzie, rough-shod, because Mac complained that the opera house, on the evening of the Graus opera was too cold. Well, Mac was not the only one who complained of cold weather that night. We happened to sit in the same pew with the Times man and we noticed that he kept himself well wrapped up in a thundering big buffalo coat during the whole performance, while others, not fortunate enough to have such an article moved as close to the stove as possible. Mr. Filiatrault has taken great pains to secure the very best of entertainments for our city, and deserves great credit for it. He is also desirous of securing the comfort of his audience and when they complain of cold weather in the house it is not an act of friendship to Mr. Filiatrault to suppress the fact. It is evident that some other method of warming should be adopted for the extreme cold weather and probably one or two stoves on the north side would fill the bill. The Times can't expect that making it hot for the audience, outside will remedy the defect.

Sheriff Zwickey and Gene Ferry had a bit of an adventure in the cause of justice last Saturday. Being moved by the spirit—and a warrant, to arrest one A. Anderson, of Liberty, who was charged with having appropriated to his own use sundry wood, they hied them in the early dawn to the residence of Anderson aforesaid and demanded him, in the name of the United States of America (or any other man) to surrender. As Anderson did not belong to that tribe and could not spit it out in that language he swore, by the horn tea-spoons he wouldn't do nothin' of the kind—not if the court knew itself, and anyhow not until he could understand that heathenish chin music. So he marshalled his hosts, consisting of another man, two women and a regiment of infantry, and the way the clubs, stove-wood, boot-jacks, oaths and things did assail the representatives of justice was a caution on a cold day. After a successful seige, however, the garrison was made to understand what was wanted and capitulated and Anderson was brought before Judge Palmer who, after due examination opened his new mouth long enough to say—"$70 or 70 days and be darn quick about it." Anderson, thus having been given a chance to make the trump quickly said: "I'll make it seventy days—and play it alone." [illegible] plain.

Bert Bivins and wife, and M. A. and Mrs. W. G. Lytle, leave for St. Paul tonight, to take in the Ice Carnival.

Jack Bunnell dropped in to see his old friends and neighbors one day last week. Jack is getting anxious to get back to the city to live.

Ham Thompson expects to go down to St. Paul and astonish the natives on snow shoes. He is a thoroughbred Norwegian when he gets started.

Somebody has killed N. P. Johnson's dog, and N. P. had him up before His Honor on Wednesday. As we go to press the jury is wrestling with the dog-gone business.

A false alarm of fire on Wednesday afternoon, which was sounded for the Second Ward, was responded to by the Fire Department in short order, which shows that if it had been a real thing, the boys would have got there.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Anglim entertained a number of their friends at progressive euchre on Thursday evening of last week. The event was highly enjoyed and will be long remembered by the participants. John Cromb and Mrs. A. Braley took the progressive prizes and H. E. Cooke and Mrs. O. S. Spendley captured the head prizes.

The Chronicle and Times have been enjoying a controversy over what this church and that church have been doing for the relief of the poor. This is all nonsense, gentlemen, as the provisions made for the care of the poor in Polk County are ample and all that is necessary is to call the attention of the proper authorities to the special cases to obtain sufficient relief.

G. W. Conklin was the engineer on Saturday's wrecked train. The last car got off the track and pulled the whole business off with it eventually. The train was on a high embankment with the engine three or four car-lengths from a high bridge and only for the coolness and promptness of the engineer a serious wreck would have been the result. However, as it was, the damage was slight, not exceeding $500.

W. C. Kimberley, Esq., of Edna, was in the city on Tuesday. By the way, some cruel person put up a little job on the innocent Times man, informing him the "Rev." W. C. Kimberley, on Jan. 24th united in marriage, Mr. Henry Thurston, of Beltrami, to Miss Minnie Murphy, of Herriottville." W. C. says as far as the marriage is concerned that is all right but it was as a justice of the peace and not as a clerical individual. However, we don't wonder much. The mistake might easily occur.

Ed. Walsh's thoroughbred Holstein are going through the winter in fine shape. Ed. says he will put some fine stock on his farm near town this spring. He suggests that a creamery would pay here and we are of the opinion that he is right about it. There will be plenty of good milch cows in this vicinity next spring and the new packing house furnishes a way to raise pork at a profit. Should a creamery be started the patrons could get a good profit from it and have lots of sweet milk to feed to pigs thus reaping a double profit. We can see no good reason why a creamery could not be started and big money made out of it and we hope some one with the money and experience will be induced to take hold of it. "There's millions in it!"

THE JOURNAL has received a neat card of invitation to attend the first annual ball of Northern Tier Division, No. 69, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which event will transpire on the evening of Washington's birthday, Feb. 22d. A big time is assured. It is expected that two coaches will go from Crookston on the 5:30 passenger south to Glyndon, from thence via the Northern Pacific to Fargo, affording all who wish to go a chance to do so at a very small expense. The proceeds of the ball will be given to engineer Chas. Keenan, who for a long time has been unable to perform any labor through a sickness that will undoubtedly prove fatal. Tickets $1. THE JOURNAL will be able in next issue to give the full particulars as to the extra train. Let all turn out and help the boys in their laudable efforts to help an unfortunate comrade.

FERTILE.

BY BERT M. HALL.

The shades of night were going fast,
As north from "the twin cities" passed,
A youth, of stature undersize,
Whose ensign bore the new device,
"To Fertile!"

He madly ran, and just beneath
A young moustache, he ground his teeth,
To think he had not sooner found
So nice a town above the ground,
As Fertile.

Along the Man-i-to-ba road
Lights of both oil and tallow glowed
As tripping o'er the wooden ties,
He hastened to the paradise
Of Fertile.

"Take my advice," an old man said,
"And skip the Valley of the Red;
He only answered, "I shall try,
To gain, by way of Beltrami,
Fair Fertile!"

A maid, from Norway's fields of snow,
Said: "Stay, and I will love you so!"
Her fond appeal met this response,
"O, come, my love, with me at once,
To Fertile!"

"If you are caught within that ranch,
They'll clean you out from root to branch!"
Such were the wayside rude salutes,
But he the faster played his boots
For Fertile.

At close of day the swarming flakes,
And blizzard winds, with cruel aches,
Filled life outside; but all the same,
The boy of dauntless purpose came
To Fertile.

Erelong, amazed Fertillians swore
He was a true "Excelsior."
Whose level head would give renown
To the prospective railroad town
Of Fertile.

Her morning twilight well begun,
She hails a brightly rising sun,
That joyful, to the zenith far,
Mounts up, unlike a falling star,
Young Fertile.

Fertile, Jan. 20th, 1886.

John Knuppe has gone to the ice house.

John N. Ives combines business with pleasure, while he takes in the St. Paul carnival.

Houston & Ross expect their goods on every freight train. Look out for their great opening soon.

Ex-alderman Bataglia, accompanied by his "private secretary" left for St. Paul on Sunday evening to take in the big ice-house.

Sheriff Zwickey has gone to St. Paul to be present at the Sheriff's meeting and banquet to be held there to-day. Zwick expects to have a big time.

Ole Bang has returned to civilization from a visit below. While gone he looked at lots of fine stock and the result will be apparent as soon as the weather is warm enough to ship.

Many who would like to see the carnival doings at St. Paul, will not, unless the railroad fare is brought within their means. A reduction to a cent a mile would take a big crowd from this vicinity.

Commissioner Goodrich found the weather somewhat cold on his journey to the city this trip. He froze his pleasant countenance a little, but the session thawed him out all right. He will experience no trouble by the incident.

The dairymen's convention commenced its sessions on Tuesday. We should have enjoyed being able to attend, but business matters prevented. An interesting session will be held and a large attendance is assured. The dairy interests in this section are growing to that extent, that we shall be holding dairy conventions in Polk county, one of these days.

The Sons of Veterans gave a pleasant euchre party at Land Office Hall on Monday evening which was well attended and highly enjoyed. John McLean got away with the progressive prize and (he says) did it honestly. Mrs. Adams was the fortunate winner of the ladies progressive prize. Frank Adams walked off with a yumping yack, and Mrs. Kopps took the next ladies' prize. It was a very pleasant party indeed, reflecting great credit on the boys for their able management; the boys proved themselves "chips of the old blocks" and not an "old vet" in the crowd but was proud of 'em. "May they all live long und brosper."

The Baptist brethren held their first service in their new church building on Sabbath last, Rev. House preaching a very able discourse in the morning. In the evening a children's service was held which was very interesting. We had made arrangements to have the programme printed, but for some reason we have failed to obtain it, so are obliged to omit it, and write from personal recollection, with no better guide. Mrs. J. O. Milne repeated an original poem and sang a song, the words and music of which were composed by herself. Her little daughter, Annie, repeated in a very nice manner a poem composed by her mother. Little Miss Gracie Perry recited a poem so sweetly that only for Sunday evening and in a church, would have elicited a storm of applause that would have shook Crookston from center to circumference. We voted it the sweetest thing we ever heard or saw. Little Miss Daisy House, also favored the audience with a piece sweetly rendered, which was well received. Others did well in their several parts, but the failure on the part of the program to arrive according to promise leaves us totally at sea, upsets our calculations and renders it impossible for us to do entire justice to the subject, which we deeply regret, for it was worthy an extended notice. Regular Sabbath services will be held hereafter until further notice. The house will be plastered and furnished next summer and be formally dedicated some time during the summer.

The wheat market continues firm and receipts at all points are very light.

F. S. DeMers, D. F. Bucklin and Eli Steenerson were in attendance on the meeting of the Board on Tuesday.

A. J. Bigham and Mr. Lee went to the ice house on Wednesday. This might suggest the cooler—but it don't mean that.

Geo. Crocker and A. C. Rhinehart, two of St. Hilaire's most prominent citizens were in the city on Wednesday, and went below with the Winnipeg snow-shoe clubs.

The county dads met in solemn conclave on Tuesday. All were present except commissioner Bradish. An important session is being held, a report of which will appear in our next issue.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the full report of the railroad commissioners. If we understand their attitude on the Otter Tail County farmers' meeting they virtually say that THE MINNEAPOLIS MILLERS have run the wheat business THIS year and not the commissioners. We propose to have more to say on this subject in the future.

Toleff Farden, whose visit to the city last week we noted, froze his hands severely while going out home. It seems that some of his neighbors got the impression that he did it while fishing below Chase's dam, in the city, but we have the impression that he did not monkey with cold water enough to freeze himself while here. That is a big fish story his neighbors are trying to put up on him.

A jolly crowd went south on Wednesday's train. Two snow-shoe clubs from Winnipeg, the St. George, Wm. Hunting, President, composed of 150 members, and the Winnipeg club, F. G. Walsh President, 37 members. The boys gave an exhibition of their prowess at the depot, which was witnessed by a large audience. They organized their "bouncing club" and bounced every one of our dignified citizens, who chanced to pass that way, throwing them as high as the eaves of the depot. It was a jolly crowd and no mistake. A number of our citizens went down on the train, among them the Times man, whom we never expect to see again, as he will probably be bounced out of existence.

At the concert Friday evening the following program was excellently well rendered.

SONG—"O'er Hills and Vales Resound."

GLEE—"The Fog Bell"—Prof. A. C. Gutterson.

SELECTION FROM THE CANTATA OF CHRISTMAS—Chorus with Tenor solo by Prof. Gutterson and Soprano obligato by Mrs. Milne.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUET—Miss Roberts and Mr. McGregor.

GLEE—"Pat, Pat, Falls the Rain"—Chorus.

SONG—"When the Moon is Beaming."—Mrs. E. H. Jennie.

ANTHEM—With Solo Quartet—Mrs. Milne, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Lilly, Mr. Pinkerton and Choisters.

ANVIL CHORUS—With anvils and goblets.

GERMAN SONG, VERLEGENHEIT (EMBARASSMENT)—Miss Minnie Milne.

SELECTION FROM THE CANTATA OF CHRISTMAS—Miss Minnie Milne, Mrs. Milne, Mr. Mix and Choirsters.

SONG—"Who'll Save the Left."—Prof. A. C. Gutterson.

GLEE—"Stay Prythee Stay."—Choirsters.

SELECTION FROM THE CANTATA OF CHRISTMAS—Miss Roberts, Miss Palmer, Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Wheeler, and Choirsters.

The attendance was not as large as should have been, considering its merits, nor as large as it would have been, had there been sufficient time to advertised it more extensively. Prof. G. is a master of the art, and won golden opinions from our music loving people.

Letter from "Uncle Josh."

EDITOR JOURNAL:

DEAR FRIEND: Again I am compelled to come to you for advice and comfort. You will remember that about the time that Cleveland was elected President, I took two claims, in all 320 acres of land, that a couple of black Republicans had filed upon; that my method of jumping those claims effectually prevented the original claimants from ever putting in an appearance to dispute my rights; consequently I was resting in fullest security, never dreaming it possible that only one in office under the Cleveland administration would disturb me. A letter just received by me from the Land Office fully illustrates the force of the injunction, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall!" This letter that the Land Office sends informs me that the final proof I made is no proof and that I must come in and make new proof on the pre-emption or it will be canceled, and that to make such proof I will be obliged to live six months on the land without a break; in short, I must eat three meals a day every day on the land. I must sleep at least 8 hours each night on the land for a space of six months: If I don't do that the land is open to the public. Now, when I wanted to prove up I hadn't the money to do so with, and a Democratic friend down east let me have the money, and as soon as I got my final receipt I gave him a mortgage on the land to secure him in case the next President should be a Republican. Now, when I have lived on the land six months more and go in to prove on the land and the question is asked me if I have agreed to sell or in any way dispose of said lands, of course, being a Democrat of good standing, and unable to tell a lie, especially under the rigid cross-examination of the astute official it is bound to come out that I had given this mortgage, and under the present rule this could not be tolerated, and I have lost the land anyhow, residence or no residence. Well, the land is gone, but how about the $200 I have paid the government; who gets that? Will it be returned to me? or what is next best, will it be returned to my friend down east? and if it is returned to either of us, where is it to come from? Is the money that I, and three or four million others have paid into the U. S. treasury still in the treasury, to be returned to us at any time when it is ordered to be returned by the Commissioners, or if it is not to be returned, is the government to have the land and money, too? These are questions that a large number of your readers would like to have answered. There is still another complication. As I remarked there is two claims. After proof on the pre-emption I filed a homestead and at the end of six months I commuted and paid the price the government asked for that quarter. That money I also borrowed from a friend east and gave him a mortgage. The Commissioner now says that I must live on the land at least five years before I can prove up, and then the government don't want any money for the lands; in fact, makes residence the purchase price of the lands. But I can't live on both claims at the same time, and as the pre-emption is gone, for reasons before stated, I conclude that I will try and save one of the claims; but here comes up the same question, how shall I be able to deceive the officers of the local land office in regard to the giving of that mortgage for the money to commute with? If it had happened that I had been a Vanderbilt or a Custom House officer, I would have had the $400 in my pocket to prove up these two quarters, and this question of alienation would not present itself, but as I, and many others in this Valley are poor, and did not have the $400, we must loose our claims and all of the labor of years, and the people in the money centres in the east must loose the money they have kindly loaned us to enable us to improve this wilderness, and the only satisfaction that I can see to be derived by any one is the satisfaction that Commissioner Sparks' endeavors to constitute himself a great reformer will result in one of the greatest reforms on record; the course he is taking will reform the Democratic party out of power quicker and more effectually than any other method they could adopt. It reaches every corner of this vast country, from the seaport towns on the Atlantic to the shores of the Pacific, the money lender in the east as well as the tiller of the soil in the west. The Democratic party will feel the effects of the sledge-hammer strokes of their champion reformer in November, 1888, you bet your bates.

UNCLE JOSH.

BOILER INSPECTION.

EDITOR JOURNAL: There is at present a bill before the United States Senate looking to the reorganization of the steam boiler inspection law, but there is so much red tape attached to the United States marine law, it is very doubtful whether a practical measure can be adopted. I may safely say that not one of the persons appointed under the government inspection law ever worked a day in a boiler shop in his life; their whole knowledge consists of a few figures, a book, and the straining of the boiler with cold water. I am well acquainted with the U. S. marine law and I am not guessing at what I say. That is the humbug that our present State inspection law was patterned after and which I am trying to carry out the provisions placed the inspector with a number of threshing boilers, in any [illegible] the only boiler that blew up, last fall, in the Northwest, exploded immediately after being tested by water. But, they say, "there was a defect in the big flue." Well, why did not the water burst it; that is what it was put on for. This goes to show that the theory is wrong. I wrote to a friend of mine last summer, the owner of a threshing boiler, as follows: "George, don't let them put the water pressure on your boiler; better lay it up!" Well, George wrote to me this fall and said: "I have sold my threshing rig. Ira Stone run the engine. It went all right until the State Inspector put the water pressure on; after that it begun to leak. It kept getting worse and at last they had to lay it up and get another engine to thresh with!" The party I refer to is George Carpenter, of Wabasha County. George and Ira are both well known in this town. Ira Stone is a good engineer and machinist. I only give one of a number. The Inspectors know what they find, when they come, but they do not know what they leave behind them. What a nice inspection that is which finds a boiler working all right and leaves it all wrong—in fact dangerous—and this humbug inspection law is approved by the Congress of the United States, and is the means of deceiving a great many who do not understad the principles of boiler making. Of course there is some difference between a steamboat and a land boiler. On a steamboat a good engineer is necessary in backing, stopping and starting, for there is no knowing what the boat might run into if the engine is not properly handled; but with an engine on land it does not make any difference whether the engine is handled right or wrong; the safety of the boiler is all the State has anything to do with. State boiler inspection then is this: The boiler having been certified to be safe, the danger then becomes transferred to the engineer. The knowledge necessary then is to know how to keep up the water and to know that his steam gauge, or safety valve, is about right. That is what is meant by the inspection of engineers, or what it ought to be, so far as the State is concerned. There must be something to license or examine an engineer for, and that is it. It is to be hoped that Congress will make the law in such a way that only practical and experienced machinists can be appointed for the examination of boilers and hulls of steamboats and leave out that confounded delusion, the water test. If boilers were made to run with cold water then cold water would be the proper thing to test them with. A boiler may be perfectly safe with steam at 120 pounds, and the same pressure of water injure it so as to make it unfit for use. I will close this by referring to a remark of Mr. Seeley, State Boiler Inspector, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. He said that it was a common practice in ordering boilers to have in the contract a water test. Now, we do most positively deny it and call for the proof. I do not intend to let Mr. Seeley, or any one else, mislead the public. I have worked in boiler shops in Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and have been around Minneapolis for several years; I have yet to see the first water pressure put on a boiler in a boiler shop. If the contract had called for it it would have to be put on. There is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul shops in Minneapolis, with 60 or 70 boiler makers, tearing apart old engine boilers, rebuilding them over and sending them out on the road carrying 140 pounds of steam, and a man is as safe on one of them as riding on a lumber wagon, and don't you forget it, there is no water pressure there. Other railroad shops are the same; they want knowledge there, not water. They use water only to make steam.

Woodside Items.

Items of interest are rather scarce These warm days the thermometer has registered a good many degrees below zero. Mr. E. D. Childs is having 40,000 feet of logs cut for Goodrich & Rome's saw mill. Mr. Charles Crossman has the contract for delivering the logs. Messrs. Goodrich & Rome are putting in a feed mill in connection with the saw mill and will soon be ready to grind feed for customers. Mr. Trip of Mentor, was in our woods this week hauling out fence posts for Mr. Bunsy. We are informed that Mrs. Works left the wicked town of Woodside last week for a sojourn at Warren. Robert Finesy is back on his homestead in the woods after an absence of some months. We suppose the reason why some one did not jump his claim is that he has avowed killing any man who would dare to jump said claim. Now as your correspondent has tried to have some one take the claim, and we suppose that we are in eminent danger. What stab us! How it makes our blood curdle! We understand that we are to have a blacksmith shop, store and post office all near one place on Mr. Stoddard's farm. Now with the saw mill close at hand, and being on the county road, who says that Woodside is not picking up? But, as your correspondent is still confined to his chair and the house, we can not vouch for the absolute truth of any news, only that we know that we received it from trustworthy people. Mr. Felsing took his engine and separator home this week and we are informed that he will do several jobs of threshing near Maple Bay next [illegible] T. J. W.

COMMUNICATED.

And it came to pass in those days the people were wont to gird up their loins and hie them unto the temple wherein justice is—sometimes—meted out unto the people, for to pay tithes, to render unto Uncle Psalm the things that are Uncle Psalm's. And it was cold in those days. And it came to pass that on the 1st day of the 1st month of the big ice-house that the SCRIBES and pharisees did speak one unto another and say: "Lo the time draws nigh when the ten per cent business will be a terror in the land; let us therefore get us hence unto the receipt of custom where one (good)-Lucken' treasurer presides and let us make a grand kick at the bigness of his demands, and it shall come to pass that if he hearken not unto our words we will go even to the Sanhedrim with our grievance, which is even greater than "grasshoppers" or Millers Monopolies, and we shall kick with such a mighty kick that the Sanhedrim will listen unto our complaints and shall proceed to "let up onto us." And they hearkened unto this racket and got up and got every man even as it had been said. And behold when they arrove in the presence of the august treasurer, Lucken for taxes as is his wont in those days they weakened, and the aforesaid kick, hereinbefore mentioned was very weak; and lo! it was very cold weather in those days. And when the multitude saw that their murmurings availed not to pay the tithes, they with one consent adjourned to the audience room of the Sanhedrim and as one man lifted up their voice and howled; saying "great is Uncle Sam of the U.S and great are his taxes, Oh minions of his'n, and we pray you let up a turn or two of the thumbscrew. Verily we say unto you, we want highways and byways without end, and bridges, and schools, and jails, and grub for our young ones and all that sort 'o thing but we don't want to pay so dear for such a little whistle, Oh most excellent high priest!" Then the High Priest arose and girded up his loins and did speak thus unto the SCRIBES and Pharisees: "Well, if you want all of these things and if it must needs be that you must needs have 'em how in thunder do you think you are goin' to get 'em if you don't pay for 'em!" And behold it was very cold in those days. And the Scribes and Pharisees arose and departed into the outer courts and lo! a howl went up from that crowd that scart the stuffin outen the little fishes in the sea of Red Lake, and was heard throughout all the land even unto the borders thereof on the river that is called Red, when it is on a high. And it was even so. And the people murmured greatly among themselves saying "you just wait a minute! wait until the ideas of November when we get another whack at you's fellers and we'll pitch you's body, boots and brigade, into the camp of the enemy, the Philistines, which do rage and imagine vain things, EVEN the camp DEMOCRATIC, and be darned to you all!" And it was cold in those days. And it came to pass that when they had said those things the SCRIBES and Pharisees departed to their homes and in due season, came each and every one and paid his tithes like a little man, every mother's son of 'em and lo! the High Sheriff did starve to death for the lack of business, collecting delinquent personal taxes. And behold it was cold weather in those days.

Farmer's letter, in relation to the new city ordinance, which we publish elsewhere in this issue, furnishes another strong reason why farmers should form an alliance, and have some kind of system and method of doing their own business. If we admit his assumption that the ordinance was made without any regard to the rights of farmers in the matter, it only proves the greater necessity of organization among the farmers to protect themselves. In this case alone, what would organization accomplish? Our citizens are obliged to have hay, straw, oats, barley, wood and farm produce, and are obliged to depend upon the farmers for the supply. Now, it seems reasonable to suppose that if those products do not pay the farmer a living price for production he alone is to blame, as there is no law in existence that will compel him to give away his property, neither can one be made. The trouble seems to be that on account of a lack of understanding among the farmers, some, whose necessities compel them to take what is offered for their produce, take less than its cost of production and this, in many cases, fixes the market price. Should farmers combine and fix a fair, living profit on their goods, no one could object, and if they did kick it could do no good, for the consumer is obliged to have the goods THE JOURNAL has, as our friend admits, always opposed monopolies, and it has also, as he must admit, urged farmers to organize to fight them. It is not reasonable to suppose, if our farmers positively WILL NOT ORGANIZE in their own defence, that those whose interests lie in obtaining the farmers produce for as little as possible will form combinations to raise the price for the farmer! Now, what are the real facts of the situation to-day? The facts are that every business interest depends upon the farmer for supplies, and while for this reason he holds the key to the situation, he is yet at their mercy, and they pay him for his work that what [illegible] in every other business besides farming, organizations exist and agreements are made on prices and prices established and the farmer, having no method in his business, having no organization to watch the current of events, THINKS that he is OBLIGED to accept the market prices, and DOES SO BLINDLY, while the real fact is that if he would take the pains necessary. The farmers, being largely in the majority, COULD, if he WOULD control Legislature, Congress, the Government, and make the laws to suit himself. As matters are, he furnishes the votes that make the laws that keep him in subjection. This being the case, who is to blame if not himself? And where is the defect if not in the utter lack of organization? We believe the time will some day come when the farmer will rule, but it never will until he proves his ability to govern by a proper management of his own affairs. Organizations are being formed all over the United States, and until the system becomes general the farmer must be content to occupy the position that he does to-day, or must occupy it without being content. He cannot change it until he does it by a thorough organization, and he can as soon as he does. Will he ever do it?

That the degree of malignity of scarlet fever depends almost entirely on careful or careless nursing is clearly shown by Dr. J. M. Keating in the last Babyhood. The editors of Babyhood could have found few better authorities to deal with this subject than Dr. Keating, and his article cannot fail to impress thousands of mothers with the importance of preparing themselves, at leisure, with the information necessary for the ordeal which such a scourge may, at any time compel them to undergo. A more cheerful subject, in the same number, is "Musical Education: Who and how to begin it," by Henry T. Finck, which relates not so much to a technical education as to the desirability of surrounding children with a musical atmosphere from the earliest, and encourageing them to pursue music in pretty much their own way for a few years. Statistics are given proving that, other things being equal, children who are allowed to indulge their natural disposition to sing have stronger lungs and better general health than those who are not. Marion Harland writes on "Baby's Little Sister"—an earnest and touching plea for the feelings of the one who is to often crowded to one side to make room for number two. Among the topics dealt with by subscribers this month are "Sleeping in the dark," "Swollen Tonsils," "Amber Beads and Croup," "Stocking Supporters," "Flannel and Zephyr," "The Daily Bath," "An Infant Vandal," "A word for the Timid Baby," "Sugar as Aperient," etc. $1.50 a year. The American Agriculturist for February, 1886, comes to us with an announcement, that a brilliant galaxy of writers, not strictly agricultural, are to contribute to its columns during the year. Among the number are Donald G. Mitchell (Ike Marvel) R. H. Stoddard, the poet writer, James Parton, the biographer of Jackson and Jefferson, Jullian Hawthorne, George Parsons Lathrop, Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, and Rev. Dr. Buckley, to be followed by other eminent writers. These writers are to contribute a series of papers upon the Farmer, President of the United States and it is stated as an interesting fact, that nearly every one of our Presidents have followed agricultural pursuits at one time and another in their lives. These papers on the Farmer Presidents are to be accompanied with engravings, twelve by eighteen inches in size, illustrating the farm surroundings and associations of our Presidents. The first paper will be by James Parton. The February number likewise announces that Mr. A. B. Allen, who founded the paper nearly fifty years ago, and was its editor for nearly twenty years, is now to contribute a series of articles to its columns. The February issue contains over one hundred original articles, and seventy-four full page and smaller engravings. Price $1.50 per year; single copies, 15 cents. A Proposed Discussion Upon Economics.

Science intends, during the next few weeks, to present its readers with discussions of the urgent questions of the day by some of our leading writers and students of social science and political economy.

One of the principal objects in this discussion is to compare the attitudes of the two great schools of economic writers towards the practical questions of the day, the labor question, the relation of ethics to the principles which rule in the conduct of business, etc.

The Bird Music of South America.

In an interesting paper on South American Bird Music, contributed to the English scientific journal Nature, a correspondent says: "There is a charm in the infinite variety of bird language heard in a sub-tropical forest, where birds are most abundant, exceeding that of many monotonously melodious voices; the listener would not willingly lose any of the many indescribable sounds emitted by the smaller species or the screams and human-like calls, or solemn, deep booming or drumming of the larger kinds, or even the piercing shrieks, which may be heard miles away.

"The sub-tropical forest is more like an orchestra in which a countless number of varied instruments take part, in which there are many noisy discords, while the tender, spiritual tones, heard at intervals, seem by contrast, infinitely sweet and precious."

Letter from "Uncle Josh."

EDITOR JOURNAL:

DEAR FRIEND: Again I am compelled to come to you for advice and comfort. You will remember that about the time that Cleveland was elected President, I took two claims, in all 320 acres of land, that a couple of black Republicans had filed upon; that my method of jumping those claims effectually prevented the original claimants from ever putting in an appearance to dispute my rights; consequently I was resting in fullest security, never dreaming it possible that only one in office under the Cleveland administration would disturb me. A letter just received by me from the Land Office fully illustrates the force of the injunction, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall!" This letter that the Land Office sends informs me that the final proof I made is no proof and that I must come in and make new proof on the pre-emption or it will be canceled, and that to make such proof I will be obliged to live six months on the land without a break; in short, I must eat three meals a day every day on the land. I must sleep at least 8 hours each night on the land for a space of six months. If I don't do that the land is open to the public. Now, when I wanted to prove up I hadn't the money to do so with, and a Democratic friend down east let me have the money, and as soon as I got my final receipt I gave him a mortgage on the land to secure him in case the next President should be a Republican. Now, when I have lived on the land six months more and go in to prove on the land and the question is asked me if I have agreed to sell or in any way dispose of said lands, of course, being a Democrat of good standing, and unable to tell a lie, especially under the rigid cross-examination of the astute official it is bound to come out that I had given this mortgage, and under the present rule this could not be tolerated, and I have lost the land anyhow, residence or no residence. Well, the land is gone, but how about the $200 I have paid the government; who gets that? Will it be returned to me? or what is next best, will it be returned to my friend down east? and if it is returned to either of us, where is it to come from? Is the money that I, and three or four million others have paid into the U. S. treasury still in the treasury, to be returned to us at any time when it is ordered to be returned by the Commissioners, or if it is not to be returned, is the government to have the land and money too? These are questions that a large number of your readers would like to have answered. There is still another complication. As I remarked there is two claims. After proof on the pre-emption I filed a homestead and at the end of six months I commuted and paid the price the government asked for that quarter. That money I also borrowed from a friend east and gave him a mortgage. The Commissioner now says that I must live on the land at least five years before I can prove up, and then the government don't want any money for the lands; in fact, makes residence the purchase price of the lands. But I can't live on both claims at the same time, and as the pre-emption is gone, for reasons before stated, I conclude that I will try and save one of the claims; but here comes up the same question, how shall I be able to deceive the officers of the local land office in regard to the giving of that mortgage for the money to commute with? If it had happened that I had been a Vanderbilt or a Custom House officer, I would have had the $400 in my pocket to prove up these two quarters, and this question of alienation would not present itself, but as I, and many others in this Valley are poor, and did not have the $400, we must loose our claims and all of the labor of years, and the people in the money centres in the east must loose the money they have kindly loaned us to enable us to improve this wilderness, and the only satisfaction that I can see to be derived by any one is the satisfaction that Commissioner Sparks' endeavors to constitute himself a great reformer will result in one of the greatest reforms on record; the course he is taking will reform the Democratic party out of power quicker and more effectually than any other method they could adopt. It reaches every corner of this vast country, from the seaport towns on the Atlantic to the shores of the Pacific, the money lender in the east as well as the tiller of the soil in the west. The Democratic party will feel the effects of the sledge-hammer strokes of their champion reformer in November, 1888, you bet your boots.

UNCLE JOSH.

BOILER INSPECTION.

EDITOR JOURNAL: There is at present a bill before the United States Senate looking to the reorganization of the steam boiler inspection law, but there is so much red tape attached to the United States marine law it is very doubtful whether a practical measure can be adopted. I may safely say that not one of the persons appointed under the government inspection law ever worked a day in a boiler shop in his life; their whole knowledge consists of a few figures, a book, and the straining of the boiler with cold water. I am well acquainted with the U. S. marine law and I am not guessing at what I say. That is the humbug that our present State inspection law was patterned after and which, in trying to carry out its provisions, played the mischief with a number of threshing [illegible] in fact, the only boiler that blew up, last fall, in the Northwest, exploded immediately after being tested by water. But, they say, "there was a defect in the big flue." Well, why did not the water burst it; that is what it was put on for. This goes to show that the theory is wrong. I wrote to a friend of mine last summer, the owner of a threshing boiler, as follows: "George, don't let them put the water pressure on your boiler; better lay it up!" Well, George wrote to me this fall and said: "I have sold my threshing rig. Ira Stone run the engine. It went all right until the State Inspector put the water pressure on; after that it began to leak. It kept getting worse and at last they had to lay it up and get another engine to thresh with!" The party I refer to is George Carpenter, of Wabasha County. George and Ira are both well known in this town. Ira Stone is a good engineer and machinist. I only give one of a number. The Inspectors know what they find, when they come, but they do not know what they leave behind them. What a nice inspection that is which finds a boiler working all right and leaves it all wrong—in fact dangerous—and this humbug inspection law is approved by the Congress of the United States, and is the means of deceiving a great many who do not understand the principles of boiler making. Of course there is some difference between a steamboat and a land boiler. On a steamboat a good engineer is necessary in backing, stopping and starting, for there is no knowing what the boat might run into if the engine is not properly handled; but with an engine on land it does not make any difference whether the engine is handled right or wrong; the safety of the boiler is all the State has anything to do with. State boiler inspection then is this: The boiler having been certified to be safe, the danger then becomes transferred to the engineer. The knowledge necessary then is to know how to keep up the water and to know that his steam gauge, or safety valve, is about right. That is what is meant by the inspection of engineers, or what it ought to be, so far as the State is concerned. There must be something to license or examine an engineer for, and that is it. It is to be hoped that Congress will make the law in such a way that only practical and experienced machinests can be appointed for the examination of boilers and hulls of steamboats and leave out that confounded delusion, the water test. If boilers were made to run with cold water then cold water would be the proper thing to test them with. A boiler may be perfectly safe with steam at 120 pounds, and the same pressure of water injure it so as to make it unfit for use. I will close this by referring to a remark of Mr. Seeley, State Boiler Inspector, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL. He said that it was a common practice in ordering boilers to have in the contract a water test. Now, we do most positively deny it and call for the proof. I do not intend to let Mr. Seeley, or any one else, mislead the public. I have worked in boiler shops in Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and have been around Minneapolis for several years; I have yet to see the first water pressure put on a boiler in a boiler shop. If the contract had called for it it would have to be put on. There is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul shops in Minneapolis, with 60 or 70 boiler makers, tearing apart old engine boilers, rebuilding them over and sending them out on the road carrying 140 pounds of steam, and a man is as safe on one of them as riding on a lumber wagon, and don't you forget it; there is no water pressure there. Other railroad shops are the same; they want knowledge there, not water. They use water only to make steam.

Woodside Items.

Items of interest are rather scarce. These warm days the thermometer has registered a good many degrees below zero. Mr. E. D. Childs is having 40,000 feet of logs cut for Goodrich & Rome's saw mill. Mr. Charles Crossman has the contract for delivering the logs. Messrs. Goodrich & Rome are putting in a feed mill in connection with the saw mill and will soon be ready to grind feed for customers. Mr. Trip of Mentor, was in our woods this week hauling out fence posts, for Mr. Bunzy. We are informed that Mrs. Works left the wicked town of Woodside last week for a sojourn at Warren. Robert Finesy is back on his homestead, in the woods after an absence of some months. We suppose the reason why some one did not jump his claim is that he has avowed killing any man, who would dare to jump said claim. Now as your correspondent has tried to have some one take the claim, and we suppose that we are in eminent danger. What stab us! How it makes our blood curdle! We understand that we are to have a blacksmith shop, store and post office all near one place, on Mr. Stoddard's farm. Now, with the saw mill close at hand, and being on the county road, who says that Woodside is not picking up? But as your correspondent is still confined to his chair and the house, we can not vouch for the absolute truth of any news, only that we know that we received it from trustworthy people. Mr. Pelsing took his engine and separator home this week, and we are informed that he will do several jobs of threshing near Maple [illegible] next week.

COMMUNICATED.

And it came to pass in those days the people were wont to gird up their loins and hie them unto the temple wherein justice is—sometimes—meted out unto the people, for to pay tithes, to render unto Uncle Psalm the things that are Uncle Psalm's. And it was cold in those days. And it came to pass that on the 1st day of the 1st month of the big ice-house that the SCRIBES and pharisees did speak one unto another and say: "Lo, the time draws nigh when the ten per cent business will be a terror in the land; let us therefore get us hence unto the receipt of custom where one (good) Lucken treasurer presides and let us make a grand kick at the bigness of his demands, and it shall come to pass that if he hearken not unto our words we will go even to the Sanhedrim with our grievance, which is even greater than "grasshoppers" or Millers Monopolies, and we shall kick with such a mighty kick that the Sanhedrim will listen unto our complaints and shall proceed to "let up onto us."" And they hearkened unto this racket and got up and got every man even as it had been said. And behold when they arrove in the presence of the august treasurer, Lucken for taxes as is his wont in those days they weakened, and the aforesaid kick, hereinbefore mentioned was very weak; and lo! it was very cold weather in those days. And when the multitude saw that their murmurings availed not to pay the tithes, they with one consent adjourned to the audience room of the Sanhedrim and as one man lifted up their voice and howled; saying "great is Uncle Sam of the U.S and great are his taxes, Oh minions of his'n, and we pray you let up a turn or two of the thumbscrew. Verily we say unto you, we want highways and byways without end, and bridges, and schools, and jails, and grub for our young ones and all that sort o' thing but we don't want to pay so dear for such a little whistle, Oh most excellent high priest!" Then the High Priest arose and girded up his loins and did speak thus unto the SCRIBES and Pharisees: "Well, if you want all of these things and if it must needs be that you must needs have 'em how in thunder do you think you are goin' to get 'em if you don't pay for 'em!" And behold it was very cold in those days. And the Scribes and Pharisees arose and departed into the outer courts and lo! a howl went up from that crowd that scart the stuffin outen the little fishes in the sea of Red Lake, and was heard throughout all the land even unto the borders thereof on the river that is called Red, when it is on a high. And it was even so. And the people murmured greatly among themselves saying "you just wait a minute! wait until the ides of November when we get another whack at you's fellers and we'll pitch you's body, boots and brigade, into the camp of the enemy, the Philistines, which do rage and imagine vain things, EVEN the camp DEMOCRATIC, and be darned to you all!" And it was cold in those days. And it came to pass that when they had said those things the Scribes and Pharisees departed to their homes and in due season, came each and every one and paid his tithes like a little man, every mother's son of 'em and lo! the High Sheriff did starve to death for the lack of business, collecting delinquent personal taxes. And behold it was cold weather in those days.

Farmer's letter, in relation to the new city ordinance, which we publish elsewhere in this issue, furnishes another strong reason why farmers should form an alliance, and have some kind of system and method of doing their own business. If we admit his assumption that the ordinance was made without any regard to the rights of farmers in the matter, it only proves the greater necessity of organization among the farmers to protect themselves. In this case alone, what would organization accomplish? Our citizens are obliged to have hay, straw, oats, barley, wood and farm produce, and are obliged to depend upon the farmers for the supply. Now, it seems reasonable to suppose that if those products do not pay the farmer a living price for production he alone is to blame, as there is no law in existence that will compel him to give away his property, neither can one be made. The trouble seems to be that on account of a lack of understanding among the farmers, some, whose necessities compel them to take what is offered for their produce, take less than its cost of production and this, in many cases, fixes the market price. Should farmers combine and fix a fair living profit on their goods, no one could object, and if they did kick it could do no good, for the consumer is obliged to have the goods. THE JOURNAL has, as our friend admits, always opposed monopolies, and it has also, as he must admit, urged farmers to organize to fight them. It is not reasonable to suppose, if our farmers positively in their own defence, that those whose interests lie in obtaining the farmers' produce for as little as possible will form combinations to raise the price for the farmer? Now, what are the real facts of the situation to-day? The facts are that every business interest depends upon the farmer for supplies and while for this reason he holds the key to the situation, he is yet at their mercy, and they pay him for his work just what they please. Why is this? Because [illegible] in every other business besides farming, organizations exist and agreements are made on prices and prices established and the farmer, having no method in his business, having no organization to watch the current of events, THINKS that he is OBLIGED to accept the market prices, and DOES SO BLINDLY, while the real fact is that if he would take the pains necessary. The farmers, being largely in the majority, COULD if he WOULD control Legislature, Congress, the Government, and make the laws to suit himself. As matters are, he furnishes the votes that make the laws that keep him in subjection. This being the case, who is to blame, if not himself? And where is the defect if not in the utter lack of organization? We believe the time will some day come when the farmer will rule, but it never will until he proves his ability to govern by a proper management of his own affairs. Organizations are being formed all over the United States, and until the system becomes general the farmer must be content to occupy the position that he does to-day, or must occupy it without being content. He cannot change it until he does it by a thorough organization, and he can as soon as he does. Will he ever do it?

WILL NOT ORGANIZE

That the degree of malignity of scarlet fever depends almost entirely on careful or careless nursing is clearly shown by Dr. J. M. Keating in the last Babyhood. The editors of Babyhood could have found few better authorities to deal with this subject than Dr. Keating, and his article cannot fail to impress thousands of mothers with the importance of preparing themselves, at leisure, with the information necessary for the ordeal which such a scourge may, at any time compel them to undergo. A more cheerful subject, in the same number, is "Musical Education: When and how to begin it," by Henry T. Finck, which relates not so much to a technical education as to the desirability of surrounding children with a musical atmosphere from the earliest, and encourageing them to pursue music in pretty much their own way, for a few years. Statistics are given proving that, other things being equal, children who are allowed to indulge their natural disposition to sing, have stronger lungs and better general health than those who are not. Marion Harland writes on "Baby's Little Sister"—an earnest and touching plea for the feelings of the one who is to often crowded to one side to make room for number two. Among the topics dealt with by subscribers this month are "Sleeping in the dark," "Swollen Tonsils," "Amber Beads and Croup," "Stocking Supporters," "Flannel and Zephyr," "The Daily Bath," "An Infant Vandal," "A word for the Timid Baby," "Sugar as a Soporific," etc. $1.50 a year. The American Agriculturist for February, 1886, comes to us with an announcement, that a brilliant galaxy of writers, not strictly agricultural, are to contribute to its columns during the year. Among the number are Donald G. Mitchell (Ike Marvel), R. H. Stoddard, the poet writer, James Parton, the biographer of Jackson and Jefferson, Jullian Hawthorne, George Parsons Lathrop, Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, and Rev. Dr. Buckley, to be followed by other eminent writers. These writers are to contribute a series of papers upon the Farmer, President of the United States and it is stated as an interesting fact, that nearly every one of our Presidents have followed agricultural pursuits at one time and another in their lives. Those papers on the Farmer Presidents are to be accompanied with engravings, twelve by eighteen inches in size, illustrating the farm surroundings and associations of our Presidents. The first paper will be by James Parton. The February number likewise announces that Mr. A. B. Allen, who founded the paper nearly fifty years ago, and was its editor for nearly twenty years, is now to contribute a series of articles to its columns. The February issue contains over one hundred original articles, and seventy-four full page and smaller engravings. Price $1.50 per year; single copies, 15 cents. Address American Agriculturist, 751 Broadway, New York.

A Proposed Discussion Upon Economics.

Science intends, during the next few weeks, to present its readers with discussions of the urgent questions of the day by some of our leading writers and students of social science and political economy.

One of the principal objects in this discussion is to compare the attitudes of the two great schools of economic writers towards the practical questions of the day, the labor question, the relation of ethics to the principles which rule in the conduct of business, etc.

The Bird Music of South America.

In an interesting paper on South American Bird Music, contributed to the English scientific journal Nature, a correspondent says: "There is a charm in the infinite variety of bird language heard in a sub-tropical forest, where birds are most abundant, exceeding that of many monotonously melodious voices; the listener would not willingly lose any of the many indescribable sounds emitted by the smaller species or the screams and human-like calls, or solemn, deep booming or drumming of the larger kinds, or even the piercing shrieks, which may be heard miles away.

"The sub-tropical forest is more like an orchestra in which a countless number of varied instruments take part, in which there are many noisy discords, while the tender, spiritual tones, heard at intervals, seem by contrast, infinitely sweet and precious."

ANDOVER, Jan. 25, 1886.

EDITOR JOURNAL: In your issue of January 14th appears an article which led me to suppose that THE JOURNAL was very anxious to have the City Council meet and establish a law concerning the weighing and measuring of both hay and wood brought in by the poor farmers of Polk County. I don't understand why such a law shall exist, unless it means that the city bloods shall be protected from being cheated by the farmers. The farmers have been robbed of thousands of dollars by the Millers' Association and we have been forced to sell our wheat at their figures. THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL has always taken the farmers' part; it has always spoken out boldly, and with no uncertain sound, against the great wheat monopoly, and the dangerous power it held over the farmers of the Valley. But it looks to us now as though there was another monopoly to look after, although, as yet, a very small one; but let it work awhile and we will soon find out that it will grow, and become as bad, if not worse, than the Millers' Association. Why couldn't THE JOURNAL have urged the City Council to meet and pass an ordinance in favor of the farmers? No such thing appears, and I never expect it. The poor farmers will have to stand their own chances, as they always have. They will have to come to Crookston and pay 25 cents to have a load of hay weighed, and 10 cents to have a cord of wood measured, whether they sell the same article or not. But it is only 35 cents; it is nothing to speak of, of course, but I can assure THE JOURNAL that if the farmers of Polk County had every 35 cents in their pocket that they have to pay out unnecessarily and just as unlawfully as the weighing of their hay and measuring of their wood, THE JOURNAL would get its subscription paid more regular, (at least I believe so). Why not have a man to look after the interests of the farmers? Have a man to attend to their business when they buy machinery and get swindled by the agents! when they buy their goods at the stores and have to pay from ten to fifteen per cent. more at one store than at another, if only for a pound of tobacco. Why, they have to pay fully as much for a poor article as for a good one. Have a man to look after them when they are hauling their wheat to the elevators and the weighers steal from two to four bushels on every load they bring in, and perhaps the time is not far distant when the gentle city of Crookston will have one of their great measuring men to get, on top of the four bushels taken from the farmers at the elevators, his 50 cents for his certificate, duly signed. Of course, Crookston will have a competent market-man; I don't doubt that in the least; but why should the farmers always bear all the burden? Why could not the man that wanted to buy the wood pay the competent market-man the ten cents, if he wanted the wood, or if he wanted this competent market-man to measure it? That, I suppose, would be too much to ask from the great city bloods of Crookston. They always look down upon the poor farmer as a kind of working stalk—good enough if they can afford to give 'em a chance to make 100 per cent. of every dollar the poor farmer can earn by working hard all the year round; if not, then the farmer is looked upon with a very sour look from almost every business man in town. The late law made by the City Council in regard to the weighing of hay and measuring of wood reminds me of what a prominent business man said to me the other day. He said: "There is not an honest farmer in Polk County!" and, I guess his word must have been taken into consideration by the City Council of the city of Crookston when they sat down to establish said law.

FARMER.

Our friend, the farmer, evidently labors under a bit of a mistake, and without stopping to consider the merits of the case, goes off half-cocked, as the ordinance, which we append, plainly shows. We will state for his benefit, as well as for all who may be laboring under the same misapprehension, that the ordinance was made as much for the interest of the seller as for the buyer, and we are positive that when it is fully understood it will be alike appreciated by both. Under the old method, (or lack of it) if a farmer wished to weigh a load of hay or straw he was subject to the arbitrary charge for weighing that the owner of a set of scales was a mind to charge, though custom had established the price at 25 cents per load, though more has been paid in some cases, and the farmer was obliged to pay whatever the owner of the scales was a mind to charge. In the matter of wood a great deal of dissatisfaction has existed between the buyer and seller, when the wood was sold by the load, and such was bound to be the case in the absence of an arbitrator in disputed cases. Another source of annoyance was the scattering of hay wherever teams were fed, and our citizens preferred to have one place designated as a market place, which saves this litter being left anywhere and everywhere in the streets of the city. So the following ordinance was passed:

ORDINANCE.

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain as follows:

SECTION I. That that part of Main street in the city of Crookston, situated between Robert street and Red Lake river shall be a public market place for selling hay, straw and wood in said city.

SEC. II. That a suitable person shall be appointed City Inspector and his duties shall be to inspect, weigh and measure all wood, hay or straw that may be sold in said market.

SEC. III. That said City Inspector is hereby authorized to collect from each owner of a load of wood, hay or straw measured, weighed or inspected by him, a sum NOT GREATER THAN TEN CENTS FOR EACH LOAD OF WOOD, HAY OR STRAW, so weighed, measured or inspected.

SEC. IV. That any person selling any hay, straw or wood in said market without having the same weighed or measured as aforesaid shall be punished by fine not greater than fifty dollars, or imprisonment for a term not greater than thirty days.

Passed by City Council Jan. 13, 1885.

LOUIS FONTAINE, President.

Approved this 14th day of January, 1886.

R. J. MONTAGUE, Mayor.

It might have been made more satisfactory to farmers if a penalty of fifty dollars had been inserted for violation of his duties, for overcharges and false weights on the part of the City Inspector; although Mr. Carey, the present Inspector, offers $50 to any man who will prove an overcharge against him, and challenges him to produce it. We cannot see wherein any one is injured by this ordinance, for the seller should add the fees to the selling prices and the buyer had rather pay it and be sure of his weights and measures; Furthermore the ordinance only applys to articles SOLD IN OPEN MARKET. If the parties prefer to do so they can contract their supplies and such deals are not subject to city inspection only at the option of the parties directly interested. There is no compulsion in such cases. We think if farmer had carefully considered this matter and taken pains to have found out the facts in the case, he hardly would have written just as he did, for we personally know him to be a man of candid mind, eminently fair and upright in all of his dealings.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication January 18th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 508. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes, lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 57-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date thereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1,958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township, (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgage to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brawon, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:20 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 182 to 184, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($64.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine, (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

PLEDGE.

"Be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same.

The brewers claim that their industry—the manufacture of beer—contributes largely to the general public prosperity. The Milwaukee Sentinal takes occasion to show how the manufacture of beer has benefitted that city, which is famous for the number of its breweries and beer saloons. It says: "At least six new school buildings are immediately necessary, but because there are so many saloons the tax payers must support police, courts and jails, and charitable institutions with their money. There are hundreds of children of school age in the city who are denied school privileges because we cannot afford to put up more school buildings." Referring to the 3,000 saloons, it says: "They render it necessary to sustain a large police force to preserve order in this city. They compel the city and the county to support courts and the machinery of the law to take care of offenders, whose offence grows out of liquor. They make us support a house of correction for the seclusion of drunkards and criminals, who have developed by the saloons at an enormous cost. They lay upon the city and county the burden of supporting almshouses for the care of persons reduced to pauperism by drunkenness; hospitals for the medical treatment of chronic invalids whose disease can be traced to whiskey; insane asylums, toward the filling of which intemperance contributes a large share. The tax payers bear the greater share of these burdens rendered necessary by these saloons." Obviously the saloons are anything but a blessing to Milwaukee. They are inimical to the public welfare everywhere.

"Q" writes the following from Washington Territory to the Tribune of this city, Minneapolis.

"The temperance boom has struck the territory. The Legislature has succumbed to the vigorous onslaught made to the friends of the cause, and have passed a bill—which is now a law—providing for the teaching of temperance physiology in the high schools. Surely a novel and effective way of starting out to conquer the arch enemy of mankind—whisky. The temperance people were not content, however. They are strong workers, and their plans were matured through the agency chiefly of the W. C. T. U. And when woman sets out to do anything she hardly ever fails. They succeeded in bringing out Miss Narcissa White, of Pennsylvania, an eloquent speaker and an earnest worker. With this leader they again attacked the legislature, and so far have succeeded in getting a local option law through the house, with a possibility of its passing the council and becoming a law. If this is accomplished they will fight for prohibition, and petitions for prohibition amendments are being introduced now in the Legislature. Miss White meanwhile being engaged in rallying to the support of the cause the people of the various towns. She delivered an address in this city at the Alpha Opera House last evening, and was listened to with close attention by a large audience. The style of delivery is pleasing, her argument clean cut and forcible, and her speech devoid of those myriads of figures and statistical complications, which are so tiresome a feature of most temperance addresses. She will have success because she combines with eloquence a charming presence and pleasant manner."

Senator Sutton is harrowing his soul and the souls of the the thousands of Tribune readers, by his wild wail over the failure of prohibition in Kansas and Iowa. A close investigation of his own figures ought to assuage his woe. For example: his heart is most deeply wrung by the condition of things in Lawrence Kansas. He visits the drug store there on a Saturday, and finds that there were 153 sales of liquor that day, aggregating 101¼ pints. Lawrence contains 12,000 inhabitants and the county in which it is situated contains 25,000 people, over 75 percent of whom do their trading in Lawrence. All probably buy their liquor for all purposes there. But give him the benefit of the doubt and base our calculations on three-fourths of the population, 1800. Divide that one day's sale among them and remember the day was Saturday, the busiest day of the week, and you have 5½ pints for each 1,000 people. Stay your tears, dear friend, over the failure of prohibition, till you find a high lisence city showing a better record.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican heretofore a champion of high lisense, "judiciously applied," has now become an earnest advocate of no-lisense, converted by the stern logic of events. In a recent editorial it appeals to the churches to use all their power on the side of temperance, and lays the burden of personal responsibility on their members.

The Republican is one of the strongest, best edited papers in Massachusetts and this change of base is significant.

Clinton B. Fisk writes as follows: "The half has not been told us concerning our Calendar, its matchless beauty as a work of art, is simply perfect. The Union Signal should again describe the department of art so admirably presented for our every morning's inspection. I wish the Calendar had a space in every house in America." General Fisk proves his faith by his works, as he encloses five dollars for additional copies to send his friends.

Mrs. Carson, whose fine artistic taste originated the design of the temperance calendar, has for fifteen years held a most responsible position in the University of Wisconsin. She is said to be the most prominent authority on matters of art criticism in the state, with possibly one exception, and she has considerable reputation in original designing.

The Flour Business in Duluth.

Special to the Globe.

Duluth, Jan. 31.—The flour business here is rapidly assuming great importance and the prospect that Duluth will become a great flour-distributing centre is growing brighter every day, and the day is not far distant, apparently, when the flour business will be of as much importance to Duluth as the wheat business is now. There is at present in the hands of local dealers here about 10,000 barrels of flour, besides about 60,000 barrels in the St. Paul & Duluth warehouses awaiting shipment in the spring. The banks here have promised to advance all the money they want on flour the same as they do on wheat paper and now, providing the grades are well established here. Mr. W. H. Gilbert, owner of a flour mill at Warren, Minn., is in town to-day and will probably remain here for some time to try and perfect arrangements to organize to be run in connection with the flour storage company that has already been started here. The purpose is to enable country millers to send all of their flour direct to Duluth as soon as it is manufactured, to be stored here, and the flour repacked from sacks into barrels, and to have all orders for flour sent to Duluth and filled here, it saving at least ten days in time, which in itself is a great item. Several of the most prominent members of the produce exchange here are actively co-operating with Mr. Gilbert, and it is probable that the barrel company will soon be organized. It is claimed that by getting the country flour well introduced in the East and its standard brought up to the best Minneapolis flour, an immense flour business can be made here and leave a handsome margin for the dealers, as there are about two hundred country flour mills directly tributary to Duluth.

Challenge.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

W. P. Stephens received a telegram yesterday from the backer of McCollough of Winnipeg, offering to skate Judd Carruth a five mile race for $500 a side. McCollough is the man that won one race when Carruth was in a bad condition, owing to sickness, and another one by claiming a foul when there was none. Mr. Stephens says that he will be only too glad to make a match with them, on condition that the men start from opposite corners, as he don't propose to lose another race on a fake claim of foul. An acceptance has been wired on the above condition and if McCollough's backer has any money to lose on a fair race, he will be given a chance to get rid of it. Carruth however, is under engagement to skate against Bromley and other fast skaters of Minneapolis in a few days, and will go there before skating the race in Winnipeg, if takes place. Jud is now out west of Winnipeg visiting his brother. He is in first class condition and if he ever achieves fame as a speed skater the coming race at Minneapolis will afford him an opportunity. One thing certain he can hurry the best of them.

THE LAKESIDE STOCK FARM.

American Agriculturist

About three miles from Syracuse, on the western shore of the lake from which Onondaga County takes its name, lies the thousand-acre farm, known as "Lakeside"—the property of those well-known stock-breeders and importers, Messrs. Smiths, Powell and Lamb. They devote themselves to the rearing of Holstein-Friesian cattle, Hambletonian trotters, and Clydesdale draft-horses. Their Friesian herd has achieved enviable reputation, inasmuch as they have imported and bred with discrimination and success. To persons familiar with the results of common herds, the records of these cows are a matter of no little interest. Every mess of milk is weighed as soon as drawn, year in and year out, and so the proprietors speak from figures. The herd consists mainly of four famous families—the Aaggies, the Netherland family, the Clotildes and the Aegis family—and besides these, others valued rather for their individual merit than for that of their kindred.

Great milkers respond quickly to special rations given with the view to promote excessive milk secretion for a short time. This offers a temptation to breeders to force great yields, for a week or a month, upon which great boasts may be made. This plan is condemned by the proprietors of the Lakeside herd, who not only subject their fine cows to no such strain, but make full year tests—or rather, have their cows constantly tested, so that they report not only the yield for single days, weeks and months, but for the year they are two years old, three years old, etc. The herd contains three cows, the year's records of which average 20,051 pounds and 7 ounces, of over ten tons of milk each. There are ten cows which yield yearly an average of 18,116 pounds and 7¼ ounces, and twenty-six (which number includes nine four-year-olds, three, three-year-olds, and two two-year-olds,) which averaged 16,016 pounds and 1 ounce. These surprising averages of milk production do not indicate their only merit, for as butter producers they are equally remarkable. Thus five cows averaged 20 pounds and 7 ounces of butter a week each; nine cows averaged 19 pounds and ¼ ounce; sixteen cows averaged 17 pounds and 6 ounces; and seven three-year-old heifers averaged 14 pounds and 5¼ ounces.

The noted cow, "Lady Fay," is a typical representation of the breed and of the herd, she has a record of 97 pounds and 5 ounces of milk in one dey, and of 20,412 pounds and 12 ounces of milk in one year. She is a cow of large size, decided beauty, high finish in every detail, and perfection of points.

A Bonanza to Every Farmer.

We offer a premium which will prove a bonanza to every farmer who accepts our offer. Farm, Stock and Home is a Minnesota institution, adapted to our soil and climate, edited by a life long Minnesota farmer and a paper that is invaluable to every progressive farmer. We have made such arrangments as will enable us to give every subscriber of THE JOURNAL a copy of this valuable agricultural paper

FREE FOR ONE YEAR.

This offer must be accepted before January 1st 1886. If you wish to secure lots of reading matter for the coming year subscribe for THE JOURNAL and Farm, Stock and Home at just the price of THE JOURNAL.

For the Ladies.

We have made arrangments with the publishers of the Housekeeper, by which we are able to offer that paper as a premium with THE JOURNAL. The Housekeeper, as its name implies is devoted wholly to the interests of the ladies and is highly appreciated where known. We have arranged to have a copy placed in the hands of all our lady readers and if you like it we can supply you with a copy for 1886. In cases where the premium offer has already been accepted we will add the Housekeeper for a trifle. If any of our lady friends fail to get a copy soon and wish to see it a card addressed to this office will secure a sample copy. The Housekeeper is a monthly paper and is highly prized wherever known.

FARMERS FAVORED AT LAST.

There is certainly no section of the United States where farmers need reading matter, especially suited to the conditions and climate in which they live, than do our Northwestern agriculturists, stock-breeders, fruit-growers, poultry-men, dairymen, etc., etc. A journal devoted exclusively to these branches of husbandry, and one that would champion the farmers' cause as against monopolies, has long been desired by our farmers, but owing to the low price of farm products for several years past, no man or body of men could be found who dared to risk money in the establishment of a paper dependent alone upon the farmer class for its support; yet at the close of last season, and at a time, too, when wheat was lower than ever before, there came into our midst a man of energy, pluck and determination to serve the Northwestern farmer, believing them to be deserving of a high class, strong, vigorous and aggressive paper. After a thorough looking over of the situation and the conditions then existing, the intervals of its issue and price of its subscription was carefully considered and wisely decided. This paper is Farm, Stock and Home, published at Minneapolis, Minn., and issued the 1st and 15th of each month, giving twenty-four papers a year for only 50 cents. Thus are our farmers favored with the best paper for their needs published. With the liberality which has characterized the management of this invaluable paper to our farmers, we are enabled to send it for one year in connection with the JOURNAL only $1 50.

OUR BIG OFFER.

As an inducement for settlement of al over-due subscriptions we have made arrangements with Farm, Stock and Home, of Minneapolis which enables us to give that paper free to all our subscribers. At our own expense we have placed a sample copy of that excellent paper in the hands of all of our subscribers and others and we ask them to look it over and if they like it to call and subscribe. We will also accept payment on all back subscriptions at the regular advance rates. We have moreover prepared a list of some of the best papers with which we will club, thus giving our patrons an opportunity to obtain a great deal of reading matter for a little money. You will do well to call at the office of THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and see what we can do for you.

Northern Grown Garden Seeds.

The Publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., give $1.00 of garden and flower seeds of the subscriber's own selection to every one who subscribes for one year before February 15th, 1886. Send to address given above for copy of the January number, which gives full particulars. Northern grown seeds produce earlier and more vigorous plants, and once tried no others will be used.

The First Lady Gets it.

The publishers of The Housekeeper, Minneapolis, Minn., offer to send it one year free, to the first lady who applies from any postoffice in the United States where there is now no subscriber. Any lady can ascertain whether there are any subscribers to The Housekeeper by asking the postmaster, and if there are none write to the publishers, claiming the prize, sending the addresses of two or three ladies who are good housekeeyers. The subscription price of The Housekeeper is $1.00 per year; and it is cheap at that price. Specimen copies FREE.

Choice Southern Dishes.

Southern people used to be famous for hospitality and excellent cookery. Miss Adelaide Preston has just began a series of articles in The Housekeeper which are to embody all the choice recipes treasured for several generations of an old Virginia family. Any lady who would like to see the number containing the first of these series will recieve one free by sending a postal card to Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

How Six Girls Made Money.

Marion Edmonds Roe, who wrote the popular articles under the above title, which appeared in The Housekeeper of 1884, begins a new series in the January number, under title of "How a Happy Home was Made and Kept." The Housekeeper has come rapidly to the front, and is now approaching 100,000 circulation. It is deservedly popular, its columns being filled with sound common sense and practical wisdom. Send for January number, which is mailed free to any address by Buckeye Pub. Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

DRY GOODS, CLOAKS, BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Only Cash Bargain House in the West.

WE ARE NOT SELLING OUT AT COST, NOR have we any old shop-worn or hand me down top shelve goods, but always to the front with Bargains at cut prices that compel our competitors to hang out their yearly sign, the familiar words "Selling Out at Cost!" to meet our sledge hammer prices. Why do we own our goods cheaper? Because we buy in large quantities, buy for the Great Commander, Cash, and we have experienced buyers; because we sell for cash and have no bad debts; because we turn our goods often and are satisfied with the small profit system. Houston & Ross have commenced to receive their new goods, and are opening out in grand shape. Drop in and see the boys.

Wm. Box reports the number of births in the city, for the past year to be 120—60 male and 60 female. There have been 19 deaths.

August Wentzel was among the victims of the bouncing club. He says he went higher than he ever expected to get from Crookston.

Max Ericsson is preparing his hall to accommodate dancing parties. He is re-fitting and re-furnishing it in good style for the purpose.

You ought to have seen Tom Kelley skip the tra-la-lee. The bouncers got onto him and the way his long legs flew was a caution to the bouncers. He got away.

His Honor, Mayor Montague was in great demand at the depot, while the bouncing club was in session, but a great press of business in the office prevented his attendance.

Notice Fontaine & Anglim's new announcement in this issue. This old and reliable firm are now ready to greet their patrons with a large and complete stock, which is being added to daily.

As will be seen in the announcement elsewhere, E. O. Flanders intends to dispose of a portion of his stock and machinery at auction. This will afford a rare opportunity to secure teams and machinery at your own terms on time.

J. B. Berthiaume has gone to Duluth to look the ground over, and if he is pleased with the prospects, may put in a branch establishment there. At no time have the Berthiaume Bro's contemplated moving their main office there.

The sons of veterans intend to organize a drum corps at an early day. This is as it should be, as it will afford martial music for the G. A. R. when they turn out, something they have lacked heretofore. Let the good work go on and let the corps be organized at an early day.

Hutchinson's 40 days are up and more, and yet our great and good governor Hubbard, don't say whether he is going to break his neck or send him to Stillwater for life. Sheriff Zwickey, for sometime has daily expected the arrival of the death warrant, but at date of present writing, it don't show up, and Zwick may lose that job. Its a job that he don't hanker after, but will do unflinchingly if need be.

Terry & Collin's have gotten out some large posters, announcing a big auction sale, at their stables next Saturday, when they will sell work horses, milch cows, machinery, wagons, harnesses and a thousand and one articles too numerous to mention. Everything goes to the highest bidder, who can secure time until Nov. 1st, on the purchase, if he desires it. Don't fail to be there promptly at one o'clock.

Prof. Thompson has been offered an opportunity to go south in the employ of an immigration society for several months. He has not decided whether he will accept. The Prof. would be an apostle of light illuminating the darkness that reigns in the south land, as he preached the shining of the day-star of the Northwest, and we doubt not that his persuasive eloquence would make many converts and bring many an honest son of toil among us, with a little capital to invest in Red River dirt.

The W. C. T. U. and friends of a reading room have decided to rent the Baptist chapel for the present for that purpose having found, after much inquiry, the room, location and price of rent more desirable than any other accessible in the city. They will give an oyster supper and public entertainment at the room Monday evening, Feb. 15th. Supper beginning at 6 o'clock, and they ask our citizens to encourage by their presence and aid. The ladies will be at the room every afternoon of this week to receive donations of reading matter, pictures, or decorations of any kind that will help to beautify the room, and make it homelike and attractive.

Mr. Wm. Moffat a conductor on the Deleware & Hudson R. R., came up from his residence at Oneonta, N. D. had to bring him around to give us a chance to apply the repertorial tweezers and we found out that he is so well pleased with the country that he thinks seriously of investing some spare change, and it is within the range of human possibilities that he may decide to locate permanently. We have received a sample copy of Woodman's Lawyers Dairy for 1886, notice of which appears elsewhere. No lawyer should be without it, as it is an invaluable work. Call at our office and see our sample.

Ed. George conducted the case for the defuncted dog, before Esq., Palmer last Wednesday and Thursday, and his pleadings were powerful enough to draw tears from a mule—drew a $5 verdict with costs, from the Jury anyhow.

The Winnipeg snow shoe clubs returned on Monday morning. They halted at the depot long enough to get a lunch and bounce a few of our citizens among whom was chief-of-police, John Dowling. The boys evidently had a good time in St. Paul and had not fully recovered yet.

There will be two eclipse, this year one about March 1st when Fontaine & Anglim will receive direct from the manufacturers and importers such a stock of new and nobby dress goods, furnishing, ladies embroidery and novelties that it will knock out anything ever brought to the northwest.

A short time since a thoroughbred Polled Angus steer was slaughtered in Grand Forks and the papers over there claimed that it was the first thoroughbred animal ever killed north of the N. P. railroad. Mr. K. D. Chase says such is not the case, however, as a few years ago he killed a thoroughbred, registered Shorthorn in this city.

The Ada Journal last week contained a big Indian outbreak yarn to the effect that the village of Ada was in iminent danger of being scalped immediately if not sooner. Lightborn & Foote, of the Index recently donned the war paint and with wild war whoops took the warpath, and Fred evidently thinks the whole Chippewa nation is after his gory scalp-lock.

Gen. Winifield Scott Hancock died at Governor's Island, N. Y., at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday. His death was caused by a malignant carbuncle on the back of his neck, which had confined him to his bed for several days. No serious alarm was felt, however, until shortly before he died. He was born in Montgomery County, Pa., Feb. 14th 1824, thus being nearly 62 years old.

Mr. J. O. Milne, went down to Terry & Colin's barn last Saturday, to look over the new importation of dairy cows and when he went home, he took with him a fine grade Ayshire cow and a grade short horn calf. The boys do say that they have brought up the most choice lot this time they ever brought and so it would seem by appearances. Look out for the big auction sale, next Saturday. Sale absolute. Terms easy. Liberal discount for cash.

The city of Crookston contains 5000 inhabitants. This growth has been made since the spring of 1878, almost wholly. From the time the first settler appeared in 1872, until the spring of 78 only about 150 people composed the village, but in the fall of 77 people began to flock into the country, and the effect of the immigration began to be apparent in the following spring, when the buildings began to go up, as if by magic, as fast as the trees could be cut down and got out of the way. We now have a city government, with mayor, council, police and all that sort o' thing. We have a magnificent water power, which drives two large flouring mills, the electric lights, the city water works and has a reserve power for other purposes. The system of water mains will be extended several miles at an early day. Among the business buildings are the two large brick National banks, the new three story Fournet block, the Commercial Hotel, Fortier's block, Fontaine & Anglim's block, Dobson's blocks, the large central school building and many others. The coming of the Crookston & Duluth road, and the Crookston & Southwestern, will more than double our 5000 population in a very short time. Compared with all eastern villages and cities our growth has been remarkable in the short time in which it has been done, and indicates what is our future. We should not omit our manufacturing interests in this hasty enumeration, prominent among which is our lumber mill, capable of sawing 150,000 feet of pine daily, and the planing mill, sash, blind, and door factory. With the opening of the Red Lake Reservation our unlimited supply of pine will be tributary to this point that only needs capital enough to handle and that capital will be forthcoming [illegible]

Our spring stock of carpets, mattings, etc., are on the way. They are very pretty and cheap.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Charlie Rapp was down from St. Hilaire on Saturday last with 100 dozen eggs that it took him about a little less than no time to dispose of at 16 cents per dozen.

Ed. Greenhalgh beat Lou Griggs about a half a lap at the rink last Saturday evening. It is claimed that it was owing to an unlucky tumble that Griggs made. Ed. is a pretty good skater just the same.

The big thaw interferred with the ice carnival matters very seriously. Only for it St. Paul would have had the biggest carnival ever seen on the continent. She has the honor of having built the first ice palace in the United States and of having held the first carnival of the kind.

A large progressive euchre party is announced at the residence of Mr. I. U. Jennings for this evening. It is given by Mr. and Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Adams and being a double-header will be an immense affair. Next Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box will entertain a number of their friends and neighbors at cards.

Deputy Register of Deeds, Clark Van Housen does the honors of the office while John Paterson goes below to take in the big ice house, or such portions thereof as he can well assimilate. By the roadside, Clark is engaged in getting up an abstract book of the county which, when completed will be a valuable work. He has been at it ever since October and thinks it will take till spring to complete.

Wm. Moffat says when he left York State the snow was several feet deep on a level and drifts! Oh, my!! We know how that is ourself. Many's the time we have sailed over the top rail of a high board fence, the roof of a barn or the peak of a stump fence, skirmished about in our neighbor's fields, hunting for roads to go somewhere! Snow? Oh, no, not much; i. e. not much for York State. Why we have seen more snow in one little frog pond in "Toad Holler," in good old Steuben, ere now than all the snow that lies between Crookston and Winnipeg would make if was all in a heap. But then, what can we do? If people will persist in living in such countries in this enlightened day and age of the world how's a fellow going to help it? We can only extend our hearty sympathy and invite 'em in out of the wet.

"Be it ever so humble there's no place like home!"—i. e. providing that home is located in the Valley of the Red River of the North, where you can get 160 acres of footstool that will raise from 20 to 35 bushels of the best spring wheat in the world for a song—and get all the time you want to sing it in. What's the matter with making money in stock where you can get it as cheaply as here, can get hay enough to feed simply for the cutting and can sell your butter and beef animals at such figures as our markets afford? Some say our winters are too cold for stock. By that same token our climate is the healthiest in the world and very little stock dies of disease—something which cannot be said of every locality in Uncle Sam's broad domains. Having carried a large dairy herd through two winters and kept a careful account of the expenses we think we ought to know something about the business and we are fully prepared to vouch for the country for stock-raising and we have the living witnesses to the assertion that there is no better country for the business on the footstool. One thing we note that everybody who has tried it is satisfied with it and the country and wherever you find a growler, watch out and see if he hasn't been raising all wheat to the exclusion of everything else. We have summered and wintered with this country since its infancy and we have never seen that man "left" who "farms" as he should. We saw the one crop theory faithfully tried in the Mississippi bottoms, on land rich enough to raise from one-half to one bale of cotton per acre, and that, too, at a time when cotton brought from $75 to $100 per bale in the home market and men lost money raising it. Treated as Nature intended it to be we have the best country out of jail and many a farmer has acquired a pleasant and comfortable home and, is as "independent as a hog on ice." Let all who are disposed to sneeze read our county financial statement—a little article of 14 columns of solid nonpariel—which THE JOURNAL will present next week and compare it with that of their old county down east and we will bet a big apple that Polk County will not suffer by the comparison.

Last week THE JOURNAL received a card saying "Beware!! THE MYSTIC League has its wan eye onto you!" This was followed by another the next day, remarking that the MYSTIC LEAGUE was still a blinkin' in our direction. You fellows want to go a little slow, or first you know, we shall get our two eyes onto you, and we assure you that we will let daylight through it we do! So, there now, take that and see how you like it.

P. S. We have found out and here's your daylight. It means McKenzie's Mystic League Cigar, which can be had at the Second Street news stand, at a nickel apiece. They are good ones too.

On a High.

THE JOURNAL is very sorry to have it to say about a public official, but the truth compels us to say that Chief of Police, John Dowling, got "elevated" on Monday morning, soon after the arriva of the train from St. Paul. Tom Kelley would have been in the same position if he had not resolutely ran away from temptation. August Wentzel and other prominent citizens were made more prominent in the same way. It is always bad enough at best but in such a public manner, in such a public place, its a terror!

The Carnival in Crookston.

Notwithstanding the fact that Crookston boasts of no big ice house, yet his majesty the ice king, accompanied by his lovely queen and a large retinue of their faithful subjects, deigned to visit us on Saturday last. His majesty visited the office of His Honor the Lord High Mayor, demanded and received the keys of the city and then proceeded to take in the city in right royal style. He captured the band who played their best music on the auspicious occasion. His majesty's troups evidently did their best to render sweet music but if that is the best they can do we don't wonder they like to get out once in awhile. The event was a very pleasant one and highly enjoyed by all.

Mentor Mentionings.

At the Episcopal church, in Mentor, Mr. Frank A. Hayes was married to Miss Florence Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Berg, on Thursday Feb. 4th, the Rev. Frederick J. Tassell officiating. The groomsman was Mr. Charles Berg, brother of the bride, bridesmaid, Miss Cora A. Hayes, sister of the groom; all parties reside at Mentor. After the ceremony the friends of the newly married couple drove to the home of the bride's parents where they were handsomely entertained. After which Mr. and Mrs. Hayes went to their new home where they at once commence the duties of houskeeping. There were several very nice and appropriate presents given and it is hoped by all their friends they may have a bright and successful journey through this life which they will deserve to enjoy.

Beltrami Bounces.

Iver J. Ingebrigtson was married to Miss Elizabeth Nesheim, by Rev. A. Oefstedal, at the residence of John Thompson, Beltrami, Friday Feb. 5th. Mr. Ingebrigtson has left A. W. Mott & Co., for a while to spend the honeymoon on his beautiful farm home at Aldal. We wish him much joy and hope that his smiling face will shine on Beltrami once again.

Wylie Waifs.

Poor sleighing these days.

Miss Rose Powers is visiting friends in Crookston.

Miss May Kennedy, of Euclid, was in town Sunday.

Wm. Wylie will give a ball on the evening of February 11th. All are invited.

John Boyle, of Red Lake Falls, took the train Saturday, on the way to the carnival.

Henry Detling was lost a few nights since on his way from the Falls. He now believes in the efficacy of a good loud cry.

Mr. Wylie is mourning the death of a valuable horse. The farmers here fear the disease to be contagious and are taking precautions accordingly.

Ye correspondent, with a party of friends, drove into Crookston a few days ago. The streets appeared lively but not so much wheat moving as at our station.

VOX POPULI.

The Thirteen Towns.

Mr. S. O. Bagley has contracted to drive all of Mr. Walker's logs (40,000,000,000, feet) the coming spring. The Clearwater and Walker Brook dams are now being repaired, new wagons built and everything put in tip top shape preparatory to driving this vast amount of logs.

All winter goods are now sold out at actual cost, at

HACK & GALLASCH'.

What Polk County Needs.

Polk county contains a soil rich in all of the essential elements necessary to plant growth, and only needs the capital necessary to properly work that soil, to be one of the richest countries in the world. We have not made that progress which the wealth of our soil would warrant. For the sole reason that almost every farmer came here without means to properly open and work a farm and he has had to earn it all as he goes along. The fact that we have so many well to-do farmers in our midst as we have to day, speaks volumes in favor of our rich soil and shows what might have been accomplished had every man, upon arrival had the means to secure his needed teams and farming impliments, and to erect his buildings, instead of having to run in debt for all of these things. Capitalists and speculators took advantage of the needs of the country to reap a rich harvest, well-knowing that the country itself was naturally rich, enough to stand the drain. Even under these circumstances, all who invested carefully and judiciously; been economical and good managers have made money, while many who have been reckless, heedless and poor managers have had to suffer. Grain buyers seeing the condition of things, at once took advantage of the necessities of the country, to buy the grain at their own figures. Thus it is that the rumor of "hard times" has obtained. Now, probably not more than one eighth of the land of Polk county is actually under cultivation and Polk county to-day needs money enough to develop the balance of her lands. If farmers east, who are making a bare living on land worth from $30 to $200 per acre, should sell out and invest the proceeds in our rich soil, they could make independent fortunes and elegant homes in a few years. If a sufficient amount of capital, now unemployed in the east, or invested at from 3 to 4 per cent, per annum, could be induced to come here, it could be safely invested at from 7 to 10 per cent and our farmers could well afford to pay that interest and make well out of it. To-day all that Polk county actually needs, is more capital, but she could supply good comfortable homes to ten times her present population, should those parties bring with them money enough to start right, and that is not a very large sum. A man can start in well with $2,000 capital and a capital of $5,000 would give him as comfortable surroundings as he has east on any farm, worth $100 an acre or more. Capital engaged in a FARM here will pay a big return and we don't mean by that—wheat raising as a speciality. That is not farming. All kinds of stock are in good demand and can be raised here as cheaply as anywhere, and far cheaper than in many portions of the country. To the capitalist, who would be satisfied with a reasonable return for his money, Polk county offers great inducements, as well as to the young man of limited means, who wishes to secure a little home cheap. This will not always be the case however as our cheap lands are passing into the hands of men who are making thereon comfortable homes, and it will not be many years before there will be no more cheap lands in the county, even at our present rate of increase. Now is the time to invest your capital and muscle in cheap Polk county farms.

Oh, Ladies!

Look at the astonishing low prices Hack & Gallasch are selling out their Jerseys at.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to occoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

WALNUTINE BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY, FOR THE HAIR.

WALNUTINE is prepared from the Extract of Black Walnut Hulls and Mexican Soap Root with Vasaline and other ingredients (agreeably perfumed). In the Walnut Hulls we get the Coloring and Astringent matter. In the Vasaline we get the Softening and Dressing qualities. In the Mexican Soap Root we get the Cleansing and Stimulating effects at the roots of the hair. It is not a Dye! [We do not use Nitrate of Silver.] We invite Ladies and Gentlemen—OLD or YOUNG, BALD or GRAY—to use WALNUTINE, knowing that its effect will cause you to recommend it to others who desire to produce a healthy growth of dark or brown hair. It will gradually change and restore Gray hair to its natural color, without discoloring the skin. It also removes Scaly Humors and Dandruff and prevents the hair from falling off. We recommend the disuse of ALL OLD REMEDIES and a trial of this NEW DISCOVERY. It is unquestionably the Best Hair Restorative, Tonic and Dressing EVER MADE!! It is sold by all Druggists at 25 per cent. less than the old $1.00 price—our price being 75 cents per bottle, LARGE SIZE.

CAUTION!! Don't be induced to take any other article—insist on having WALNUTINE! BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY when you call for it. J. R. BOND & CO., Chicago, Proprietors. The Trade supplied by all WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

The following motion prevailed to-wit: That the county of Polk will pay to the town or village of Fisher in said county 75 per cent of the cost of making abutment and placing into position, the bridge built across Red Lake River in said town and village. Provided that such improvement be made and completed in compliance with plans submitted by C. P. Jones Esq. and that the trestle work shall be similar to that used at the bridge recently built at Mallory in said county, and that the piling used shall be of white or burr oak perfectly sound in every respect, and at least 7 inches in diameter at the top end if piles are 40 feet long or 10 inches in diameter if piles are but 30 feet long and said piles to be driven 8 feet into the blue clay which lies beneath an upper strata of sand, and that a 2000 pound hammer be used from a 20 foot drop. The piling used in said work to be previously pealed.

On motion the board adjourned till 9 o'clock A. M. Feb'y 3rd.

FEBRUARY THIRD.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

The applications of Fontaine & Anglim, Geo. G. Macdonnell, Crookston Roller Mill Co. and E. M. Walsh for abatement of personal taxes for the year 1885 were granted.

The auditor was directed to correct clerical errors made by assessors in the personal assessments of Gomer Evans of Angus, C. Sangstad of Vineland, and the Crookston Roller Mill Co. of Crookston and John Tideman of Tabor.

The application of Howard Lancaster for abatement of personal taxes in the village of Fisher was granted.

The tax application of I. U. Jennings which had been referred to the assessor of Fanny Tp. was duly considered by the board and on motion the same was rejected.

The liquor license of Joseph Freidsam of East Grand Forks was transferred to MaCaffrey & Reynolds, and the bond of the latter was approved.

The following liquor licenses were granted and accompanying bonds approved to wit:

A. & L. Levi of East Grand Forks M. Biver and Biyer & Shauntzer of Euclid, Anders & Bakken of Tilden, Knute K. Austin of King.

School District No. 158 was organized comprizing sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33, in Tp. 149 R. 42 in compliance with the petition of D. L. Kelly and others.

School district No. 159 was organized. Comprising Sec. 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, Tp. 149, R. 41, in compliance with the petition filed for such organization.

Board adjourned till 2 P. M.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

The petition for changing the boundaries of school district No. 13, was presented, and a hearing having been given all parties interested in said petition, and after due consideration the prayer of the petitioners was granted, provided that the order detaching the territory as prayed for in said petition shall not be in force until the time when such attached territory shall be organized into a new school district, and such new school district shall issue its bonds in favor of school district No. 13 for such amount as may be ascertained to be its just and true proportion of the present bonded indebtedness of district No. 13 aforesaid. The basis of such settlement shall be taken from the assessment roll of the real and personal property situate in the territory affected hereby for the year 1885. Provided further, that in the event school district No. 13 aforesaid should recover any amount from school Dist. No. 117, of Polk Co., Minnesota, as as and for the latters proportion of the bonded indebtedness of said school district No. 13, or for the value of any school building now or formerly owned by said last named district, such amount so recovered shall be ratably divided between districts No. 13 and the new district to be created of the territory hereby detached.

P. J. MCGUIRE,
Clerk of the Board.

The February Dorcas is at hand and we find it contains an excellent article on home Decoration, written by the Editor, and accompanied with two designs for screens. We wish to commend these articles as they will enable one with a small amount of material and moderate skill to make a handsome home at little cost. Also an article on Crewel Painting by Miss Hepworth Dixson, of London, besides many knitted and lace crotchet patterns; a couple of squares for counterpanes, lady's breakfast cap, infants plain knitted skirt, antique tidy, and a knitted shawl.

This magazine is published at 872 Broadway, New York. Price of subscription, $1.00 per year. Ten cents for sample copy.

Peterson's Magazine for March opens with an article that will attract more than ordinary attention: "Salem and Salem Witchcraft," illustrated with engravings where the witches were tried—a fac-simile of the death warrants, etc. The other articles—original stories—are all of the usual high character which distinguishes "Peterson." There is a charming steel-engraving, "Dear Mamma" a mammoth colored fashion plate; a colored pattern for java canvas; and not less than fifty wood-cuts, illustrating fashions, embroidery patterns, etc. It seems to us that every lady, and even every family, must find this magazine indispensible. The price is but two dollars a year, which places it within the reach of all: with great deduction to clubs. Specimens are sent gratis to those wishing to get up clubs. Now is a good time to get up clubs. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Alden's Cyclopoedia of Universal Literature.

The work is the outcome of many years of planning and preparation. It will be an almost indispensible work of refference for every work of reference for every library, large or small, a trustworthy guide to what is most worth knowing of the literature of all ages and all nations. Occupying a dozen or more volumes, and yet issued at a price so low as to be within the reach of all, a familiarity with its contents will constitute a liberal education to a degree that can be claimed for few other works in existance. Dr. Lossing, the eminent historian and author, says of it: "I am strongly impressed with the great intrinsic value of the work as a popular educator in the high department of learning. The plan is admirable. Combining as it does a personal knowledge of an author with specimens of his or her best literary productions, gives it an inestimable power for good among the people." The work is being published in parts of 160 pages each, paper covers, at the price of 15 cents, also in very handsome cloth bound volumes gilt tops, 480 pages, for 60 cents. The parts can be exchanged for bound volumes, at any time. Four parts are now ready, also the first bound volume and volume two will be issued in a few days. The publishers 132-page illustrated catalogue of standard books may be had for 4 cents, or condensed 16-page catalogue free. John B. Alden, Publisher, New York.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one N. D. Eudson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said N. D. Eudson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of $50 the value of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack, and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said N. D. Eudson. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of March 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the front door of Munn Bro's carriage works on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884; and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 598. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes, lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 67-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100,) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100,) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due; said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brauvn, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 132 to 134, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($64.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine, (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

By reason of such default, and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the authority in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section twenty-four (24,) Township one hundred and fifty-three (153) north, of Range forty-seven (47) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

FERTILE FACTS.

FERTILE, MINN., FEB. 8, '86.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—If you will kindly allow me space in your columns, I will take it "in hand to set forth" before the readers, whom the JOURNAL weekly unrolls its "panoramic length," somethings most surely believed among us, to be Fertile facts, neither last nor least; that our modest hamlet, though now so little among the thousands, of the great north state, is in a growing condition, and bids fair in the evolution of the fruitful years that works this grand century's afternoon, with a grandeur yet unknown, to become more than a city on paper. Just at this season to draw it mild neither society nor soil are remarkably prolific, though concerning the latter, it may safely be affirmed that these wide extended plains contain a good deal of land to the acre, while the former, suffice it be observed, is less numerous, by far, so much, so in fact, that news does not bear any comparison to the growth of our "No. 1 hard," but might, perchance, if meager date afforded your correspondent possession of the same expansive force, in his mind, as hidden leaven in the mass of meal. It is fondly hoped, to say the least, that the present items however valueless in themselves, may be taken as happy omens of the not far distant future, and like the indespensible cipher of mathematic locate the significant figures in this new chapter of Red River arithmetic, so far to the left as to make a quantity large enough for good dividends. J. S. La ue, our enterprising merchant, is devising liberal things in his line, and in the early spring will either enlarge his present store or build anew in order to make room for still larger invoices of choise goods at cheap rates. He left this morning for a brief trip to the twin cities, and closely in the wake of his return, no doubt there will be more to follow, whether the anticipated railroad follows enroute to Red Lake Falls or not. Appropos of the latter, it is generally granted by our citizens, that the iron horse, like a popular preacher, will "draw," but regardless of the near or distant advent of Elihu Burritt's "gigantic hexapod," people come here to stay inasmuch as the "eternal fitness" of the name both draws and holds. Messrs Kankel & Sohler, the wide-awake proprietors of several mills in this vicinity are laying broad plans for the extension of their already large business, and during the coming season will reconstruct the dam at this place, thereby measurably increasing the water-power, which at present, is unequal to the demand. Mr. Barhholtz, the genial proprietor of the Fertile Hotel, is amply possessed of the poets constant element, in luck, known as genuine solid, old teutonic pluck, as all know, whose happy privilege it has been to sample the products of his council. The school house like a hill city, the cynosure of all eyes, is a tasty and convenient structure, surmounted by a cupola, and furnished with a bell, which the eager pupils delight in ringing out to the wild sky, at times appointed for "gathering the children in." The building also serves the purpose of a sanctuary on the Sabbath day, and soldiers of the cross, assembled there find without doubt as good an equipment for the war, as though worshiping in underground arches and stately towers. It is said that teachers in Fertile, unlike Mr. Whittier's "Brisk Wilder" of the birch and rule, find such things only a superfluity of naughtiness, as none but good boys and girls thrive in our bracing air; bad ones contrary to the traditional story-book model, "die early," or go west to grow up with the country. Before concluding this letter, it may be fitting to notice briefly a trip to Beltrami, where Fertilians now do their railroad business. Through the favor of the R. R. Co., seconded by the courtesy of their efficient agent, F. B. Dykeman, of Carmel, N.Y., the waiting room of the station has lately been thrown open for religious services, and Rev. Mr. Merritt, of Ada, preaches there regularly every two weeks. At this time also Rev. C. E. Reynolds, of Royalton, is holding a daily service of meetings, which are warmly encouraged by the people. It was my privilege to hear both of these Rev. gentlemen at the time of my visit there last Saturday and Sunday, a privilege most highly appreciated, as preaching here in my own vernacular may be metaphorically described by the poetic conception of angels visits, though Mr. Merritt officiates fortnightly at the Winslow school house, four miles west; being accustomed in the east to have the gospel brought to the door, so to speak, it is a new experience to travel so far after it, but I find these Nor' Westers, are fertile in expedients, and one of alien habit soon learns to adapt himself to present surroundings.

BERT E. M. HALL.

A Year with the Glyndon Dairy.

Most people know that farmer E. D. North of Glyndon, follows the business of dairying to some extent—and works hard at it. He raises wheat too—a little—but some years he could not afford to do so if he did not have the milk department to help out on expenses. Mr North's herd and his dairying operations are not extensive—only seventeen milch cows—the work being done by himself and members of his family, and the entire product being shipped, in the form of milk, to the Fargo market. He gives The News the following statement for the several months of the year 1885:

MONTH	GALLONS.	AMOUNT.
January	996	$119.52
February	878	105.36
March	954	114.68
April	1,029	122.85
May	1,194	147.28
June	1,118	122.98
July	1,160	127.60
August	1,120	123.20
September	1,048	115,28
October	1,118	128.39
November	1,776	130.96
December	1,198	143,76
Total	13,052	$1,501.29
Proceeds of calves sold		60.00
Average product per cow, gallons		768¼
Amount per cow		$81,64

The above is the gross showing. Following is a list of expenditures, during the period:

21 tons bran @ $10	$210.00
45 tons hay @ $3	135.00
Five months herding	57.35
Interest on cost of cows, 10 per c	68.00
Taxes	12.00
Total	$148.35
Net proceeds for year	$1078.94

It is to be noted that the larger portion of Mr. North's herd are winter cows, i. e., calving at that season instead of in the spring, as is the more common. This fact goes to lower the aggregate products in gallons, but not in its value, the milk commanding a higher price in winter. A computation on the butter basis—most commonly the way dairymen have to figure—would show 3352 pounds for the year, or 255 pounds per cow.

Now this is not written for the intent to make out that a small dairy farm is a bonanza for anybody—but it does go to show that if a thousand dollars can be gained in a year by strict attention to one branch of the business, it is worth looking after. The only outfit required is embraced in what we have here suggested; the cows, ordinary snug barn and stable, the requisite cans for milk and cream, and regular and faithful work day by day. Mr. North's cows are not thoroughbreds, but they are all good animals, mostly of a large size, a few half-bloods. He cares more for his own judgement in selecting than for pedigree, and regards generous feeding and good care the first requisites to successful dairying.

How 3 Cents Brought $40.00,

And will often do it again. A reader tells how the advice got about selling his grain, in one number of the Prairie Farmer, which cost him only 3 cents, saved him over $40. Many others tell of similar and larger gains in the same way. No other Journal in the country has been more uniformly correct in its advice to farmers about markets, future prices, etc., than the Prairie Farmer, since it came under the management of Orange Judd, who is by the way, one of the oldest Agricultural Editors in the United States, and is entirely at home in everything pertaining to soil culture in all its branches, and all that relates to out-door Rural and Farm life, also to in-door life in the country, village or city. No Journal has a better housekeeping department. The Prairie Farmer is now an "A 1" Journal, full of good things. In short it is just what is needed in every home, and it will pay. Though beautifully got up, and issued every week, the price is reduced to $1.50 a year, or less than 3 cents a week. Send for it now, as the new (volume, 59) for 1886, is just beginning. You will thank us for advising you to do so. If not satisfied to take the paper on our advice, send for a specimen copy and see for yourselves. Address Prairie Farmer, Chicago, Ill.

A MINNESOTA STOCK FARM.

Under this heading the Farmers Advocate contains a description of the stock farm of Mr. C. A. Parker, at Newport, a short distance from St. Paul, a portion of which we append for the benefit if any who may be trying to decide as to the relative merits of the different breeds:

"After a close study of the different breeds Mr. Parker selected the Holsteins. The superiority of these over others, he claims, is that they are the best milkers and for beef they are equal to the best. In support of this latter claim he cites that of his bull, Mr. Pecksniff No. 563 H. H. B., on becoming too heavy for service, had to be fattened and in the first sixty days of feeding gained at the rate of four pounds a day and the next sixty days on an average of two and three-fourths pounds per day. When killed at the age of three years and seven months he weighed twenty-seven hundred pounds and dressed sixteen hundred and forty with one hundred and fifty-six pounds of rough tallow.

Mr. Parker's herd includes some of the noted animals of the country, and to give an idea of them I will have to describe some of the best ones. The imported cow Winnifred 231 H. H. B., fed on grass alone, at a public test trial at the Wisconsin Experimental Farm, gave seventy-six pounds of milk a day. He owns two of her daughters registered as Mendota Queen 1662 and Monona 3191, also Princes Midwould 2d daughter of Princess Midwould 426, who received the first prize at the Centennial. Another prominent one is the Maid of Lamartine 4187, a two-year-old, who gave this summer, under common treatment and feed, forty pounds per day. Her bull calf, Western Chief 516, Mr. Parker is reserving for his own use, and lately refused $200 for the animal. Also another prominent one is Geziema 2d 1038, a large nearly white animal, the mother of Mountain Rose 4034, and Prairie Queen 9052, the latter weighing at birth one hundred and seventeen pounds.

Mr. Parker has lately added by purchase four animals, one male, Hiawatha Chief No. 1930 H. F. H. B., and three females, Music 565, Phlox 7013, and Klea 7267. These four deserve special mention as they are in all respects worthy animals. The bull Hiawatha Chief, sire Rosse 909, dam Music 565, is a direct descendant of old Echo, the largest milker in the world, having a record of over twenty-three thousand seven hundred pounds of milk a year. The cow Music is a niece of Echo, and has a milk record of fourteen thousand four hundred pounds a year, seventy-nine pounds a day. Her sire Uncle Tom 163, is of the herd of Smith & Powell. She is now six years old, weighs sixteen hundred and thirty-seven pounds, and is probably without a peer in the State. Phlox and Klea are year old heifers, but have first class backing. The former was sired by Compeer 209, dam Bonnie Jean 783, who has a milk record of sixteen hundred and forty-five pounds in thirty days. The full sister of Phlox gave when twenty-one months old eleven hundred and seven pounds of milk in a month. Klea was sired by Prince Imperial 1104, grandsire Netherland Prince 710, dam Lady of Brock 2d 2790, grand Dikker, with milk record of eighty-two pounds a day. Prominent among her ancestors is the dam of Prince Imperial Carlotta 78, who gave at three years of age fifty-seven and one-half pounds in thirty days, eleven thousand, eight hundred, and eighty-six and one-fourth pounds in a year, and made twelve and one-sixteenth pounds of butter in a week. She was winner of the first prize at the New York State fair, and two of her calves have sold for $1,000 each. Lady of Brock 2d as a two year old, milked forty-nine pounds a day and her dam eighty-two pounds.

Mr. Parker has a large number of thoroughbred and grade calves, which he is raising, and most of them weighed at birth from one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five pounds. His recent sales include sixteen high grade heifers and two thoroughbred bulls to ex-Gov. W. R. Marshall for his stock farm at Bird Island, Minn. His former bull Ulbe 2d 2405 went to parties in St. Peter. B. K. Watson, of Lakeland, purchased Black Jim 6181 and John George, of Woodbury, Milton George (entered for registry.)

After looking over Mr. Parker's stock one goes away with the impression that there is money in this kind of farming and that others would do well to follow his example. There will come a time and in the near future that the farmers of Washington and Dakota counties will drop wheat to a great extent and make this change for the better—stock farming.

The financial statement could not be got ready for this issue. It will appear in our next and continue three weeks.

Frank Jerome's new hotel is crawling upward slowly but surely. Frank will have a good one if he don't lay up a cent.

Jud Carruth went to Minneapolis on Friday evening of last week. It is thought that he will go into training for future contests.

Cashier C. E. Sawyer, of the First National, has gone to Wisconsin for a short visitation. He will interview the big ice house ere his return.

The Masonic sociable on Wednesday evening of last week was one of the best attended and most enjoyable of the series. Another takes place next week.

The Globe produced a picture which it called Fred Reynolds. A stranger might recognize the genial Fred in those lineaments but an intimate friend would never.

A carload of horses for Winnipeg was attached to Tuesday's express train. A portion of them were taken off here to get up one that had got down. They were a fine lot.

An agent of the Continental Insurance Co., has been interviewing Phil Porger's attorney, John N. Ives, with a view to settlement. Phil will get his full damages if he holds out for it.

The announcement is made that A. Dewey, of the Granville Transcript, formerly of the Fisher Bulletin, has been appointed clerk of the court. We congratulate Bro. Dewy upon his good fortune.

A letter mailed at Mentor, on January 27th reaches us this week, after having traveled all over the world, apparently. It was a communication, signed "H" and contained items that have been sent in by others since so that it would be useless to publish it at this late day. We trust that "H." will pardon our seeming neglect when he sees how it occurred and will write us another in the near future.

Postmaster McKinnon went to Chicago last week to attend the big meeting of postmasters held in that ancient village. Sandy insisted that he was not going to Wash, to consult Grove, upon the leading political issues of the day, but one thing is dead sure he goes a great way in that direction. We trust he will have a safe journey, a pleasant time and be sure to turn out the gas when he sleeps alone.

Peter Cornelius has obtained a thoroughbred Southdown ram which cost $50. He has a fine flock of 50 grade Southdown ewes and says that his experience with sheep shows that they pay better than anything else he has raised on his farm. The wool more than pays all expenses and he has the increase as clear profit. He says mutton in threshing time helps out the expense account wonderfully.

Terry & Collin's first auction sale occurred on Saturday last, at their sale stables in this city. Notwithstanding the day was extremely cold the attendance was good and the bidding spirited. A considerable amount of farm machinery was disposed of, several teams sold at good figures and a number of good milch cows went at not extra high figures. Dunc wielded the hammer and proved himself a good auctioneer.

The progressive euchre party, given by Mr. and Mrs. I. U. Jennings and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Adams was a grand affair and very heartily enjoyed. While coming home to dinner last week, on the day that the snow fell, cogitating on what manner of a head prize should be given, Mr. I. U. Jennings saw an immense cave in a snow bank and stopped dumb with amazement to see if the bear was at home. He soon saw that the hole was produced by the foot of some lawyer, and brother who had gone that way before, on his way home to dinner. The idea struck him to build a gun-boat to fit that foot. He consulted with engineer Adams who said that there were trees in the big woods big enough and that he could charter a flat car to bring down a log big enough. No sooner said than done and the shoe was made and in order not to show partiality its mate was made though it cost a heap to hire the Great Eastern to use as a last, but the boys heeded not expense, their object being to have a good time. At the general nose count it was found that John Cromb won the big shoe (and it was found to be an exact fit.) Later, it was discovered that Judge C. S. Spendley had tied John on the count, 17 and 17, but as this was not discovered in time to "saw off" the shoe, the Judge will receive the other as soon as Jim Creighton can rig up his safe moving machinery and haul it up on the hill to the Judge's residence. W. B. Dawly took the booby prize a crane dude, all wool and a yard wide. Mrs. C. E. Dampier received the ladies' progressive prize, a handsome picture, and Mrs. Wessler took the next, a woolen crane. Seventy-two guests attested to the enjoyment of the evening and were [illegible]

DIED.

BIVINS—At the residence of her father-in-law, Mr. Frank Bivins, on Sunday, Feb. 14th, 1886, at 8 o'clock p. m., of heart disease, Mrs. Jennie Cassidy Bivins, beloved wife of E. M. Bivins, Esq., and daughter of W. W. and Eliza Cassidy, of Read's Landing, Minn.

Deceased had been a resident of this city but a short time, but in that short time, by an exemplary christian life had endeared many to her. She was married on Christmas day 1883, and the following spring went with her husband to Stephen, in Marshall Co., where they lived during the summer of '84. In the spring of '85 she came to this city with her husband to reside. She was a consistent and faithful member of the M. E. Church, ever more solicitious for the happiness and welfare of others, than for herself, which qualities had endeared her to all with whom she became acquainted. Her father and mother arrived on Monday's train, but too late to see her alive. Appropriate services were held at the residence of Mr. Bivins on Monday, at 4:00 p. m. and the remains were taken to her old home at Read's Landing, to be interred in Riverside cemetery, accompanied by her father, mother and husband.

Nothing is our own; we hold our pleasures
Just a little while, ere they are fled.
One by one life robs us of our treasures;
Nothing is our own except our dead.

They are ours, and held in faithful keeping,
Safe forever, all they took away.
Cruel life can never stir that sleeping;
Cruel time can never seize that prey.

Justice pales; truth fades; stars fall from heaven;
Human are the great whom we revere:
No true crown of honor can be given,
Till we place it on a funeral bier.

Then our joy is lost—and life will take it—
Then no memory of the past remains—
Save with some strange, cruel sting, to make it
Bitterness beyond all present pains.

Death more tender hearted, leaves to sorrow
Still the radiant shadow, fond regret:
We shall find in some far, bright to-morrow
The joy He has taken, living yet.

Only the dead hearts forsake us never;
Death's last kiss has been the mystic sign
Consecrating Love our own forever,
CROWNING IT ETERNAL AND DIVINE.

So when Fate would fain besiege our city,
Dim our gold, make our flowers fall,
Death, the Angel, comes in love and pity,
And, to save our treasures, claims them all.

Thursday's train was a few hours late owing to a slight accident. No one seriously hurt.

Sam Rosenthal is away on a combined visit of business and pleasure. Look out for the hereafter in big type.

Gen. Geo. J. McManus has returned from a brief visit to the piney woods. Gen. Mac says the dusky maiden sang her lullaby in vain—his heart being in the lodge of the pale-faced maiden.

Our New Spring Goods are arriving daily, and are much cheaper than ever before, call early. Fontaine & Anglim.

We were promised information in regard to the arrangements made for transportation to the firemens' ball at Moorhead on Monday evening next, but for some reason we have not been advised as yet, so can say nothing about it.

The Grand Forks Plaindealer, says: "H. Burr returned to Crookston yesterday after spending a few days in Grand Forks." That's what they all do Mr. Plaindealer, a few days in Grand Forks is enough to satisfy any reasonable man!

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. opened their reading room on Broadway on Monday evening with appropriate services. They deserve great credit for their indifatigable labors in the cause. It should be, and doubtless will be, fully appreciated.

McKenzie was trying to poke fun at one of the pupils of the High School thinking him on a wild goose chase because he spent some hours traveling about the city in search of an "oblong square." That only shows that Mac has never "travelled" and has some things yet to learn. The young man is only 20 years old and starts on his search only one year too soon. If he waits until he is of lawful age, and can start well recommended, searches in the right direction his faith being well founded, his laudable efforts to find the "oblong square" will no doubt be amply rewarded and he would then be able to give Mac a pointer, but he wouldn't unless Mac had also found it.

The Norden Society.

A Scandinavian Singing Society has recently been organized in this city with the intention of holding a series of singing schools. Prof. Lindberg, formerly of this city, recently of Duluth, will conduct the class which starts in with good prospects. O. O. Christianson, is President, Ole Hamery Vice-President, John Buhn Secretary, and O. H. Bang Treasurer. For the present the meetings will be held in the end room, fronting Main St., over the Merchants' National bank.

A Farmer's Department.

A prominent farmer of Polk County suggested that we place a column or so at the disposal of the farmers, for the discussion of such items of interest to them as are constantly recurring. This is a good practical suggestion and one that we would be more than pleased to have acted upon. We will certainly do our part to make it a success and it could be made a very valuable feature if the live progressive farmers would try it. Many do not care to see their name in print and this is not necessary, as they can use any name they like but the real name of the writer must in every case accompany the communication, on a slip of paper or otherwise so that we may know who the writer is. After all we have said about this matter we sometimes get articles for publication signed by fictitious names with a request for publication. We NEVER publish ANY article, good, bad or indifferent the authorship of which we do not know. The reasons why we do not are too obvious to need comment. A great deal of practical information could be derived from a farmers' column if every farmer would discuss his manner of doing this and that, give his ideas on farming in this county, and everything important connected therewith. We shall be pleased to see such a department established and will do all in our power to encourage it.

A Tin Wedding.

A number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marcum visited that worthy couple at their residence out on the prairie on Thursday afternoon of last week, taking along dead loads of tinware to aid in an appropriate celebration. A very enjoyable time was had, presents were numerous and all useful and the merry party returned in the evening highly pleased with the success of the event.

Not For Sparks.

Grand Forks Plaindealer.

Yesterday at the depot a very few congregated, among whom were Conductors Copeland and Stahl, Deacon Walker, Chas E. Holt and Postmaster McDonald and the ever present reporter. The conversation turned upon politics, and some reference to Sparks fired Charlie Holt up and he remarked that Sparks was cleaning out a rotten department, that he was doing all that he could to unearth the gigantic land frauds which had been accomplished and more of the same sort. Postmaster McDonald, though an officer under a democratic administration, thought that Sparks was all wrong, and if he continued in office the whole Northwest country west of the Mississippi river would be depopulated and be merged back into the Louisana purchase. Conductor Copeland, who is not only a republican but an orator, stretched forth his hand and proclaimed that—

As the "Sparks" from the fiery flames arose;
Back east the honest granger sped;
In far off lands immigration goes,
And the Northwest lies bare and dead!

He continued in lurid eloquence that must be heard to be appreciated, that the settlers upon the public domain had come forth from eastern homes and peopled a new country and made a new land whose fame was known from where the Atlantic ocean dashed against the rock bound coast of Maine to where the calm Pacific gently washed the shores of California. From the snow bound regions of the Ice King's home to the orange groves of Florida the gentle winds and raging blasts had caried its praises far off in the old world where freedom loving hearts ground beneath the heel of tyrant kings awaited an opportunity to join the ever surging throng of westward bound immigrants marching to this land. The honest settler who made this country famous, were of the ninety nine per cent whom Sparks had charged as frauds. He did not believe in it, nor would any one who had lived in this country and know those who had come here, made homes and struggled with the winter blizzard, the summer cyclone and the 2 per cent a month of our existance. "All aboard for Crookston," shouted the conductor cutting short a fiery retort from Mr. Holt, and the interested listeners without another word knew the matter had been settled.

Woodside Dreams.

Now it came to pass, after many days, after the merry-making at the house of Sibel, who was a just woman, and did justice to all, who came to the merry making that I fell into a sound sleep, and as I slept I dreamed and in my dream I was up in an exceedingly high mountain, where I could see all over the wicked province of Woodside, and as I beheld, I saw many people going up and down in the land, and while I yet beheld, I heard as it were, the noise of many waters; then I was touched with an unseen hand, and my ears were opened as it were, and the noise I heard was the voices of many people. And it came to pass out of the multitude of the people, there appeared a bay horse, which came out of the south, and a chariot followed the horse, and in the chariot appeared the Queen of Sheba, and the driver was as one, who drove privately, even as John the son of Nimshi; and the horse went to the north, even to the house of the chief scribe, of Woodside, and when the chariot drew nigh unto the house of the law, it did stand still, and the Queen of Sheba did alight from the chariot, and after she had bowed herself thrice before the chief scribe, she said: "I have heard of the writings of the chronicles, even of Woodside, I pray thee now be kind unto thy servant and let me see the writings, even the second chronicles of Woodside!" Now it came to pass that after this writing was given unto the Queen; she understood not the writing, neither the interpretations thereof, and she was grieved and exceedingly sorrowful. But while she yet wept, it came to pass; that Jehu appeared and when he saw that the queen was sorrowful, he said, tell me I pray thee, what makes the queen of a sad countenance; the queen answered and said, I know of no one who is able to read this strange writing and make known, the interpretaions thereof, and Jehu answered and said, know ye not, that there is in the province of Woodside, one Jereboam, who is a wise man of the east, who is skilled in all of the languages and he has two sons, who are young princes; one a musician; the other a learned scholar,' go ye to them and they will make the matter known unto thee, now it came to pass that the queen harkened to the words of Jehu, the son of Nimshi and did go in the chariot, even in the night time, about the third hour of the night to the house of Jereboam. Now it came to pass that I saw in my vision; that the young prince of Jereboam, said to the queen. "O! queen, live forever! Know that my father, the governor, is old and is now asleep in his chamber, therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant know the will of the queen, and as the Lord liveth, I will make known the writing of the strange language, and the interpretations thereof;" then the queen gave the parchment into the hands of the lad. Then in my vision I heard the young prince, read the parchment. And this is the writing of the strange language: "Thou O queen, most exalted above others, who led the singing in the Sabbath school, in times gone by, and did pray and mourn over the sins of the people, of the wicked town of Woodside, and when the people did repent, thou didst turn in thy ways, and go to the merry-making, at the house of Sible, and did dance before the people, and when the feast was spread thou didst bring nothing, neither wine, ale, honey or unleavened bread, but thou didst eat of the feast, which others had prepared, and was not satisfied; but did murmur against the ruler of the feast. Now this is the interpretation of the matter. Inasmuch as thou takest nothing to the feast, and merrymaking, thou, O! queen, shall fast many days, and inasmuch as thou didst complain of the feast, thou shalt have no tobacco, for many days, and inasmuch as thou didst dance before the people, after praying over the sins of the people. The sins of the people shall be upon thee, and thou shalt mourn many days, because of the absence of thy daughter, who shall not return unto thee, for many moons, and inasmuch as thou gavest no shackels to the musicians at the merry making, instead of wine thou shalt drink wormwood and cold tea!" Now I saw in my vision, that after the queen had learned these things, she was exceedingly wroth, and did make inquiry: tell me, I pray thee, prince, who is the one that made this strange writing, that I may go and slay him. But the young prince said, "as the Lord liveth, I know not, as the thing has now gone from me;" but the queen was not pleased, and still sought to slay the one, who wrote the chronicles of the second parchment. Then methought, I saw the queen, get herself into her chariot and journey to her palace, which is to the south, even beside the great sea. I awoke after the vision had vanished, and behold, it was all a dream.

VISIONARY.

Farmers Alliance.

There will be a delegate convention of the farmers of the Fifth District at Moorhead, on March 3d, 4th and 5th 1886. Business of vast importance to the farming community will come before the convention and every county should be well represented. We trust that Polk County will send a good strong delegation. Let us be alive to our best interests and great good will result. [illegible]

It is expected that the license question will be put to a vote at the coming town election. No town license has been granted, and it is thought it may be stopped.

Jas. Carroll proves up on his claim, Thursday. He has one of the best farms in the county and is improving it with a view to stock raising.

Bill Aillgrove traded horses a few days since, and received a $50.00 bill as an equalizer, as well as the best animals. Bill says he earns his money easier than by the sweat of his brow.

A St. P., M. & M. engineer located the position of the depot Tuesday. We understand it will be put up as soon as the weather will permit. The company seems to, at last realize that this station has a large area of rich country surrounding it. The people of which have heretofore been obliged to go to Crookston or St. Hilaire to do trading, often at inconveniance to themselves. Considerable freight has come here for the Falls merchants, but it must be prepaid, and there is no place for storage when it arrives, so we think they will join with us in wishing for more ample accommodations than are afforded at present.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

NEW
FOR THE HAIR.

WALNUTINE is prepared from the Extract of Black Walnut Hulls and Mexican Soap Root with Vaseline and other ingredients (agreeably perfumed). In the Walnut Hulls we get the Coloring and Astringent matter. In the Vaseline we get the Softening and Dressing qualities. In the Mexican Soap Root we get the Cleansing and Stimulating effects at the roots of the hair. It is not a Dye! (We do not use Nitrate of Silver.) We invite Ladies and Gentlemen—OLD or YOUNG, BALD or GRAY—to use WALNUTINE, knowing that its effect will cause you to recommend it to others who desire to produce a healthy growth of dark or brown hair. It will gradually change and restore Gray hair to its natural color, without discoloring the skin. It also removes Scaly Humors and Dandruff and prevents the hair from falling off. We recommend the disuse of ALL OLD REMEDIES and a trial of this NEW DISCOVERY. It is unquestionably the Best Hair Restorative, Tonic and Dressing EVER MADE!! It is sold by all Druggists at 25 per cent. less than the old $1.00 price—our price being 75 cents per bottle, LARGE SIZE.

CAUTION!! Don't be induced to take any other article—insist on having WALNUTINE! BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY when you call for it. J. R. BOND & CO., Chicago, Proprietors. The Trade supplied by all WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Delegate Convention to be held at Moorhead, Minn., March 3, 4 & 5, '86.

At a meeting called by the Clay County alliance, held in Moorhead on the 15th of January, 1886, the operation of the new railroad and warehouse laws was discussed freely, and a committee consisting of Lyman Loring, Geo. N. Lamphere, A. M. Burdick, Hon. Chas. Canning, and O. G. Farsdale, was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiment of the meeting, who reported the following which were unanimously adopted. It will be observed that a delegate convention for the Fifth Congressional District is called to meet at Moorhead, Minn., on the 3d, 4th and 5th days of March next. It was considered that on account of the elections to take place next fall it was desirable that a spring meeting be held in which a further discussion of the laws, and the wants of the farmers should be had, with a view of sending out an authorative expression of the producers of this district for legislation in their interest at the next session of the legislature.

Whereas, There has been no material reduction on freight rates on wheat, the great staple product of this section to terminal points for the last ten years; and

Whereas, The chief industry of this region has been, from various causes, greatly depressed for the last two or three years; and

Whereas, The railroad commission created at the last session has the power to say what rates are unreasonable on railroads in this State; and

Whereas, It is known to be the universal sentiment of all wheat growers of Northwestern Minnesota that the rates for the transportation of wheat to the terminal points are unreasonable and extortionate; therefore

Resolved, That this meeting respectfully requests that the commissioners shall determine whether or not the present rates are unreasonable as we have charged, and if so found, we demand that the said commissioners shall require the roads to make rates that are reasonable.

Whereas, Only two elevators in Minneapolis and none in St. Paul have complied with the requirements of the warehouse law and State inspection and weighing have been applied to elevators which have disregarded the law, which said law we regard as just to all parties concerned; therefore

Resolved, That State inspection at any but licensed elevators is a direct violation of the said warehouse law, and we demand of our commissioners to compel these warehouses to take out license, or withdraw the State inspection therefrom, and

Resolved, Further that if the grain law cannot be enforced according to the intent as we understand its provisions, it is the imperative duty of the governor to call an extra session to amend the same, and in case the governor will not meet the wants of the people in this respect, it is the sense of this meeting that the farmers should organize and build small shipping warehouses and ship their wheat to those elevators only that comply with the law.

In the meeting on motion made by Mr. F. J. Schrieber, the following resolution was unanimously adopted;

Resolved, That a delegate convention composed of three or more delegates from each county in the fifth congressional district, be called for the 3d, 4th and 5th of March next, to meet at Erickson's Hall, in the city of Moorhead, to take such further action in regard to this and other matters of interest to the farming industries of this district, as may at that time be deemed to require action or discussion, including efforts to secure a competitive market for grain, and appropriations for drainage.

Resolved farther, That we extend an invitation to the board of trade of Duluth, to be present by committee.

On motion made, the following resolution was also adopted:

Resolved, That the secretary of this meeting shall forward a copy of these resolutions each, to Gov. Hubbard, the railroad commission, the board of trade of Duluth, the chamber of commerce of Minneapolis, and the chamber of commerce of St. Paul.

The State board of railroad and warehouse commissioners will be present, as shown by the following letter accepting the invitation of Chairman Burdick:

State of Minnesota: Board of Railroad & Warehouse Commissioners.

St. Paul, Jan. 23d, 1886.

A. M. Burdick, Esq., Glyndon, Minn:

Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 21st inst. to Gen. Baker, inviting this board to attend the Fifth Congressional District Convention at Moorhead, March 3d, 4th and 5th next, is received. In reply to the same I am instructed by the board to say that they accept the invitation and will be present.

Yours truly,

Do We Pasture Too Much?

Farm, Field and Stockman.

We will not at this time discuss the relative advantages of pasturing or soiling, but has it ever occurred to farmers that they pasture too much land in proportion to stock? It is not often the case that the profits from stock are small, considering the amount of land devoted to each animal for pasturage? If four acres of land are given an animal, cannot a saving be effected if three acres can be made to perform the same service? It seems that every acre brought under cultivation is so much gain, provided the farm is operated in a judicious manner. We do not suggest that a farmer cultivate more land than he can conveniently keep up to the highest degree of fertility, but if he has sufficient stock to enable him to manure his land and keep it in good condition, there is no reason for allowing any portion to remain unproductive. One advantage of pasturing the stock over large areas is that the farmer can allow his efforts to be confined to a smaller area with a view of deriving as much from a small space well cultivated as from a larger area which may be neglected. By reducing the amount of land in pasture, however, a system of rotation may be practiced which will permit of grass being extensively grown for green manural purposes, which is the only correct mode of farming. By reducing pasturage, and plowing under green crops, the capacity of the reduced pasture will be greatly increased.

The Raid On The Grain Markets.

St Paul Globe.

Now in progress, is no certain indication of next summer's prices. They will depend largely upon how the winter crop gets through, the amount of spring sowing and planting that may or may not be allowed by the weather and the spring and summer growing season. Should all conditions then favor the expectations of a great harvest, the European and American supplies may be placed out to prevent any material advance.

The "visible supply" is decreasing more than a half a million bushels a week, and is now only 9,500,000 bushels of wheat and not 2,000,000 bushels of corn above this time last year, when the stock was increasing. For some days past nearly all speculative dealers have been on the "bear" side cleaning out the "lambs" whose margins have been exhausted. The profits made by speculators, made in grain and in stocks mainly come from outside parties, who invest their money in "bets" on prices and have not the means to keep on putting up the "margins" when the shrewd operators sway the market to suit their own purposes.

Home Market.

Some Points For the Enterprising Farmer.

A fact that is often overlooked by too many is that by a little pains a home market can be made the best. There are plenty of country merchants who are purchasing and shipping farm produce, that if the farmer would take the necessary pains to take in a good marketable condition and try selling direct to the consumers, a much better price could be readily secured, and that too, with very little trouble.

Butter that the careful housewife has taken much pains to make, is thrown into a box indiscriminately with all that comes in, the same price is paid to every customer, good or bad; while in every town there are plenty of people who would gladly pay a fair price for what they know to be a clean, fresh article. Eggs are sold in the same way and the purchaser buys with the expectation of getting more or less that are worthless. If they could buy and know what they purchased are all fresh a better price would willingly be paid. And so with poultry and quite a number of varieties of vegetables, such as potatoes, cabbages etc. Of course it is some trouble to secure customers that are reliable, but once secured and treated fairly they can be depended upon.

I know that it is the general custom when the farmer has anything to sell to go straight to a country merchant and see if he will buy, and what he will pay.

It is not reasonable to suppose that any merchant will handle even farm produce for nothing, at least when he can help it, and in purchasing he generally offers or pays a price that he feels reasonably sure that will enable him to sell at a profit. If this profit was even divided between the seller and consumer, both would gain enough in a year's purchases to make an item worth saying.

Of course this cannot be done in all cases, but in very many cases a considerable benefit could be derived if properly managed. There are farmers who fully appreciate the benefit of such an arrangement and regularly supply customers with butter, eggs, poultry, potatoes, etc., or whatever farm products they make a specialty of. In many localities the same benefits could be secured if some enterprising farmer would take the pains to work it up properly.—Writer in Indiana Farmer.

New Creamery System.

Described by G. H. White of Wisconsin.

At a farmer's institute recently held at Fort Atkinson, Wis., a comparatively new method of operating a creamery was described by Mr. G. H. White. In the course of his remarks he spoke of the difficulties incident to the cream and milk gathering systems of conducting factories, [illegible] care that justice to the milk producers involves. The latter have various breeds of cows and feed and care for them differently. In this case the farmers follow their own taste in the matter of breeds and creaming the milk, and each delivers his own cream at the factory once in two days in warm weather and once in three days in the late fall and winter. Each patron's milk is churned by itself, and the pounds of butter it actually makes is credited to the patron. The weighing is done after the butter has been salted and rolled only enough to express the brine that really runs off. When it is found to be all right the butter of each man, so far as it will fill the different sized tubs or butter boxes used, is again worked and packed by itself, and receives the factory brand. The little remainders are worked together, so as to fill other boxes. If there is any defect in any batch it is kept separated and sold without the brand, and the net receipts credited to the patron that furnished the cream. So each man gets just what he would make for himself on his own farm. The advantages are the uniform excellence of the manufactory part, the relief to the household of the farmer, a price much above that the average farmer can obtain, and the attention of the skimmed milk on the farm in the best condition for feeding. The method has thus far given great satisfaction, and may be one of the blades to cut the Gordian knot in the butter making districts. In answer to questions, Mr. White explained that there is much difference in the yield of butter from the same number of pounds of cream. This he credited partly to the season and weather, but more largely to the difference in creaming methods on the farm, some having good facilities, some poor—some having ice, others none.

Judging A Good Cow.

Perhaps more has been written on the art of judging cows than any other matter connected with dairying, and now, after all that has been said, The American Dairymen, in alluding to Guenon's theory, remarks:

If you want to get a good profitable animal, you had better first see that she gives a large mess of rich milk, and then, after having first secured this point, indulge your fancy for short hair dandruff, quirls and yellow grease in the skin, long horns, slim tails, smooth hoofs, big belly, veins and other fancies that fashion loves to revel in.

To be frank, we must admit that there is truth in the above. With all that there may be said in regard to the exterior markings, and interior constructions, the breeders have settled down to the conclusion that the only method of determining the qualification of a cow was to test her at the pail. We doubt if there is an expert judge in the country who can go into a stable of 50 cows and select the best milkers or butter producers by examination only, as often the cows with no escutcheons of consequence have yielded better than those with first-class Flanders outlines, and hence the pail alone is the guide.

BUTTER DOES NOT EXHAUST THE SOIL.

Every bushel of wheat sold from the farm carries with it the riches of the soil, and instances have been known in which the value of the elements in the wheat, even from a commercial standpoint, was greater than the sum obtained from the crop after deducting cost of labor for production; and it is safe to say that such occurances are not rare. In dairying however, the exhaustion of the soil depends upon how the product is sold. If the milk is sold entire, there will be more or less loss of fertility, which must be replaced. If carried to the creameries or made into butter on the farm, the loss is less as the skim milk is fed to stock. Of course the stock so fed will in time be sent to market, and will carry with them that which was grown or produced upon the farm and fed, but the butter sold will not rob the soil, unless it be a mere fraction, as the ingredients of the butter do not exist in the soil but in the air. The fat of plants is manufactured from the carbon of the atmosphere, and when used as food is either stored in the body of the animal and made into a product or exhaled. Hence there should be credited to dairying something more than the value of the product of a farm devoted to such industry, and that is the returning to the soil of the fertilizing elements taken from it. When crops of corn, wheat, oats or grass are sold directly from the farm, it is simply a matter of duration of time when the soil will become exhausted, and fail to return an equivalent for the expenditure of labor bestowed upon it.

DAIRY NOTES.

Milk sold at 8 cents a quart pays about the same net as butter sold at twenty-eight cents a pound, says an eastern expert.

A working dairy on each fair ground would be a very effective medium for awakening an interest in and conveying practical instruction concerning the science and practice of dairying, provided the demonstrations are systematically carried out, and are accompanied by explanatory lectures from competent authorities.

In France exports more butter than any other country in Europe, her average for ten years ending in 1883 being over 90,000,000 pounds annually, the average yearly value being $17,000,000. From this sum, however, must be deducted about $3,500,900, the average value of her yearly imports. France imports four times as much cheese as she exports.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication February 18th, 1886.]

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of two hundred seven and 85-100 dollars, ($207.85-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ole Helgesen, of Polk County, Minnesota, to Loren Fletcher and Charles M. Loring, partners as L. Fletcher & Co., of Minneapolis, County of Hennepin and State of Minnesota, bearing date the twentieth day of June A. D. 1878, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2nd day of July A. D. 1878, at 11 o'clock a. m., in book "B" of mortgages, on page 63, and in addition thereto the further sum of eighteen and 86-100 dollars taxes, duly assessed and levied against the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, for the years 1883, 1884 and 1885, paid by said mortgagees, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot four (4,) in Section twenty (20,) in Township one hundred and fifty (150,) of Range forty-nine (49,) containing thirty and 75-100 (30-75-100) acres according to the Government survey, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 10th day of April A. D. 1886, at two o'clock p. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated February 15th, 1886.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Flavien St. Mars and Selina St. Mars, mortgagors, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 29th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the 30th day of January A. D. 1883, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 229 to 301, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eight hundred and eighty-six dollars and sixty cents ($886.60,) and the amount of ninety-seven dollars and sixty-one cents ($97.61) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his duly appointed deputy, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less according to the United States Government survey thereof.

CAN ANYBODY ANSWER?

BY GEN. NEAL DOW.

I have been puzzled a long time to make out why it is. Can anybody tell? There is an active, earnest warfare now going on in this country "between Heaven and hell." I mean the bitter fight with the grog-shop now raging, not only here, but among English speaking peoples everywhere. It was the late Charles Buxton, member of the British Parliment, who spoke of the prohibition agitation in that way, a phrase which accurately characterizes it, I think.

It is not putting it too strongly to say that there is no other movement of our time so important as this to the prosperity of the nations, the welfare and happiness of the people, and to the interests of the Church. Nor is it putting it too strongly to say that this great war could be brought to a happy issue in a year if the Church—and I mean by this the great body of Christian men and women—would earnestly and persistently lend its influence upon the right side. What puzzles me is that the Church fails to do this. Why? I do not know.

Large sums of money are freely given for the civilization and Christianizing the heathen of many distant lands, and for educating the children of those countries. But we have at home, at our own doors, a tremendous power for evil, the influence of which is to heathenize, degrade, and brutalize our own people, to train up our children in sin, shame, ignorance, vice and crime, and to reduce our own country, to the full extent of its influence, to degradation and brutalization. Am I stating it too strongly when I say that the liquor-traffic is doing this? There is a great fight now raging in this country against this mighty agent of the devil. Every day the battle is going on with varying prospects of success on one side or the other—at least, many people say so. Now, what puzzles me is that the great body of Christian men and women look on calmly, seeming to take little interest in it or in the result. Can anybody tell me what the reason is?

I know there are some Christian bodies, numerous and influential, which make all their influence felt on Heaven's side in this warfare, but for all that, Canon Wilberforce was justified, I think, when, at a great temperance meeting in England, he spoke of this mystery to which I allude as "the abominable indifference of the Church." Canon Farrar has more than once alluded to it very much in the same way. There is a reason for this; there must be one; can anybody tell what it is?

I take several religious papers; all but one of them favor license to the saloons; wish to give legal recognition to grog-shops as a good thing, as proper places for the supply of the proper needs of the people. Why is it? Can anybody answer?

There will be two eclipses this year, one about March 1st, when Fontaine & Anglim will receive direct from the manufacturers and importers, such a stock of New and Nobby Dress Goods, Trimmings, Laces, Embroidery, All-Overs, and Novelties that will knock out any thing ever brought to the North West.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885, at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one N. D. Eudson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said N. D. Eudson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars, and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of $50 the value of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack, and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded, of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said N. D. Eudson. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's will, on the 5th day of March, 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of Munn Bro's carriage works on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,—ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

George Crocker, Plaintiff, vs. Carl Kretzschmar, Frank H. Kratts and John A. Davis, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given, that under and by virtue of a judgment and decree, entered in the above entitled action on the 4th day of January, 1886, a certified transcript of which has been delivered to me, I, the undersigned, Sheriff of said Polk County, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, on Saturday the 20th day of March 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county, in one parcel, the premises and real estate described in said judgment and decree, [illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August, A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 508. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 67-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage, and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100) mortgage debt, and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston, and also lots four (4) and eight (8) in block thirty-three (33) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1) in block two (2) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2) and three (3) in section thirty-two (32) Township one hundred fifty-two (152), Range forty-three (43) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31) Township one hundred fifty-two (152), Range forty-three (43) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative. Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m. to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brauvn, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 132 to 134, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($64.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine, (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Odile Meilleur, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 29th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the 30th day of January A. D. 1883, at 9:30 o'clock a. m. in book "L" of mortgages, on pages 301 to 303 on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25.) and the amount of thirty-one dollars and eighty-four cents ($31.84) advanced for taxes and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default, and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday the 2d day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said County or his duly appointed deputy, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale and twenty five dollars ($25,) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and lot one (1) and the northeast quarter (ne¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼) all in Section four (4,) and the northwest quarter (nw¼) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section three (3,) Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-two (42) west, containing one hundred and fifty-nine and 54-100 acres. How to Build Up a City.

The name "city" has been defined to be "a collection of houses and inhabitants," and some people seem to be satisfied to accept the definition as comprising all there is to it and act upon that presumption, by making all their actions tend to self-aggrandizment. They don't seem to realize that in order to build up a city they have only these to do—except to look sharp after the almighty dollar for No. 1 and to keep it locked up after they get it. But how would this thing wash, if it was universally applied? Who would take care of the important public interests that tend to build up the city, if everybody acted upon the selfish principle? If every business man neglected his home institutions, sending his money to a rival city for all the supplies that he needed, and every other man did the same thing, where would the business life of our city be? The necessary expenses of building up a city are so great that the men in business cannot sell their goods to consumers here as cheaply as the consumers can buy them in St. Paul and Minneapolis but if everybody should send to some city that is already built up for his supplies, where would our business interests be? As well might you say that because you can get your preaching done in St. Paul and Minneapolis at an annual cost per capita of $5 or $10 there is no need of a church in Crookston. One could send $1.50 for the Christain Union and get Beecher's sermons, thus saving the difference between that and (perhaps) $50 subscribed to the minister's salary, but that would not help our own city. We have certain interests to support and the more liberally they are supported the greater the benefit derived by our city, and the city must suffer from every departure from home patronage. The more thriving the business interests the more thriving will be your city, and the more money its inhabitants send out for such things as can be and are produced in our midst, the less thriving will our city be. In this connection we might mention newspapers. Everybody is agreed that they are a necessary evil in a community; and everybody knows that the city is, in a measure judged by the advertisers of business which its columns show. If we have 1,000 business houses in our city and the columns of the paper shows 250 represented, a stranger at once sets us down at one-fourth our true value. A great many people act upon the presumption that a merchant invests big money in building a store, paying large taxes to support and build up a city just for the fun of doing business, and they send away to some large city for those things that the merchant established his busines to supply. This not only wrongs the individual merchant, but does a great wrong to the city and in that sense reacts upon the party himself by helping tear down the interests which he is paying taxes to build up. Some people scold the newspaper man because he does not continue to harp constantly upon the merits of the country, and send his paper broadcast throughout the world so that the country may rapidly settle up. They agree that the paper must be printed anyhow and it might as well be filled with that kind of literature as any other, but some of that kind of person have never tried the experiment of giving the printer the encouragement of even one subscription. We remember once on a certain time, at a public gathering, a motion was made that the newspapers be placed upon a certain committee "because they could advertise it better than a private individual." Now, the party that made the move and the balance of the company, with very few exceptions, were earnest supporters of the papers, but there was one moss-backed individual who never had given a cent in support of the paper, who nearly broke his neck in his extreme haste to force his deep bass voice out of his throat in time to second that motion. For the first time in his life he was endeavoring to contribute to the "support" of home institutions and the unusual effort had a warming influence upon him which did him good, yet this good honest brother did not seem to realize that on such patronage as his, there would not be a newspaper in his city or county. This incident illustrates our subject to the life, while we are all very anxious to build up our city and its institutions we may be too prone to forget our own obligations and expect that others are going to sustain and support all necessary adjuncts to our success while we glide serenely along the even tenor of our way, interested mainly in such plans as tend to immediate personal benefits. We do not say that Crookston is being built upon that way. We know that there are many whole-souled earnest workers who are doing good work, but we suggest that should any drones happen to get into the hive it would make mitey hard sledding. Our interests are all mutual; all are in a very great degree dependent upon the others and the success or failure of a city depends more upon the character of its inhabitants than upon any other one thing. A live, enterprising class will have a live enterprising city and the reverse is true. So then if we want a live, enterprising city every member thereof must contribute to that end to the best of his or her ability and thus we will have it.

FAIRFAX, Feb. 20, 1886.

I notice the suggestion of one wide-awake, progressive farmer, in relation to a farmers' column in THE JOURNAL with pleasure, as it shows to me, that the farmers in Polk county are not al dead, senseless clods and also, proves that THE JOURNAL, by the cordial invitation it has extended us is wide-awake to the best interests of this country—farming. I apprehend that there are a great many farmers among us who feel as I do upon writing a newspaper article, a natural shrinking from it, owing to a real, (or fanciful) inability to express their views; they also feel, after a hard day's labor, more inclined to take a good snooze and rest up; but, brother farmers, if we do not take an interest who will do it for us? Where is there a man among us who can not get up in a district school meeting and express his ideas on farming matters in a tangible shape? Supposing it is not "high-toned" enough to suit some, all FARMERS of average intelligence can "catch on" and after all they are the class whom we aim to reach in our farmer's columns. The benefits of such an interchange of ideas to us are "too numerous to mention!" Now I call myself an old experienced farmer having had much experience in older States, but I find that I do not know it all in relation to farming in this country; and a man who has farmed it here since '72 can give me many valuable pointers if he will; but if he crawls into his shell and remains bottled up, how am I benefitted? Let us give our views and methods of raising wheat, oats, barley and everything we do raise also stock, which I consider one of the most important topics, which we can discuss and right here I wish to pay a deserved compliment to THE JOURNAL for its efforts to find out what stock is the best adapted to our country and to say to my brother farmers that we, one and all ought to encourage THE JOURNAL and stand by it as long as it continues the good work. In no way can we fight the great wheat monopoly better than adopting some means to render ourselves independent of it! Just as soon as we are independent of the wheat monopoly it loses its power over us, and I believe the cow holds the key to the situation, it is so in every other country, why not in this? But I will close for this time hoping that the "farmer's" department in THE JOURNAL will prove a power for good among us. Availing myself of your suggestion, Mr. Editor, I will for this time sign myself,

IN OUR OWN BUSINESS

Yours Truly,
FARMER.

The people of Crookston, who paid T. B. Walker $20,000 to locate his saw mill there, can have the satisfaction of knowing that he is now using their money to defeat the Red Lake Reservation bill. It would benefit Crookston as well as the whole Red River Valley, if they would now pay him $10,000 to leave—St. Hilaire Spectator.

What else can the people expect of a monopolist than just what has happened in this case? If you play with fire your chances are good to get burnt.—Moorhead News.

We confess our surprise at the above comment from so excellent a paper as the Moorhead News generally is. The News is too wide-awake not to appreciate the location of such a vast lumbering interest in its midst and we do not doubt that if the city of Moorhead was offered the chance of securing such an institution for five times the amount it would advocate the plan heartily and leave no stone unturned to secure it. Is the cutting of 150,000 feet of pine lumber per day during the sawing season, and the employment of the number of men and teams necessary to handle it, during the whole year, of no account in a prairie country like this? If Mr. Walker was the greatest monopolist in the world the manufacture of such a vast amount of lumber in our midst every year could not help but reduce the price from former figures and so we see it has. A reduction of from $10 to $15 per M. in the short space of time the mill has been at work is no small item to the farmer and consumer and when you add to this the amount of labor during the winter which this institution furnishes the farmer a little of the benefit of the institution may be comprehended. No one has ever thought that Mr. Walker put these mills [illegible] solely for the benefit of his health, but the very fact that he did do it compels lumber dealers from other points to come way down on their hitherto high prices and must always have a tendency to keep prices more reasonable. Our citizens contributed liberally to the mill enterprise, and we have yet to find the one who would accept double the sum he paid for it and have it removed. We are afraid that it is the green eyed-monster of jealousy that causes the News to pick up every envious squib it sees to the detriment of our city and its enterprises.

Dairy Notes.

The only certain indication of a profitable cow is to see that she gives a large mess of rich milk. All other points may fail, but this one is an infallable mark of a good cow.

Butterine is the legitimate daughter of skim milk.—Farm and Fireside. It is not legitimate at all. It is illegitimate. A cross between a hog's lard and dishonesty—swinish, so to speak.

A cow should never be allowed to skip a milking, as the retention of so large a volume of milk in the udder will inflame it and injure the quality of the milk, and perhaps the udder also.

There are fewer cows in proportion to the population of the country than there were thirty-five years ago. The low prices of butter can hardly be due, then, to overproduction. Bogus butter must be largely to blame for the depression of dairy interests.

Farmers often value a cow more for her fine calves than for her dairy qualities. This is eminently proper, for a good calf is more valuable to them to raise into a fine steer, than the products of the milk. The dairyman, though has a different object in view, and keeps the cows for their milk only. It is then necessary that these cows give a liberal quantity or rich milk, and through an extended period, to meet the dairymen's requirements.

How to Build Up a City.

The name "city" has been defined to be a collection of houses and inhabitants, and some people seem to be satisfied to accept the definition as comprising all there is to it and act upon that presumption by making all their actions tend to self-aggrandizement. They don't seem to realize that in order to build up a city they have only these to do—except to look sharp after the almighty dollar for No. 1 and to keep it locked up after they get it. But how would this thing wash, if it was universally applied? Who would take care of the important public interests that tend to build up the city if everybody acted upon the selfish principle? If every business man neglected his home institutions, sending his money to a rival city for all the supplies that he needed, and every other man did the same thing, where would the business life of our city be? The necessary expenses of building up a city are so great that the men in business cannot sell their goods to consumers here as cheaply as the consumers can buy them in St. Paul and Minneapolis but if everybody should send to some city that is already built up for his supplies, where would our business interests be? As well might you say that because you can get your preaching done in St. Paul and Minneapolis at an annual cost per capita of $5 or $10 there is no need of a church in Crookston. One could send $1.50 for the Christian Union and get Beecher's sermons, thus saving the difference between that and (perhaps) $50 subscribed to the minister's salary, but that would not help our own city. We have certain interests to support and the more liberally they are supported the greater the benefit derived by our city, and the city must suffer from every departure from home patronage. The more thriving the business interests the more thriving will be your city, and the more money its inhabitants send out for such things as can be and are produced in our midst, the less thriving will our city be. In this connection we might mention newspapers. Everybody is agreed that they are a necessary evil in a community, and everybody knows that the city is, in a measure judged by the advertisers of business which its columns show. If we have 1,000 business houses in our city and the columns of the paper shows 250 represented, a stranger at once sets us down at one-fourth our true value. A great many people act upon the presumption that a merchant invests his money in building a store, paying large taxes to support and build up a city just for the fun of doing business and they send away to some [illegible] city for those things that the merchant established his business to supply. This not only wrongs the individual merchant but it is a great wrong to the city and in that sense reacts upon the party himself by helping tear down the interests which he is paying taxes to build up. Some people scold the newspaper man because he does not continue to harp constantly upon the merits of the country, and send his paper broadcast throughout the world so that the country may rapidly settle up. They [illegible] that the paper must be printed anyhow and it might as well be filled with that kind of literature as any other, but some of that kind of person have never tried the experiment of giving the printer the encouragement of even one subscription. We remember [illegible] pen to get into the hive it would make mitey hard sledding. Our interests are all mutual, all are in a very great degree dependent upon the others and the success or failure of a city depends more upon the character of its inhabitants than upon any other one thing. A live, enterprising class will have a live enterprising city and the reverse is true. So then if we want a live, enterprising city every member thereof must contribute to that end to the best of his or her ability and thus we will have it.

FAIRFAX, Feb. 20, 1886.

I notice the suggestion of one wide awake, progressive farmer, in relation to a farmers' column in THE JOURNAL with pleasure, as it shows to me that the farmers in Polk county are not all dead, senseless clods and also proves that THE JOURNAL by the cordial invitation it has extended us is wide awake to the best interests of this country—farming. I apprehend that there are a great many farmers among us who feel as I do upon writing a newspaper article, a natural shrinking from it, owing to a real (or fanciful) inability to express their views; they also feel, after a hard day's labor, more inclined to take a good snooze and rest up; but, brother farmers, if we do not take an interest IN OUR OWN BUSINESS who will do it for us? Where is there a man among us who cannot get up in a district school meeting and express his ideas on farming matters in a tangible shape? Supposing it is not "high toned" enough to suit some, all FARMERS of average intelligence can "catch on" and after all they are the class whom we aim to reach in our farmer's columns. The benefits of such an interchange of ideas to us are too numerous to mention. Now I call myself an old experienced farmer having had much experience in older States, but I find that I do not know it all in relation to farming in this country, and a man who has farmed it here since '72 can give me many valuable pointers if he will, but if he crawls into his shell and remains bottled up, how am I benefitted? Let us give our views and methods of raising wheat, oats, barley and everything we do raise, also stock, which I consider one of the most important topics, which we can discuss and right here I wish to pay a deserved compliment to THE JOURNAL for its efforts to find out what stock is the best adapted to our country and I say to my brother farmers that we one and all ought to encourage THE JOURNAL and stand by it as long as it continues the good work. In no way can we fight the great wheat monopoly better than adopting the means to render ourselves independent of it. Just as soon as we are independent of the wheat monopoly it loses its power over us and [illegible] cow holds the key to the situation [illegible] other country [illegible]. But I will close for this time hoping that the farmers department in THE JOURNAL will prove a power for good among us. Availing myself of your suggestion Mr. Editor, I will for this time sign myself

Yours Truly,
[illegible]

The people of Crookston who paid [illegible] Walker $20,000 to locate his saw mill there can have the satisfaction of knowing [illegible] solely for the benefit of his health, but the very fact that he did do it compels lumber dealers from other points to come way down on their hitherto high prices and must always have a tendency to keep prices more reasonable. Our citizens contributed liberally to the mill enterprise and we have yet to find the one who would accept double the sum he paid for it and have it removed. We are afraid that it is the green eyed monster of jealousy that causes the News to pick up every envious squib it sees to the detriment of our city and its enterprises.

Dairy Notes.

The only certain indication of a profitable cow is to see that she gives a large mess of rich milk. All other points may fail, but this one is an infallable mark of a good cow.

Butterine is the legitimate daughter of skim milk.—Farm and Fireside. It is not legitimate at all. It is illegitimate. A cross between a hog's lard and dishonesty—swinish, so to speak.

A cow should never be allowed to skip a milking, as the retention of so large a volume of milk in the udder will inflame it and injure the quality of the milk, and perhaps the udder also.

There are fewer cows in proportion to the population of the country than there were thirty-five years ago. The low prices of butter can hardly be due, then, to overproduction. Bogus butter must be largely to blame for the depression of dairy interests.

Farmers often value a cow more for her fine calves than for her dairy qualities. This is eminently proper, for a good calf is more valuable to them to raise into a fine steer than the products of the milk. The dairyman though has a different object in view and keeps the cows for their milk only. It is then necessary that these cows give a liberal quantity of rich milk, and through an extended period, to meet the dairymen's requirements.

D. L. Wellman, one of the pioneer farmers on the Northern Pacific Railroad, in Becker county, writes as follows to Farm, Stock and Home:

Editor Farm, Stock and Home.

In the Northwestern Miller I have just read an article on wheat raising, in which the writer recommends 2¼ bushels per acre as the best amount to sow to get the best result. He says he has tried all the different amounts, by quarts, from 1¼ bushels up 2¼, and finds the last amount to give the best yield.

Such advice as that makes me wild. I have tried it both up and down from 1¼ bushels, and found that I got big results when I reduced the seed to less than one bushel. I began farming here thirteen years ago, with the idea of doing my work so as to raise 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. From all I could learn 1¼ bushels was the amount I was to sow to the acre, and procured seed accordingly. I set my seeder for that amount, but before I got done I found the machine was not correct, and I would not have seed enough to finish so I reduced the amount of seed to three-fourths of a bushel and had just enough to finish. When harvested the light seeded ground yielded the best, but I thought the soil was better and caused the difference. I threshed 29 bushels to the acre, but was not satisfied because I had not got 40 bushels, and thought I had not sown enough seed; so the next year I sowed 1½ bushels and threshed 27. The following year I sowed 1¾ bushels and got 25. The next year I sowed 2 bushels and threshed 19! All of this was on new breaking and the seasons was favorable and nearly alike. My crops were beauties to look at, but I noticed that as I increased the seed I thickened up the stand, but reduced the length of the straw and size of head and kernel; and instead of going up to 40 bushels per acre I was going down at a rapid rate.

During the winter following I thought it over, and concluded that I had gone far enough in the way of thick seeding. I remembered the crop where I had sown the three-fourths of a bushel was the best I ever had on the farm, and concluded that I would try light seeding again. I sowed at one bushel and got 30. That was an increase of over 10 bushels per acre, with one-half as much seed. Since that time I have made experiments in a small way and have raised at the rate of 34 bushels to the acre, by seeding in proportion of one-fourth of a bushel! Since that time I have never seeded over one bushel to the acre. Raised 40 bushels per acre once on a six acre piece, sowed at three-fourths of a bushel; but I find the 40 bushel fields are mighty scarce. 100 bushels to three acres is a profitable crop, and good enough for poor folks.

After a piece of ground is well plowed a light harrow, with fine sharp teeth is the best and most important impliment on the farm to raise a big crop with. Use it thoroughly before the seeder, so as to get the soil smooth and compact. Set the seeder hoes well back so they will not cover the seed to deep. Do not try to assist nature in planting deep to prevent the effects of drouth; nature will take care of that by sending the roots down if you have done your part in the fitting of the soil. Drouth does not have much effect on well prepared fields anyway. A covering of one-fourth of half an inch will give the best results in growing and stooling. It is that depth which gives you stools from nine to thirteen inch stalks from one grain, and they must choke off many more around them that were covered too deep. Here are some good sound arguments in favor of thin seeding worthy of the attention of all good farmers, by a correspondent in the Northwestern Miller.

"Some experiments which I have made lead me to favor thinner seeding, and I have found that on thoroughly prepared ground a half bushel of seed will give a large yield. I seeded one year two adjoining acres, one with one bushel the other with half a bushel of seed; and at harvest could see no difference in them, the yield being 70 bushels from the two acres. One fact which leads me to favor thin seeding is that, as fair heads of wheat average from twenty to thirty grains each, and a grain that produces anything must produce at least one head, and may produce several, it follows as a matter of course, as we sow a bushel and a half and reap but twelve or fifteen bushels, as the majority of farmers do, that at least three-fourths of their seed is absolutely wasted, for if each grain in a bushel of wheat produced one head, we should have twenty to thirty bushels to the acre."

I will add a few more hints on this same subject, and say that if the farmers will seed three-fourths of a bushel per acre they will put more bushels in their granary in the fall than if they sow 1½ bushels. If three-fourths of a bushel is enough seed, all that is put on over that amount is detrimental to the crop.

Think this over and I think that you will have to agree with me that three-fourths of a bushel is enough seed if it does well, and if it does not do well the season is at fault. If I were obliged to farm on land so poor that there was no show for getting more than 8 or 10 bushels to the acre—many farms only give that—I should try and get that from one-fourth to one-half a bushel of seed, and not go to crowding on two bushels. I would leave the extra 1½ bushels in the granary, and not waste it.

I often hear parties state that poor or old ground needs more seed than new or rich ground. I will simply contradict that statement and quit before I quit before I tire your readers' patience.

Taking the subject of "How much seed to the acre and how to sow it," some of your good correspondents ought to give us some interesting reading in the numbers to be published before spring seeding.

No one should neglect the Japanese Tea, to be given at the Episcopal Rectory, on Wednesday evening next. Ladies lately arrived from Tokio will serve tea in delicate "Owari" cups—Japanese noblemen will sing songs of their native land (selections from the Mikado.) All sorts of bric-a-brac from the Isles of Cathaway may be had for a trifle—Don't forget to take both your cup and saucer away with you. It is a branch of Japanese etiquette to leave them.

Ayrshire Herd Record.

Farm, Field and Stockman.

Mr. C. M. Winslow, Secretary, furnishes the record of the herd of Ayrshires for the year ending December 31st, 1885. The feed as stated in summer, was from a pasture one mile from the barn, with a feed night and morning from one to two quarts of wheat bran, according to the cow, and turned at night into a small pasture near the barn.

In winter the feed was good hay twice a day, all they would eat clean, one-half bushels of ensilage, four quarts of wheat bran, one quart of barley, one spoonful of ground flaxseed, to cows in full milk. Strippers, dry cows and springers had one feed of hay, one of oat or barley straw, one-half bushel of ensilage, and from one to two quarts of bran a day, and a spoonful of ground flaxseed every other day. They were all turned out to drink twice a day, and on pleasant days remained out two or three hours in the middle of the day, and if any of them wished could nibble at a straw stack. In the stables they were confined in stanchions, well bedded in straw, and carded daily. The milk record for 1885 was as follows:

	No.	Age	Weight	Milk 1885
Rossa	3,143	12	1,151	7,105
Myrtle	3,854	9	1,075	6,870
Ruth	4,816	9	1,059	9,253
Rebecca	4,793	8	1,170	8,338
Ross	4,900	6	......	6,952
Acme	5,075	6	1,110	7,986
Queen	6,029	5	1,140	6,935
Miss Rose	5,540	4	1,025	6,765

The above record shows an average weight of cow of 1,083 pounds, and the average weight of milk 7,582 pounds, or an average of 3,500 quarts of milk per cow.

The matter of adaptation of different breeds of cattle to different purposes under like conditions, is not enough considered by the general farmer and stock raiser. A test involving a question of importance was made last season at the Michigan Agricultural College, to test the relative gain of different breeds of cattle on combined rations of grass and grain or grain alone. The breeds selected were Holsteins, Herefords, Short-horns, and Ayrshires. The Short-Horns gained on grain and grass 400 lbs., on grass alone 250 lbs., the Herefords, 500 and 263 lbs. on the respective feeds; the Ayrshires 405 and 280 lbs.; the Holsteins 515 and 330 lbs., showing a marked superiority for the latter.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Flavien St. Mars and Selina St. Mars, mortgagors, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 29th day of January A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of January A. D. 1883, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 300 to 301, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of eight hundred and eighty-six dollars and sixty cents ($886.60), and the amount of ninety seven dollars and sixty one cents ($97.61) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his duly appointed deputy, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars ($50) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of section thirty one (31) in Township one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

Don't fail to send for catalogue of prices.

FRANK T. HASELTINE, Prop.,
[illegible] Crookston, Minn.

D. H. Walling, one of the most [illegible] farmers on the southern [illegible] [illegible] county, writes [illegible] Farm, Stock and Home:

Editor Farm, Stock and Home:

[illegible] I began farming here thirteen years ago, with the idea of [illegible] my work so as to raise 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. From all I could learn [illegible] bushels was the amount I was to sow to the acre, and procured seed accordingly. I set my seeder for that amount, but before I got done I found the machine was not correct, and I would not have seed enough to finish, so I reduced the amount of seed to three-fourths of a bushel and had just enough to finish. When harvested the light seeded ground yielded the best, but I thought the soil was better and caused the difference. I threshed 29 bushels to the acre, but was not satisfied because I had not got 40 bushels, and thought I had not sown enough seed, so the next year I sowed [illegible] bushels and threshed 27. The following year I sowed [illegible] bushels and got 25. The next year I sowed 2 bushels and threshed 19. All of this was on new breaking and the seasons were favorable and nearly alike. [illegible] I noticed that [illegible] the seed thickened up the stand, but reduced the length of the straw and size of head and kernel, and instead of going up to 40 bushels per acre I was going down at a rapid rate. [illegible]

[illegible]

Taking the subject of "How much seed to the acre and how to sow it," some of your good correspondents ought to give us some interesting reading in the numbers to be published before spring seeding.

Ayrshire Herd Record.

Farm, Field and Fireside.

Mr. C. M. Winslow, Secretary, furnishes the record of the herd of Ayrshires for the year ending December 31st, 1885. The feed as related in summer was from a pasture one mile from the barn, [illegible] fed night and morning from one to two quarts of wheat bran according to the cow and turned at night into a small pasture near the barn. In winter the feed was good hay twice a day, all they would eat clean, one-half bushel of ensilage, four quarts of wheat bran, one quart of barley, one spoonful of ground flaxseed, to cows in full milk. Strippers, dry cows and springers had one feed of hay, one of oat or barley straw, one-half bushel of ensilage, and from one to two quarts of bran a day, and a spoonful of ground flaxseed every other day. The cotton returns show a prospect of a shorter crop than usual, or about 6,500,000 bales.

Henry Bradhurst, appointed under secretary of the Home Department by Mr. Gladstone, is a representative of the workingmen, and is taken as a recognition of the lately enfranchised two millions who have gone to swell the British electorate.

Warm weather in the eastern states which melted the winter snows, was followed by a heavy rain fall, and the consequence was disastrous floods and an immense amount of damage to property, especially in New England. In Boston the average rainfall of a month was equalled in one or two days. Fortunately in the Northwest the snow usually disappears before the rains come, and thus the danger of floods is not so great.

The contract system for labor in the State Prisons of New York having been abolished, the legislature of that state has the difficult problem to solve. The Superintendent of Prisons has reported that $1,100,000 will be necessary to keep the prisoners at work under the State account system till the end of the fical year, and unless another system is devised more must be idle than last. Various schemes have been consibered, but as yet none seem to meet the difficulty.

There is a movement on foot in Rhode Island to extend to women the same rights of suffrage as the men enjoy, but no great effort is being made to remove the restrictions which prevent many of the male residents of the State from voting. The Constitution has a provision which requires that naturalized citizens must own $160 worth of real estate before they can enjoy the privilege of the ballot. If a foreigner becomes a citizen by the acquisition of real estate of a sufficient value, and then by sale or otherwise loses title to his real estate, he loses his right of vote also.

Before the late riot in London, it was stated, on reliable authority, that 4 per cent. of the skilled workmen in all mechanical departments were out of employment, and many of them for the first time compelled to go upon the parish for support of themselves and their families. This condition of affairs—which had its logical outcome in the greatest riot seen in London in a hundred years—may or may not be within the reach of remedial legislation; but it certainly sinks into insignificance all other questions with which the present parliament is expected to deal.

Congress has been in session nearly three months, but as yet not much has been done, outside of the committee work. Most of the daily sessions have been consumed in tedious speeches, which very few care to hear, and which nobody will read. The long debate on the Fitz John Porter bill was wholly a waste of time as every member had made up his mind before they were delivered. And now it is intimated that we are to have a flood of silver speeches which are equally unnecessary. The result will be to prolong the session until the summer heat forces an adjournment without action on many measures of great importance to the public.

Only three of the defeated nominees of the two great political parties for the Presidency are still among the living—John C. Fremont, Samuel J. Tilden and James G. Blaine. Only three men who have occupied the Presidential chair are still living—Hayes, Arthur and Cleveland. Only three men who have been elected to the Vice Presidency are still living—Hannibal Hamlin, William A. Wheeler and Chester A. Arthur. Only three of the defeated nominees of the two great parties for the Vice Presidency are still living—George H. Pendleton, William H. English and John A. Logan. Three Democratic Presidential nominees have died within four months—McClellan, Hancock and Seymour, the two latter passing away within a week.

The St. Louis Republican says that the most formidable obstacle the sorghum experiment has encountered is the depression in the sugar trade of the last two years. A few years ago when good brown sugar was worth 7 cents a pound, and refined 11 cents, the sorghum enterprise was most promising, and if these prices had been maintained, sorghum sugar made in Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota and other Western states would probably by this time have become a familiar quotable article in the market. But the difference between 7 cents a pound and 4 cents is a very serious one, even to the Louisiana planters, who have been making sugar for nearly a century, and a still more serious one to the struggling infant sorghum enterprise. But farmers can and do make first-rate sorghum sirup in kettles for their own use—and the cultivation of the cane for this economical domestic purpose is steadily increasing in the West. An acre of cane costs but a few days' labor, and it will yield all the sirup a farmer's family can consume, and twenty-five bushels of good stock feed [illegible]

General News Condensed.

Death of John B. Gough.

John B. Gough, the eloquent temperance lecturer, died at 4:40 o'clock Thursday afternoon the 18th inst., at the residence of Dr. R. Bruce Burns, in Frankford, Pa., where he was taken on Monday night when stricken with paralysis, while lecturing at the Frankford Presbyterian church. His wife was at his bedside when he died. There were also present Mrs. Pidgeo, his sister, Mrs. Burns and two nieces, Misses Fanny and Mary Whitcomb, John Wanamaker, Rev. Thomas Murphy and Mrs. Jacob Wagner. It was recalled that the last words spoken by Mr. Gough were, "Young man, make your record clean." The body was embalmed, and after services at the house was taken to his home in Worcester county, Mass., for interment.

John B. Gough, unquestionably the ablest temperance lecturer in the world, was born at Sandgate, Kent, England, Aug. 22, 1817. His father, who received a small pension for services in the Peninsular war, died at the age of ninety years. The family were poor and penniless. In 1829 Gough parted with his mother and sister and came to the United States with a Sandgate family, the arrangements being that they were to receive ten guineas, and, in return, care for him during the voyage, teach him a trade after his arrival in the New world, and provide for him until he became of age. After two years' experience at farming in Oneida county, N. Y., he went to New York city, obtained a situation in a publishing house, and began to learn the book-binders trade, receiving for his services $1 per week. Here his mother and sister joined him. In 1833, through depression in trade, John lost his situation, and then followed deprivation and want. His mother died in July, 1834. Removed from the restraining influence of his mother, he began a course of dissipation. He frequented the street corners, the saloons and taverns, where his remarkable powers of mimicry, his gift of speech and song made him a popular favorite. He fell lower and lower, and finally became a confirmed drunkard. In 1840, being persuaded to attend a temperance meeting, he signed the pledge and thenceforward lived a sober life. He lectured on temperance throughout the United States and England. Afterwards he added other topics, and from 1845 to 1875 he was one of the most popular lecturers in the United States. He made many tours through this country and two or three through England. Mr. Gough continued to lecture until four or five years ago, when ill health compelled him to retire from the rostrum. It is stated that he amassed several fortunes, but gave so much for charitable objects that he was always poor.

Dangerous Counterfeit Silver Dollars.

La Crosse Special: Teller Hankerson, of the La Crosse National bank, discovered a counterfeit silver dollar that is pronounced by all bank people in the city absolutely the most dangerous bogus that any of them here ever saw. It is a standard dollar of the coinage of 1881. The outside is silver, and the die is in every substantial particular as clear as the original. It stands all microscopical tests, having the secret "M" on each side, the only variation being that under a powerful microscope the "U" in "E Pluribus Unum" is little misshaped, being larger at the top than the bottom. The only possible means of discovery is by weight, it being exactly forty-seven grains short of the standard, and about forty-three grains short of the average. The lack of weight is not sufficient to be noticeable by any one except an expert. The bank gave notice to all other banks in the city, and one appeared on the State bank counter. This warrants the belief that somebody is "shoving" the counterfeits here. Cashier Burton thinks it possible that the coin is pure silver, the difference in weight yielding a profit of 20 per cent. to the manufacturers.

Latest News Condensations.

Earl Granville, secretary of the state for the colonies, announced that the government would not introduce any Irish measures in parliament before the first of March. Lord Salisbury, commenting on the recent announcements in the house of commons and house of lords by Mr. Gladstone and Lord Granville respectively, complains that the government is treating parliament and a powerful interest with singular levity. Salisbury said he would wait to see what changes six weeks would give to the policy of the government. His remark was greeted with cheers.

The French and Italian governments have asked Lord Rosebery, minister of foreign affairs, whether he intended to order an English attack upon the Greek fleet. Lord Rosebery replied that England would not only in concert with the other powers. The latest orders dispatched to Suba bay are to the effect that no active measures shall be taken by the fleet assembled there without the special permission of all the governments interested.

Charles Billsted, a contractor, who has been building an oven at the county infirmary, Chicago, was smothered to death at the institution.

It has been found in Louisville, Ky., that Smith, a sinking fund commissioner, has been for years borrowing the funds at 3 per cent. and loaning them at the rate of $250,000 to $800,000 a year to the customers of his bank, for his own benefit, at 7 per cent.

In connection with the Ontario and Manitoba government 107 rainfall observing stations have been added to the dominion meteorological service.

The Canadian Pacific has made an emigrant rate of $12 from the seaboard to St. Vincent.

The impression is gaining ground that the present cabinet will prove unworkable and that it will be impossible to hold it together. The Pall Mall Gazette says: The resignation of Joseph Chamberlain, president of the local government board, is a question of but a few hours. The resignation will be made ostensibly because Mr. Chamberlain cannot bring himself to acquiesce in the government's policy of coercion towards Greece, but in reality because he is unwilling to mar what he believes to be his political future by identifying himself just now with the home rule policy decided on by a majority of his colleagues.

Gov. Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia, has sent his first message to the legislature treating entirely of the state debt question. The position he assumes is expressed in these words: "The people of Virginia after a long and acrimonious agitation of the debt question, reached in 1881 and 1882 a settlement which has since received the sanction of both political parties of the state. From the position thus taken the people will not recede." He recommends the appointment of a commission to explain the nature of this settlement to the creditors of the state.

A London Special: The London workingman have in their leaders men of ability, character and experience. They trust them, and are not likely again to be led into rioting, but it is certain that something must be done for them, and the government must do it. Hyndman is a well known writer, a good orator, and a man of excellent character. Champion is the son of an Indian general. He served with distinction as a subaltern in the artillery service in Africa, and finally quitted the army in disgust after the rebellion of Arabi Pasha.

Prof. John Nichol, LL. D., who occupied the chair of English literature in the University of Glasgow, has been arrested at Naples for carrying a sword stick without having procured the necessary license. The penalty for the offense is three months' imprisonment. The British consul at Naples intervened, and through his influence Prof. Nichol was sent to Rome [illegible]

The body of Rev. Jesse B. Braly, of Nortonville, Ky., was found encased in ice in the river below St. Louis. He had committed suicide from fear of the result of an investigation then going on in relation to his private affairs.

The Renfrew Manufacturing Company of Adams, Mass., which is one of the largest manufacturers of ginghams and table cloths in the country, have raised the wages of their operatives 10 per cent, to date from March 1. The men had not asked for more pay.

The strike of hosiery operatives at Leicester has ended in a compromise. The Sunderland ship builders threaten to open their works to unemployed workmen unless the bands in the strike accept the terms offered them. Messrs. Morgan, the bankers, have donated £500 to the Mansion House relief fund. The fund now amounts to £52,000.

The examination into the death of Mr. Bartlett, a merchant of Pimly, England, to whom it is alleged cloroform was administered by his wife, so that she would be able to marry Rev. Mr. Dyson, a Wesleyan minister, with whom she had been intimate, has been finished, and Mrs. Bartlett and Mr. Dyson were both committed for trial on the charge of murdering Mr. Bartlett.

P. E. Sarrazin & Co., cigar and tobacco manufacturers, of New Orleans, have brought suit against their creditors, praying for a respite of six, twelve and eighteen months. Their assets are $158,000, and their liabilities $120,000.

Mrs. Hendricks, of Indianapolis, has been annoyed by spiritualists, who send her letters purporting to have been addressed to her from the spirit land by her husband. One person in New York wrote inclosing a letter from Mr. Hendricks, claiming that it was genuine and written in his own peculiar style. There was an undoubted resemblance, but Mrs. Hendricks characterized it as only a clever piece of imitation, remarking that she could easily detect the difference.

At Salt Lake City, Thomas Birmingham and James Bowen, convicted of unlawful cohabitation, were sentenced in the district court to six months' imprisonment and to pay fines of $300 each. Abram H. Cannon took the witness stand when his case was called. Upon being asked whether two women were his wives and whether he had lived with them, he replied, "They are, thank God. I have lived with them as charged." He was convicted. Henry Dinmoody pleaded guilty. He promised obedience to the law, and sentence was suspended.

The governor of Illinois has offered a reward of $200 for the arrest of the parties who hung Miss Georgia Aldrich at Windsor.

L. A. Hopkins absconded from Chapin & Gore's wholesale liquor establishment, Chicago, with $3,500. Soon after the firm received a draft for $1,700 from Hopkins who is at Montreal.

A well known Minneapolis gentleman received a letter from a friend who is conducting an exhibit at New Orleans. The letter states that there are very few visitors in attendance, and that all the exhibitors are heartily sick of the affair, and would be glad to get out of it if they could. The managers of the institution are cutting expenses on every side, and the enterprise is almost a dismal failure.

David Shelty, a wealthy farmer living near Shirley, Ill., armed with two shotguns, secreted himself in the oat bin of his barn. The members of his family discovered his whereabouts and attempted to take him to the house. He jumped from his hiding place and fired a number of shots, inflicting probably fatal wounds upon his brother, Levi Shelty, his wife, sister-in-law, and his son, aged seventeen. He then set fire to the barn which was entirely consumed.

The action of the assistant treasurer of New York in refusing to accept deposits of silver until he is able to count it is in strict accordance with instructions issued by the United States treasurer. Similar instructions have been sent to all the assistant treasurers, the object being to insure greater protection in the handling of government funds.

On October 20, 1882, James McLaughlin left his farm near Masonville, Iowa. There was a debt of $2,800 on the farm, and it is believed that this preyed upon his mind until he became deranged and wandered away. Recently the wife heard that in October a man's body had been found floating at Dubuque. The body was disinterred. Mrs. McLaughlin identified it as that of her husband by a broken eye tooth, the overcoat and stockings.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Death of Senator Z. B. Clarke of Benson.

Hon. Z. B. Clarke, state senator, died at his home in Benson, Swift county, on the 18th. He has been gradually failing for eighteen months, but had only been confined to his bed for five weeks.

Hon. Z. B. Clarke was born in Licking, Ohio, on Oct. 18, 1844, and he was, therefore, but little over forty-one years of age. When five years old he removed with his parents to Wisconsin. Six years later his mother died, and he came to Minnesota, settling in Olmsted county, and ever since then he has been the architect of his own fortunes. During the war he served four years in Company C, Third Minnesota volunteers. In 1870 he took up a claim near Lacqui Parle, and he made his first entrance into public life by serving three years as county clerk. In 1878 he was sent to the legislature. During the grasshopper scourge in 1875 he met with business reverses and removed to Benson, where he has since lived. He was elected state senator in 1883, and was chairman of the last state Republican convention. Mr. Clarke's health had been failing for the past two years. He was regarded as having one of the brightest political futures of the prominent Republicans of the state.

The following are among the recent postal changes in Minnesota: Avon, Stearns county, Thomas Hussay appointed postmaster, vice John W. Rich, removed; Belcher, Pope county, Thomas W. Brown, vice T. E. Clark, removed; Fairhaven, Stearns county, John H. Bierler, vice R. M. Vandewort, removed; Freeport, Stearns county, John Hoscher, vice Frank Benocken, removed; Genova, Freeborn county, Mrs. Reid, vice Mrs. Osborne, resigned; Gilchrist, Pope county, O. Peterson, vice Erickson, resigned; Holdingsford, Stearns county, William Murphy, vice Augustus Parish, removed; Jackson, Jackson county, J. Fiddes, vice W. P. Lamson, not commissioned; Lewiston, Winona county, M. S. Glasmer, vice J. W. Rice, removed; Luxemburg, Stearns county, J. B. Lasher, vice P. Hammond, removed; Nautsdale, Stearns county, Andrew Watson, vice John Turtum, resigned; New Munich, Stearns county, J. Bullever, vice A. Sutton, removed; Rices, Benton county, J. W. Walter, vice Henry Fox, removed; Springhill, Stearns county, Henry B. Ley, vice John H. Buck, removed.

Four counterfeiters of silver dollars were "caught in the act" of moulding them at Anoka. A man named Goodson is considered the leader. He has been away from Anoka a good deal, and presumably picked up his knowledge of counterfeiting while in some of the larger cities. He is a single man, and has no regular occupation. Bert Lishness is married. For a time he kept a saloon which was burned some time ago under suspicious circumstances. Frank Cole is married and Ed Teller is divorced from his wife who lives in Anoka. The capture was a very clever one, and reflects great credit upon Marshal Donny, Deputy Marshal Brackett, Sheriff Lenfest, Chief of Police Russell, Attorney George W. Morrill and Policeman Charles Clover and John Herring, who participated in making the arrest.

The supreme court of the state rendered a decision in the Col. Bend case, by discharging the order to show cause why Lieut. Col. Perry Harrison assumed to act as commander-in-chief of the Minnesota national guard. The decision in brief is that Lieut. Col. Harrison acted under the orders of Gov. Hubbard, who is the commander-in-chief, and that it was the duty of that officer to perform the acts complained of. Bend says the end is not yet reached, but that his case will appear in an equity suit.

Company K of Minneapolis drilled at the St. Paul Armory in presence of Gov. Hubbard and a thousand others, for a fine silk banner. At the close Col. Bentzoni, U. S. A., one of the judges, stepped forward and complimented both companies. He stated that the drill was so close that it was difficult to decide between them, but careful rulings credited the fewest mistakes to Company K, and it was therefore awarded the flag.

FRUIT OF INDECISION.

From the Norristown Herald.

A maid I knew, had lovers two,
And both were quite respected;
But to decide to be the bride
Of one, left one neglected.
And so she hung, her doubts among,
Until she grew dejected.

"There's John," she said, "has got a head
That ne'er will be directed,
But he is wise, has lovely eyes,
And is so well connected.
I love him, too, of course I do!
And he shall be selected.

"How James would start! He has a heart
So easily affected.
He's fond and fair. I wonder where Such graces he collected?
He's rich as well. I cannot tell
Why he should be rejected."

So James or John it balanced on,
Each judgment new corrected,
Until the maid began to fade,
Her thoughts still uncollected.
And both the men proposed again
To girls, while she reflected.

A CREOLE CINDERELLA.

In that portion of New Orleans which is called by residents the Third district and by all others the French quarter, stands a small but pretty park, which bears the patriotic name of "Washington square." By what name it is known to the children who play on its green lawns, or how matrons and maids who sits in the shade of its trees on summer afternoons twist their pretty mouths to prnounce its in harsh Anglo-Saxon syllables, it is not hard to imagine. It must figure their nomenclature as "Vashington skevare," or else as "La Place Washingtone." It was a fashionable neighborhood in the early days of this century, and it still retains an air of decayed gentillity, which appeals to one's sympathy.

Descendants of grand old families, bearing historic names, live near by in houses handed down with the name from one generation to another. Some of these houses face the park from Dauphine and Frenchmen streets; others are situated within a radius of a few squares in all directions. Most of the old French houses have an air of almost oriental seclusion. They would present a stern, often a forbidden aspect from the street, but that fig trees, white oleanders, or scarlet pomegranates show high above the garden walls, holding in their embrace inquisitive climbing roses and honeysuckles which hang over to see what is going on in the world outside. Great, saucy, purple, wisterias run riot all along the fence, whispering wonderful tales to each passer-by of all the glory shut in by these envious prison walls. They tell of beds of crimson lilies looking like sheets of flame, of geraniums that are almost trees, of roses so wholly a mass of bloom, that they seem giant bouquets, of jessamine, creeping over summer bowers where sit beautiful young girls. And all this while one's senses are steeped in the odor of orange blossoms, which pervades the atmosphere.

In a large old-fashioned house, not very far from Washington square, lived Jeanne. It was indeed fortunate that the house was large, for the size of the family, as is the case in many creole households, was patriarchal. In creole homes four generations often dwell beneath one roof in peace and happiness. Their peaceful "interior life," as they call it, strikes with amazement all those Americans who are privileged to enter the inner circle of the creoles. Mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law, married daughters with their husbands and children, the old and the young, live pleasantly together, and no word of discord echoes into the outside world. The reverence of the young people for the aged is beautiful to behold. The oldest member of the family has the place of honor; his or her counsels are always accepted as having most weight in all discussions, and yet, expecially if this aged person is the grandmother, she is never too old to take an interest in the enjoyments of the smallest child.

In the family, of which Jeanne was a member, the grandmother, a charming old lady, was virtually the head of the house, and every member of the household was solicituous for her health and happiness. Her son, the father of the family—an active, vigorous man of 50—and his wife, a blooming matron of 41 or 42, completed the list of the second generation; but the third was more numerous. In truth Jeanne was the eldest girl of a family of nine brothers and sisters. To these must be added the young wife of the eldest brother. The baby boy of the young couple, like the grandmother, stood alone in his generation.

From first to last they were a handsome family. In any other household Jeanne would have been considered a beauty; but her younger sister, Odille, was marvelously beautiful, and the two little rosebuds, Celeste and Blance gave promise of being, if possible, even prettier than Odille; so that Jeanne's less obtrusive charms were unnoticed. She was the modest violet in this garden of girls. She was rather below the medium height, while Odille, who was not much above it, was so queenly in her carriage that she seemed taller.

In character Jeanne was gentle and unassuming. She had so modest an appreciation of herself that she impressed the feeling on the family. They all loved her, it is true; but she was so ever ready to do for others that insensibly they were exacting with her. Jeanne's tireless little feet ran countless errands for all of her dear ones; her dainty fingers gave the finishing touch which made her sisters' toilettes so pretty, or rendered acceptable music when her brothers spent their evenings at home. If the young people wished to dance it seemed quite natural for Jeanne to remain seated at the piano during the entire evening, and no one remembered that she, too, was young and liked to dance also.

When on festival occasions the whole family would go abroad in search of pleasure, if "grandmamma" did not feel well enough to accompany them they would say quite as a matter of course, "Jeanne chérie, grandmamma can not be left alone, you will stay with her, n'est-ce-pas?" And they would all go off in gay good humor, leaving little Jeanne to read aloud from books of devotion, or to play for her grandmother those airs from the operas that the old lady liked best. Still the girl's unselfish heart never felt one pang of regret at these times she never gave expression to it by word or look. Her self abnegation had become so much a part of their daily lives that her relations, loving and valuing her as they did in their hearts, never realized what continual self-sacrifice they demanded of her. They were good, kind people, all of them, and would have been shocked could they once have been made to understand their want of consideration for the young girl.

Exactly as Jeanne's unselfish nature tempted her relations to require much of her, so did a certain imperiousness in Odille compel them to render that young woman a kind of homage. She accepted this homage by the divine right of her magnificent beauty, yet it fostered a selfishness of which she was unconscious. Jeanne was Odille's most devoted and adoring slave. Her exquisite taste and deft fingers fashioned many a pretty trifle wherewith to heighten her sister's charms, and it was a pretty sight to witness the rapture of admiration with which she contemplated the result of her labor on the person of the superb Odille.

Little Jeanne never imagined that any one could think her more attractive than this magnificent sister. In fact Odille allured the senses, but Jeanne touched the heart.

"How pretty you are, Jeanne," said a friend to her one day.

"If you can find me pretty," answered Jeanne, "then what must you think of Odille?"

When the lady friend afterwards spoke of this conversation to her husband the latter remarked that it seemed a pity to disturb the young girl's innocent faith in her sister by seeking to instill a belief in her own equal if not superior loveliness. "Leave her," said the gentleman, "in the possession of so rare an attraction as unconsciousness."

This friend of Jeanne's, a Baltimorean by birth, had married into a New Orleans family which had been on terms of intimacy with Jeanne's people for many years. She introduced a new, and, as it were, a foreign element into Jeanne's life. She was at first the only "American" with whom Jeanne had any acquaintance, and could tell such pleasant things of the great, far-away "Nort," about which distant land our Jeanne felt much curiosity. Then, too, Jeanne prized the opportunity of "spiking Engleesh," which her intercourse with this friend gave her.

And just here the narrator of this little tale begs leave to ask a question often propounded by creole dames and damoiselles. "Why is it," they wish to know, "that the American ladies will rarely speak French in their intercourse with the creoles, but force the French ladies to summon all the English phrases they can muster, whether broken or otherwise, as a medium of conversation?" "Is English more easy to learn than French?" ask the creole ladies. "Is this fact a consequence of the superior politeness of the Latin race, or of the false modesty of the Anglo-Saxon?" ask the Americans, for these last are conscious of their incivility and deplore while they do not correct it. Jeanne's mamma, who could only say "Oh, yes," and "Ver nice," would exhaust her vocabulary again and again in the presence of "American" guests accompanied by many amiable wags of the head and a generous profusion of smiles. But she also filled their hands with the rarest flowers and warmed their hearts with a taste of her almost priceless wine.

Though our Jeanne declared that her jaws ached when she "talked Engleesh" all day long, yet, as her accent was the prettiest that could be imagined, and her little mannerisms quite adorable, her admirers wished that she might "talk Engleesh" forever, despite the injury done to her jaws, for Jeanne had admirers by the score, though she kept them at a distance.

"Why do you not tell me of your lovers, Jeanne?" asked her friend, Mme. Dufour, of her one day, when she had been discoursing of Odille's conquests, and counting on her fingers the long list of Odille's lovers. And Jeanne answered gayly:

"Oh! I have no lovers. After three days they all leave me for Odille."

"You mean you leave them to Odille, you hard-hearted little girl," replied her friend.

"Its all the same," laughed Jeanne; "if I do not leave them they would leave me as soon as they saw my beautiful sister, so I save myself the pain of being forsaken."

One day Madame Dufour introduced into Jeanne's family circle a cousin of hers, also a Marylander, who had but recently arrived in New Orleans. He was a tall, broad-shouldered, handsome young man, of agreeable address and charming manners, so that he pleased all who met him. Jeanne's family were delighted with him from the date of his first visit. evidently he was equally pleased with them, for he soon became a constant visitor at the house. The charming home life of this large family attracted him immediately.

"Just think of what elements of discord are in that house, and yet they are as harmonious as a nest of doves," he remarked to his cousin.

"I have often said that Barnum ought to have them," replied Madame Dufour.

Young Frank Howard thought he had never witnessed anything more delightful than the affection and confidence the members of this large family manifested for each other. The artless manner in which they, one and all, openly expressed their admiration for each other pleased while it amused him. As for "Grandmamma," no queen on her throne was ever more honored or petted than this ancient dame. From little Blance, whose fairy fingers plucked the first violets for "Ma Grandmere," to the boys who brought her choicest fruits, and the ladies of the family, who gave her lively descriptions of all that went on in society, every one sought to add something to her comfort or pleasure. Even visitors were encouraged to offer morsels of amiable gossip at grandmamma's shrine, and she was not averse to listening; nor did the witty old lady hesitate to supplement these stories with reminiscences of her own bright youth, when the grandsires of those heroes and heroines figured in romance more or less wonderful.

Although it was this picture of idyllic home-life which first caught young Frank Howard's fancy, yet he soon began to feel a more personal interest in his visits. He had been struck, as every one was, by Odille's remarkable beauty, but from the first he thought Jeanne was lovelier and more winning. Her pretty, dainty ways, her gay repartee, her tact in doing or saying always the right thing, but above all, the perfect amiability of her character, made her become every day more and more charming to him.

As Frank became more intimate in the household he perceived and began to complain to his cousin of the manifold demands made on Jeanne's good nature by all the members of her family; nor could Madame Dufour make him understand that it was the young girl's own absolute unselfishness which had produced this result.

From the first Madame Dufour had instructed her cousin in the customs of creole society, and he knew that young men visitors were never allowed to see the young ladies of the house except in the presence of some older member of the family; yet, with the egotism of a lover, Frank fancied that they all knew for the sake of whose bright eyes he came so often to the house, and he chafed under what he called "cruel espionage."

Never was their vigilance relaxed for one instant, Frank thought, never could he find an opportunity to say three words to Jeanne alone. In three words he felt he could explain himself to the girl of his heart. But, alas! there was no chance offered in which to speak those momentous words. If he dined with the family he was seated by Odille; if they all went for a walk in the neighboring Washington square, or sat on its benches to listen to the band playing on summer afternoons, Odille was his inevitable companion, placed by his side with a few words from her father or brother. Little did Odille dream as the young man sauntered along by her side, while Jeanne romped with the children, or hung on the arm of one of the brothers, chatting gayly, of the storms of wrath brooding in the heart of her companion. Frank felt that he almost hated her. It never occurred to any of them, certainly not to Odille herself, that any man could have eyes to look at Jeanne when Odille was present.

At Frank's instigation Madame Dufour proposed many little parties of pleasure, in which she sought to give her cousin the long-coveted opportunity to speak to Jeanne alone. But their best laid plans were brought to naught by the superior tactics of the other side, and Frank could scarcely control an expression of rage when, at the last moment, some other member of the family would appear, with a polite excuse for substituting herself for Jeanne.

Finally the husband of Frank's cousin and confidant was taken into their counsels, who solved the question easily, for he said:

"There is nothing for you to do, Frank, but to go to Jeanne's father and ask his permission to pay your addresses to his daughter."

"And I will be careful to say which daughter," added Frank with energy.

What a bombshell was launched into the bosom of that peaceful household when Frank finally secured his interview with "papa." It was indeed a difficult task to convince the head of the house that the eldest daughter's hand was asked in marriage, and not Odille's. The mother proved almost obstinately incredulous when her husband, as in duty bound to do, gave her an account of the interview. She announced to the others very decisively that "papa must be mistaken for Mr. Howard's attentions had all been bestowed on Odille." But "papa" held to his last opinion, and that night the peace of this happy family was menaced. Discussion ran high, and the family conclave sat talking until late into the night. Poor Jeanne in tears, almost in disgrace, went off early to bed; but Odille posed as a martyr and was petted and condoled with accordingly.

At last "Grandmamma" sent the disputants off to their individual apartments. "Be quiet, my children," she commanded: "certainly this young man must know his own heart. Let him come to-morrow and explain himself to me."

So Grandmamma had a private conversation with Frank next day, and when she sent for the agitated, blushing Jeanne and placed her hand in Frank's then the fiat of grandmamma's decision went forth and all agreed that it was wise and good.

Thus was harmony restored. Thenceforth congratulations and heartfelt sympathy were bestowed on Jeanne, and Odille, for the first time in her life, held only a second place in the consideration of her family.

As for that young woman, after the first moments of indignant surprise, her sympathy and good will were given to Jeanne as freely as the good wishes of any of the others. She had liked Frank well enough as an acquaintance, and, as he was a good parti, was young, good looking and agreeable, would have accepted him as her husband had she been told to do so, and would have made him a good wife afterwards. But she philosophically reflected that the world held many other equally deserving young men, some of whom would not prove so unappreciative of her attractions as her future brother-in-law had been. She entered with zest into all the romance of the love affair and the excitement of wedding preperations. Frank, with a new, brotherly regard for her, acknowledged that she was too beautiful to be hidden in a corner, and promised himself the pleasure of giving her a wider field of action. She was to accompany Jeanne and himself on their wedding tour abroad.

Dear little Jeanne found it hard to realize that all this happiness rightfully belonged to her.

"I always thought you came for Odille," she whispered to her lover; "besides, I was fast becoming an old maid. You know, I have nearly twenty years."

Said "Grandmamma" afterwards to Mme. Dufour, confident that she was speaking idiomatic English, for she had heard of "pop the question:" "Ven he popped, ma chere, nobody vas so astoneesh as my little Jeanne."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Lavish Washington.

"Washington is more wordly—worse than ever," writes a bright young woman, who, says the Philadelphia Press, knows her Washington—all of it, and the better side of its best. And she goes on to say what every one does now, that the pace grows more heedless every year. Even a sharp reminder, like Miss Bayard's sudden death, checks nothing; scarcely called out feeling among the people who flocked about her, and shared the graceful hospitality of the House. The war was bad for Washington, and demoralizing, but the discovery of rich people in the last four or five years that they can amuse themselves better there than elsewhere bids fair to be worse. It is fast making Washington lavish. Now for a republican capital to be lavish is sure to mean corruption sooner or later.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.—Bills were introduced for the establishment of an educational fund from the proceeds of public land sales and receipts from railway companies under the Thurman act; imposing a duty of 25 per cent ad valorem on all goods the product of countries east of the Cape of Good Hope except wool, raw cotton and raw silk; appropriating $250,000 for a monument to Gen. Grant in Washington. The bill for punishment of trespassers upon Indian lands (designed especially to cover the cases of the Oklahoma boomers) passed.

HOUSE.—The Hennepin canal bill was reported favorably. Bills passed making the allowances for clerk hire to first and second-class postmasters cover the cost of clerical labor in the money order business; reducing from eight to five cents the charge for money orders not exceeding $5, and to protect homestead settlers within railroad limits. The debate on the Fitz John Porter bill was resumed.

SENATE.—Mr. Edmunds, from the judiciary committee, presented resolutions and a report on the relations of the senate and the president in the matter of the suspension of officials. After the report and resolutions were read, Mr. Pugh, from the committee said: "As to the report just made, I desire to state that the minority of the judiciary committee knew nothing of the contents of the report until it was read to the committee this morning. The minority desire to prepare a report, in which they will present their views; and to enable them to do so, they have until Monday week within which to prepare the report, and it is understood that the majority report, and the resolutions accompanying it, will not be called up for consideration until we get leave to file the minority report. The time given us to do so is not to extend beyond next Monday week."

So the minority report and discussion will probably be postponed until the 1st of March.

Among the petitions presented in the senate and appropriately referred was one by Mr. Hoar from "Citizens of the United States"—citizens whose names, Mr. Hoar said, seemed to indicate they were foreign birth—praying for the submission by congress to the several states of a proposed constitutional amendment abolishing the presidency.

HOUSE.—A bill amending the Pacific railroad acts, compelling the roads to pay to the government the amounts for surveying lands, was reported.

The Fitz John Porter bill was passed by the house the vote standing: Ayes 173, nays 113. The debate was closed by Gen. Bragg in a speech of considerable force, in which he showed great familiarity with the movements of the troops on the Bull Run battle field, having been an active participant and in command of a brigade on the Union side upon that occasion. He denounced Pope and McDowell.

Many of the points made by Bragg were applauded on the Democratic side, and like demonstration was made on the Republican side when Steele or Cutcheon succeeded in injecting some pointed question or remark into Bragg's speech.

SENATE.—Mr. Manderson introduced a resolution directing the secretaries of state and war to investigate and report upon the killing of Capt. Crawford by Mexican soldiers. The Blair education bill was debated, several Southern senators being among those who spoke against it.

Mr. Edmunds, from the committee on the judiciary, reported favorably, bills to remove the political disabilities of Alexander P. Stewart of Mississippi, Thomas L. Rosser of Virginia and Edward G. W. Butler of Missouri. The bills were at once passed, Mr. Edmunds remarking that one of the parties was an old gentleman and desired, before leaving this world, to be at peace with the United States.

Mr. Beck said he did not know of any smaller business for the judiciary committee than to be peddling out removals of disabilities in this way.

Mr. Edmunds replied:

All that the United States asked of any person, before relieving him of the penalty imposed upon him by the constitution for violating his oath and deserting the constitution that he swore to support, and making war against the United States, was that he should present a respectable petition, showing that he was ready to give up fighting the United States and to pay the debts he owed for moneys received in his official character. If the senator from Kentucky (Mr. Beck) thought that to be "peddling out" the removal referred to, he was entitled to his opinion.

Mr. Beck in reply said:

Twelve years ago the house of representatives had passed a bill removing all disabilities, and before that time the senate had done so. It did not happen that both houses had done it at the same session. He insisted upon characterizing the present mode as "peddling out," and supposed that in the present condition of the senate nothing better could be expected.

After an executive session the senate adjourned over two days.

The senate confirmed the following nominations:

Mar's Taylor of Dakota, surveyor general of Dakota; D. T. Bramble of Dakota, receiver of public moneys, Watertown Dak.; William Campbell of Minnesota, United States marshal for Minnesota.

You must spare a little wheat daily for the growing chicks; nothing will bring your pullets to early laying better than wheat. Feed generously; it does not pay to be stingy with it.

There is no use in trying to fatten half-grown chicks. There will be a great difference in the condition of chicks of different breeds at the same age, but until well matured they will not fatten.

An Indiana seed grower offered a prize of one cent for each bean grown on the one stalk producing the largest number of California tree beans. It cost him $22 to redeem his promise. The prize stalk contained 450 pods and 2,200 beans.

If you have not done so already, go over your flock of chicks and pick out the culls. Keep only the best birds for breeding; culls are fit only for the pot. Take our advice, and, in a few years, you will be surprised to find your yards filled with high scoring birds.

Thousands of tons of cheese are made in France from the milk of sheep, while milk from the goats is used for the same purpose in Germany. In European markets such cheese brings the highest prices, and the demand is always equal to the supply.

The question was asked by the Southern Live Stock Journal what the relative values were of hay and bran. The Elmira Farmer's Club seem to rate them about equal when both cost $15 per ton. This is a good standard to figure from, and is probably correct.

The New England Farmer, in speaking of the suffering of stock in transit, says: "Before many years the carting of a live ox from Kansas to Boston for the sake of knocking him on the head when he gets there, will be done away with entirely, as a ridiculous and needless waste."

SENATE AND PRESIDENT.

Report of Mr. Edmunds Presented in the Senate with Resolutions Maintenance of the Right of Senators to Papers Regarding Suspensions from Office.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senator Edmunds to-day reported the following resolutions from the senate committee on the judiciary, accompanied by a long report:

Resolved, That the foregoing report of the committee on the judiciary be agreed to and adopted.

Resolved, That the senate hereby expresses its condemnation of the refusal of the attorney general, under whatever influence, to send to the senate copies of papers called for by its resolution of the 25th of January, and set forth in the reports of the committee on the judiciary, as in violation of his official duty and subversive of the fundamental principles of the government, and of a good administration thereof.

Resolved, That it is, under the circumstances, the duty of the senate to refuse its advice and consent to proposed removals of officers, the documents and papers in reference to the supposed official or personal misconduct of whom are withheld by the executive, or any head of a department, when deemed necessary by the senate, or called for in considering the matter.

Resolved, That the provision of section 1754 of the Revised Statutes, declaring "that persons honorably discharged from the military or naval service by reason of disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty, shall be preferred for appointment to civil offices, provided they are found to possess the business capacity necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of such office," ought to be faithfully and fully put in execution; and that to remove, or to propose to remove, any such soldier, whose faithfulness, competency and character are above reproach, and to give place to another who has not rendered such service, is a violation of the spirit of the law and of the practical gratitude the people of the United States and government owe to the defenders of the constitutional liberty and the integrity of the government.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed.)
GEORGE F. EDMUNDS,
JOHN J. INGALLS,
S. J. R. MCMILLAN,
GEORGE F. HOAR,
JAMES F. WILSON,
WILLIAM M. EVARTS.

The report recites the fact and circumstances of the removal of Dustin and the appointment of his successor, as United States attorney for the Southern district of Alabama. It declares:

It has been the uniform practice of the judiciary committee, since the passage of the tenure-of-office act, to call upon the heads of departments for all "papers and information" in the possession of the department touching the conduct and administration of the officer proposed to be removed, and the character and conduct of the person proposed to be appointed. This has been done with the unanimous approval of all the members. Although the composition of the committee has been, during the period, sometimes of one political character and sometimes of another, in no instance until this time has the committee met with any delay or denial in respect to furnishing such papers and information, with a single exception, and in which exception the delay and suggested denial lasted only for two or three days.

THE JURISDICTION OF CONGRESS.

The jurisdiction of the two houses of congress to legislate, and the power to advise or withhold advice concerning treaties and appointments, necessarily involves the jurisdiction to officially know every step and action of the officers of the law, and all the facts touching their conduct in the possession of any department, or even in the possession of the president himself. There was no need to express such a power, for it was necessarily an inherent incident to the exercise of the power granted. It will be observed that in this instance the call for papers covered a period for more than six months, during which the regular incumbent of the office had been discharging its duties, and also the further period of more than six months during which the person designated to discharge these duties on the suspension of the officer, had been acting, and that person is the one now proposed to be appointed to the place. It will also be observed that the president has not undertaken to remove the incumbent of the office, but has only, in expressed and stated pursuance of the statutes on the subject, suspended that officer, and that the same statutes expressly provide that such officer shall not be removed without the advice and consent of the senate, and that if that advice and consent be not given the incumbent would (unless his regular term of office should have previously expired) at the close of this session of the senate be restored to the lawful right to exercise its duties. The senate then by this nomination is asked to advise and consent to the removal of the incumbent, and to the appointment of the candidate proposed for his place. In exercising its duty in respect of these questions, it is plain that the conduct and management of the incumbent is a matter absolutely essential to be known in the senate, in order that it may determine whether it can rightly advise his removal or rightly leave him to resume the functions of his office at the end of its session, as well as whether the candidate proposed has in the exercise of the office under his designation so conducted himself as to show that he is competent and faithful. Indeed, it may be stated with entire accuracy that even in the case of a vacancy in an office, and the proposed filling of such vacancy, it is important for the senate to know the previous condition and management of the office, the state of its affairs, whether there have been cases of misconduct or abuse of power, the embezzlement of money, and indeed all the circumstances bearing upon the administration, in order that it may judge of the suitableness of appointing a particular person to take up its duties with reference to the difficulties that may exist in its affairs, the state of accounts and everything concerning its administration, so as to measure the fitness and competency of the particular candidate to meet the emergencies of the case.

A LEADING QUESTION.

A table is presented showing a large number of persons appointed in the place of officers suspended, and the query is made:

Have these suspended officials any or considerable number of them been guilty of misconduct in office or any personal conduct making them unworthy to be longer trusted with the performance of duties imposed by law? If they have it would seem to be clear that every consideration of public interest and of public duty would require that the facts should be made known in order that the senate may understandingly and promptly advise their removal, and that the most careful scrutiny should be had in the respect of selecting their successors as well as in the respect of providing better means and safeguards by legislation for administering the laws of the United States. Such information, it would seem, the executive is determined the senate shall not possess, for the alleged reason that it might enable the senate to understand what circumstances connected with the faithful execution of laws induced the president to exercise the discretion the statute confers upon him to suspend them and ask the senate to unite with him in their removal from office.

The report quotes the passage on the civil service contained in the president's annual message, and says:

This highly important and valuable official communication, in the presence of 643 suspensions from office, would seem to lead to the conclusion that this number of the civil officers of the United States selected to be suspended and removed had been so direlect in the performance of their functions or guilty of such personal misconduct as to put them in the category of unfaithful public servants, deserving dismissal by the president and the senate, and the condemnation of their countrymen. In such a state of things we think that the common sense of justice and fair play that is so much prized, as we believe, by the people of the United States, would require that in some way this large body of men should have an opportunity to know the substance of their alleged misdoings, in order that they may either admit their guilt or deny it, explain their conduct or show that the accusations against them were selfish and wicked pretexts, and set up for the mere purpose of obtaining their suspension and ultimate dismissal from office, in order that others less capable and worthy might at once receive the honors and emoluments of their places. It is known to every senator that so far as the senate has had to do, both with removals and appointments, it has for a great number of years been its practice when an officer or person was before it for removal or appointment against whom any serious accusation has been made which would, if true, influence the action of the senate in the case, to cause the person concerned to be informed of the substance of the complaint against him, and give him opportunity to defend himself; and it is also known that at this very session a considerable number of instances of that kind have occurred and are daily occuring.

The sharp sayings of Gen. W. T. Sherman, if collected in book form, would make a large volume. Some time during the latter part of the war, or just after it, the society people of the South were in a habit of turning up their noses at "Old Tecumseh" as not blue blooded. In support of their charge it was reported and published in the Southern newspapers that he had once kept a corner grocery. Some of the younger members of the family wrote to the General inclosing a cutting from a Southern paper to this effect, and asked him to deny it. The old warrior wrote back that he did not think there was any necessity for a denial. "Because, for my part, I think a corner a very good place to keep a grocery."

What Warner's Safe Cure Cures And Why.

Congestion of the Kidneys, Back Ache.

Inflammation of the Kidneys, Bladder or Urinary Organs.

Catarrh of the Bladder, Gravel, Stone, Dropsy, Enlarged Prostate Gland, Impotency or General Debility. Bright's Disease.

Why? Because it is the only remedy known that has power to expel the uric acid and urea, of which there are some 500 grains secreted each day as the result of muscular action, and sufficient if retained in the blood, to kill six men. It is the direct cause of all the above diseases, as well as of Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Insanity and Death.

This great specific relieves the kidneys of too much blood, frees them from all irritants, restores them to healthy action by its certain and soothing power.

It cures also Jaundice, Enlargement of the Liver, Abscess and Catarrh of the Bile Ducts, Biliousness, Headache, Furred Tongue, Sleeplessness, Languor, Debility, Constipation, Gall Stones, and every unpleasant symptom which results from liver complaint.

Why? Because it has a specific and positive action on the liver as well as on the kidneys, increasing the secretion and flow of bile, regulates its elaborating function, removes unhealthful formations, and, in a word, restores it to natural activity, without which health is an impossibility.

It cures also Female Complaints, Leuchorrhœa, Displacements, Enlargements, Ulcerations, Painful Menstruation, makes Pregnancy safe, prevents Convulsions and Child-Bed Fever and aids nature by restoring functional activity.

Why? All these troubles, as is well known by every physician of education, arise from congestion and impaired kidney action, causing stagnation of the blood vessels and breaking down, and this is the beginning and the direct cause of all the ailments from which women suffer, and must assurely follow as night does the day.

Why Warner's Safe Cure is acknowledged by thousands of our best medical men to be the only true blood purifier, is because it acts upon scientific principles, striking at the very root of the disorder by its action on the kidneys and liver. For, if these organs were kept in health all the morbid waste matter so deadly poisonous if retained in the body is passed out. On the contrary, if they are deranged, the acids are taken up by the blood, decomposing it and carrying death to the most remote part of the body.

Why 93 per cent. of all diseases which afflict humanity, arise from impaired kidneys, is shown by medical authorities. Warner's Safe Cure, by its direct action, positively restores them to health and full working capacity, nature curing all the above diseases herself when the cause is removed, and we guarantee that Warner's Safe Cure is a positive preventive if taken in time.

As you value your health take it to avoid sickness, as it will at all times and under all circumstances keep all the vital functions up to par.

We also guarantee a cure and beneficial effect for each of the foregoing diseases, also that every case of Liver and Kidney trouble can be cured where degeneration has not taken place, and even then Benefit will Surely be Derived. In every instance it has established its claim.

As a blood purifier, particularly in the spring, it is unequalled, for you cannot have pure blood when the kidneys or liver are out of order.

Look to your condition at once. Do not postpone treatment for a day nor an hour. The doctors cannot compare records with us. Give yourself thorough constitutional treatment with Warner's Safe Cure, and there are yet many years of life and health assured you!

Encampment of the I. O. O. F. of Minnesota.

The annual encampment of the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held in St. Paul, a few days ago, nearly all the officers being present. Every encampment in the state was also represented, except Northfield, Sauk Center, Stillwater and Faribault.

W. K. Read, grand patriarch, made his annual report, of which the following is an outline: During the year one new encampment, No. 29, Austin, has been instituted, with twelve charter members. The encampment now has twenty-seven members in good standing. During the year dispensations were granted to St. Paul Encampment No. 15, Union No. 14, and Shiller No. 5 of Minneapolis to establish degrees of Patriarchs Militant.

E. A. Stevens, grand representative, presented his report of the session of the sovereign grand lodge. The official reports as there presented, showed the gains for the year 1884 to be one grand and twenty-eight subordinate encampments and 3,405 members; the totals being 44 grand encampments, 1,984 subordinate encampments, with a total membership of 94,257. The expenditures for relief aggregated $2,119,926.86.

J. Fletcher Williams, grand scribe, made his annual report, which showed a membership of 1,057 in the state.

St. Paul was selected as the next place of meeting, the time being fixed for the third Wednesday in February. The following officers were then elected and installed: Grand patriarch, W. W. Hartley, Brainerd; grand high priest, W. H. Wells, Montevideo; grand senior warden, J. G. Paschke, Winnebago City; grand scribe and treasurer, J. F. Williams, St. Paul; grand junior warden, D. Patterson, Rochester; grand representative (two years), Ed A. Stevens, Minneapolis; grand representative (one year), Rev. J. Marvin, St. Paul. The encampment then adjourned.

"Oh, Henry! you must send for the doctor at once. I believe I am getting the dropsy. Now don't delay a moment." Mr. De Blank—"Why, what put that idea into your head?" "Dear me! Will you never be satisfied that what I say is true? I got weiged to-day, and oh, it's awful, I weighed 300 pounds." "Awful! Where did you get weighed?" "Around at your coal yard." "Calm yourself, my dear. Your weight is exactly 150 pounds."—Montreal Witness.

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY

OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. Walter A. Taylor, Atlanta, Ga.

S.S.S.

Scrofula of Lungs.

I am now 43 years old, and have suffered for the last fifteen years with a lung trouble. I have spent thousands of dollars to arrest the march of this disease; but temporary relief was all that I obtained. I was unfit for any manual labor for several years. A friend strongly recommended the use of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), claiming that he himself had been greatly benefited by its use in some lung troubles. I resolved to try it. The results are remarkable. My cough has left me, my strength has returned, and I weigh sixty pounds more than I ever did in my life. It has been three years since I stopped the use of the medicine, but I have had no return of the disease, and there are no pains or weakness felt in my lungs. I do the hardest kind of mechanical work, and feel as well as I ever felt since I was a boy. These I know are wonderful statements to make, but I am honest when I say that I owe my existence and health to-day to S. S. S. I would be recreant to the duty I owe to humanity if I failed to bear this cheerful testimony to the merits of this wonderful medicine.

Polk County Journal.

CROOKSTON, MINN., FEBRUARY 25

Dr. Henault and G. H. Palmer have made a good resolve. We are watching results.

Mr. D. H. Beecher came over from Park River last week to spend a few days in the city.

D. Buchanan went to Duluth last week. He will go for good soon. Our loss is Duluth's gain.

The weather for the past week has been various, with the majority in favor of fine, lovely weather.

Bert Em. Hall of Fertile, gave us a pleasant call last Saturday while in the city on a visit from "Fair Fertile."

Rev. Mr. Watson has been laboring at the Baptist church every evening for over a week. Many hopeful conversions have resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. Braley welcomed a little daughter last week. It is said that it weighed three pounds and seems as satisfied as though it weighed a ton.

P. J. McGuire has sold a tract of 480 acres of land in Lambert to two stockmen who intend to start a big stock ranch next spring. Mac gets $5.50 per acre.

Col. Cobham Rost will remove to land office hall, which with the Sons of Veterans, they have rented. It will be an improvement on their present headquarters.

Jud Carruth beat Bromley in the five mile race at Minneapolis on Tuesday evening, by a quarter lap. Time 17 minutes and 53 seconds, said to be the best time ever made in Minneapolis.

There will be a grand masquerade ball at the opera house, on the evening of March 9th, to which all are invited. F. E. Hurtz, at W. B. Main & Co's is prepared to supply masks to all who desire.

Mrs. G. W. Lewis, who went to Chicago to see her daughter, Mrs. A. Allen, who was very sick, returned last week, bringing Mrs. Allen with her. Mrs. A. is far from well yet, but it is hoped and thought that she will recover in time.

Terry & Collins will have another auction at their sale stables on Saturday next, commencing at one o'clock. Horses, cows, and farming implements are on deck to go for, what they will bring. Time on good paper will be given. Go and secure one of the many bargains offered.

Sheriff Zwickey has received notice that Friday, April 23rd has been appointed by the governor for Hutchinson's execution. It is thought that a commutation may be granted in the case at the latest moment. The sheriff has not decided whether to make the execution public or private.

Dr. Tooly, while in the army, was a "doughboy." There can be no doubt about this, and the visions of soft cosy chairs that he used to sit in (in his mind) have borne fruit and the result is a handsome cosy chair, made from a barrel. You can see it at Fontaine & Anglim's.

Rev. O. H. Elmer, whom the Presbyterians have secured is one of the most popular ministers on the Northern Pacific. He has been at Moorhead for many years, and we heartily congratulate the Presbyterian society on their good fortune in securing him. They have drawn a prize.

The euchre party at the residence of Wm. Box, on Thursday evening was well attended and highly enjoyed. Charlie Chiniquy is now prepared, to join the toboggan club, having won the first prize, a neat little toboggan. Mrs. Wile took first ladies' prize a useful article highly adorned. Mrs. M. R. Brown took the second ladies' prize and Hank Lewis proudly carried off the second gentlemens' prize.

Elsewhere will be found the county financial statement which speaks volumes for the efficiency of the Auditor's office. There were 81 pages of closely written legal cap, involving a vast amount of work, plainly shown by eighteen columns of solid nonpareil, requiring a vast amount of time and careful painstaking to get correct. This is the largest and most complete statement of any county in the State and is a living monument to McGuire's worth as an auditor.

Ed. Wile gives us a graphic description of his recent trip to the pine woods. He says the boys in the lumber camps are enjoying good health and are getting in a large harvest of logs. He says in reference to the reported "uneasiness" among the Indians that there is little to wonder at, if they are uneasy, most any body would be in like circumstances, but thinks the "uneasiness" would be cured by a free use of bug poison, externally applied. Their uneasiness is more attributed to the "lively" conditions of their blankets and persons and thus causes them often to "go on the warpath," especially when the weather is warm enough for them to get along while they are looking their clothing over. Their condition is truly pitiable however, is why Ed. says they don't have any skating rinks—he did not see a bald head in the crowd—nor do they have any progressive euchre parties, poor things. He thinks under the circumstances, they may live till spring, however, but the government ought to at once provide [illegible]

Wheat has an upward tendency, and it looks now as if the early expected rise is about to happen. No change in this market yet.

Tea 20 cents—Ice cream and cake 15 cents—This charge merely paying the noblemen aforesaid, for wear and tear of their exquisite Japanese voices.

Charlie Davis has bought Jim Creighton's dray business and is on deck to haul everything that needs hauling. Charley is a rustler.

Pete Cornelius drove his fine 21 months old mare colt in town with his four year old on Wednesday, the first time the colt ever had a harness on. It is a Clyde and Norman, gentle as a lamb and as big as an elephant. With care that will make a fine team.

The C. O. D. store gets the contract of furnishing the dry goods for Walker's drive in the spring, in competition with Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago houses. Mr. Wile has telegraphed Mr. Rosenthal to bring along the goods. On a deal of this kind, the boys don't intend to be left and they are wide-awake enough to get to the front every time. They well deserve the success they have attained.

We have to beg our readers' forbearance this week. The immense amount of work necessary to get the financial statement in type and printed, and an unexpected rush of other work has kept our office force on the jump day and night, and encroaches upon our reading matter, rather more than usual. However we trust that our readers will rejoice with us in our little boom and we will try and make ample provisions for all future booms that may come.

The Japanese make everybody feel at home. For convenience they will recieve at the Episcopal Rectory, "rather than hire a hall." But all are invited to tea on Wednesday evening, March 3rd.

EIKEN—On Saturday, Feb. 20th, 1885, born to the wife of James Eiken, a son. [Continued next week.]

CHAP. II. (concluded.)

EIKEN—On Monday, Feb. 22nd, 1886, born to the wife of James Eiken, a son. [The end.]

James Eiken's twins are bouncers. The mother is doing well, but James has not got out yet. He don't propose to get scared by the big Indians, though they should go on the war path, but has taken the precaution to raise a fine infantry company for defense.

Glyndon News, Feb. 18:

Next Sunday Rev. O. H. Elmer will preach his farewell sermon at the Presbyterian church, he having accepted a call from Crookston, where he will soon move. Mr. Elmer has been in Moorhead since 1872, being the first minister to hold services. For awhile passenger coaches, unfinished stores and hotel dining rooms were his church. Mr. Elmer has many friends in Moorhead who will be sorry to see him go.

Suspend'er Tobacco.

That is not a punning invitation to quit chawing, but is the name of a new brand of tobacco that Houston & Ross offer. You pay 65 cents for a pound of it and in place of the usual chromo, you get a pair of suspenders, worth 50 cents or so. This is intended to introduce the suspenders in polite society and not to suspend the introducers, as some imagine.

MORTGAGE SALE

(First publication February 25th, 1886.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Cenat Brouillet and Louise, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 28th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota on the 24th day of December A. D. 1880, at 12 o'clock m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 13, 14 and 15, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and ninety-eight ($498) dollars and the further sum of $37.02 paid for taxes on the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the tenth day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and taxes with interest thereon as aforesaid and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section nineteen (19) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west, of the 5th principal meridian, containing 158 acres.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now preparing these supplemental historical papers. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, engraved at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a Magnificent PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS, will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important acquisition to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming; in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

WALNUTINE,
BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY, FOR THE HAIR.

WALNUTINE is prepared from the Extract of Black Walnut Hulls and Mexican Soap Root with Vaseline and other ingredients (agreeably perfumed). In the Walnut Hulls we get the Coloring and Astringent matter. In the Vaseline we get the Softening and Dressing qualities. In the Mexican Soap Root we get the Cleansing and Stimulating effects at the roots of the hair. It is not a Dye! [We do not use Nitrate of Silver.] We invite Ladies and Gentlemen—OLD or YOUNG, BALD or GRAY—to use WALNUTINE, knowing that its effect will cause you to recommend it to others who desire to produce a healthy growth of dark or brown hair. It will gradually change and restore Gray hair to its natural color, without discoloring the skin. It also removes Scaly Humors and Dandruff and prevents the hair from falling off. We recommend the disuse of ALL OLD REMEDIES and a trial of this NEW DISCOVERY. It is unquestionably the Best Hair Restorative, Tonic and Dressing EVER MADE!! It is sold by all Druggists at 25 per cent. less than the old $1.00 price—our price being 75 cents per bottle, LARGE SIZE.

CAUTION!! Don't be induced to take any other article—insist on having WALNUTINE! BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY when you call for it. J. R. BOND & CO., Chicago, Proprietors. The Trade supplied by all WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

CROOKSTON, MINN., FEBRUARY 25

[illegible] Hennell and G. H. Palmer have [illegible] good [illegible]. We are watching [illegible].

[illegible] D. H. Beecher came over from [illegible] River last week to spend a few days in the city.

[illegible] D. Buchanan went to Duluth last week. He will go for good soon. Our loss Duluth's gain.

The weather for the past week has been various with the majority in favor of lovely weather.

Herr [illegible] Hall of Fertile gave us a pleasant call last Saturday while in the city on a visit from "East Fertile."

Rev. Mr. Watson has been laboring at the Baptist church every evening for over a week. Many hopeful conversions have resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. Braby welcomed a little daughter last week. It [illegible] weighed three pounds and seems as though it weighed a ton.

F. J. McGuire has sold a tract of 480 acres of land in Lambert to two stockmen who intend to start a big stock [illegible] next spring. Mac gets $3.50 per [illegible].

[illegible] Cobham Post will remove to [illegible] Hall, which with the Sons of Veterans, they have rented. It will be an improvement on their present headquarters.

Jud Carruth beat Bromley in the five mile race at Minneapolis on Tuesday evening by a quarter lap. Time 17 minutes and 58 seconds, said to be the best time ever made in Minneapolis.

There will be a grand masquerade ball at the opera house on the evening of March 9th, to which all are invited.

F. Hurtz at W. B. Main & Co's is prepared to supply [illegible] to all who [illegible].

Mrs. G. W. Lewis, who went to Chicago to see her daughter, Mrs. A. Allen, who was very sick, returned last week, bringing Mrs. Allen with her. Mrs. A. is far from well yet, but it is hoped and thought that she will recover in time.

Terry & Collins will have another auction at their sale stables on Saturday next, commencing at one o'clock. Horses, cows and farming implements are on deck to go for what they will bring. Time on good paper will be given. Go and secure one of the many bargains offered.

Sheriff Zwickey has received notice that Friday, April 23rd, has been appointed by the governor for Hutchinson's execution. It is thought that a commutation may be granted in the case at the last moment. The sheriff has not decided whether to make the execution public or private.

Dr. Tooly, while in the army, was a "doughboy." There can be no doubt about this, and the visions of soft, cosy [illegible] he used to sit in (in his mind) have borne fruit and the result is a handsome cosy chair, made from a barrel. You can see it at Fontaine & Anglim's.

Rev. O. H. Elmer, whom the Presbyterians have secured, is one of the most popular ministers on the Northern Pacific. He has been at Moorhead for many years, and we heartily congratulate the Presbyterian society on their good fortune in securing him. They have a prize.

The euchre party at the residence of [illegible] on Thursday evening was well attended and highly enjoyed. Charlie Chiniquy is now prepared to join the toboggan club, having won the first prize, a neat little toboggan. Mrs. Wile took first ladies' prize, a beautiful article highly admired. Mrs. M. [illegible] Brown took the second ladies' prize and Hank [illegible] proudly carried off the second gentleman's prize.

Elsewhere will be found the county financial statement, which speaks well [illegible] for the efficiency of the Auditor's office. There were 51 pages of closely written [illegible] involving a vast amount of work, [illegible] eight columns of solid nonpareil, requiring a vast amount of time and care [illegible] correct. This is the [illegible] complete statement [illegible] county in the state and is a living monument to McGuire's worth as an auditor.

[illegible]

Wheat has an upward tendency and it looks now as if the early expected rise is about to happen. No change in the market yet.

Tea 20 cents—Ice cream and cake 15 cents—This charge merely paying the noblemen aforesaid for wear and tear of their exquisite Japanese voices.

Charlie Davis has bought Jim Creighton's dray business and is on deck to haul everything that needs hauling. Charley is a rustler.

Pete Cornelius drove his fine 21 months old mare colt in town with his four year old on Wednesday, the first time the colt ever had a harness on. It is a Clyde and Norman, gentle as a lamb and as big as an elephant. With care they will make a fine team.

The O. C. D. store gets the contract of furnishing the dry goods for Walker's drive in the spring in competition with Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago houses. Mr. Wile has telegraphed Mr. Rosenthal to bring along the goods. On a deal of this kind the boys don't intend to be left and they are wide awake enough to get to the front every time. They well deserve the success they have attained.

We have to beg our readers forbearance this week. The immense amount of work necessary to get the financial statement in type and printed, and an unexpected rush of other work has kept our office force on the jump day and night, and encroaches upon our reading matter rather more than usual. However, we trust that our readers will rejoice with us in our little boom and we will try and make ample provisions for all future booms that may come.

The Japanese make everybody feel at home. For convenience they will receive at the Episcopal Rectory, rather than hall. But all are invited to tea on Wednesday evening, March 3rd.

A Romance in Two Chapters.

CHAP. I.

EIKEN—On Saturday, Feb. 20th, 1886, born to the wife of James Eiken, a son. [Continued next week.]

CHAP. II. (Concluded.)

EIKEN—On Monday, Feb. 22nd, 1886, born to the wife of James Eiken, a son. [The end.]

James Eiken's twins are bouncers. The mother is doing well, but James has not got out yet. He don't propose to get scared by the big Indians, though they should go on the war path, but has taken the precaution to raise a fine infantry company for defense.

Glyndon News: Next Sunday Rev. O. H. Elmer will preach his farewell sermon at the Presbyterian church, he having accepted a call from Crookston, where he will remove. Mr. Elmer has been in Moorhead since 1872, being the first minister to hold services. For a while passenger coaches, unfinished stores and hotel dining rooms were his church. Mr. Elmer has many friends in Moorhead who will be sorry to see him go.

Suspenders or Tobacco.

That is not a punning invitation to quit chewing, but is the name of a new brand of tobacco that Houston & Ross offer. You pay 80 cents for a pound of it and in place of the usual chromo you get a pair of suspenders, worth 50 cents or so. This is intended to introduce the suspenders in politics, good by and not to suspend the introducers, as some imagine.

To the Citizens of the Town of Lowell.

and at least a moderate competence, come to those who follow the teachings of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. This world-renowned periodical, in addition to its other great features, has now employed the LEADING AMERICAN WRITERS to describe THE RURAL LIVES OF OUR AMERICAN PRESIDENTS, nearly all of whom were reared on farms, or retired to them from active life. DONALD G. MITCHELL, (IKE MARVEL) R. H. STODDARD, JAMES PARTON, JULIAN HAWTHORNE, DR. LYMAN ABBOTT, and others equally eminent, are now preparing these supplemental HISTORICAL PAPERS. They are to be accompanied with ENGRAVINGS, 12x18 inches in size, executed at large expense by our first artists, illustrating the Rural Homes and Surroundings of our Farmer Presidents, comprising a MAGNIFICENT PORTFOLIO collection for every house, rich and poor alike. These SPECIAL PAPERS and SPECIAL ENGRAVINGS will be of absorbing interest to all interested in country life, and likewise constitute an important ACQUISITION to the historical knowledge of the country.

R. H. Stoddard writes: "I am sure they will be popular in a literary sense, and equally sure they will be of great value to the boys of this country, who have a right to look forward to becoming our future rulers." Donald G. Mitchell: "I write about Washington's farming, in respect to which I have some copies of unpublished letters." Lyman Abbott: "It is an admirable design, showing the close connection of our Farmer Presidents with the soil." Julian Hawthorne: "An attractive scheme. I shall be glad to have a hand in it." James Parton: "One of my articles will be ready in three weeks."

Every subscriber to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 is entitled to these descriptions and engravings of the Rural Lives of our Presidents, forwarded without additional cost with the numbers of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, as they appear; or specially executed on heavy, highly finished paper, and forwarded with the additional trifling cost for packing and postage. Single Subscription, $1.50; Ten Subscriptions, $1 each.

WALNUTINE
BOND'S
NEW
HAIR.

WALNUTINE is prepared from the Extract of Black Walnut Hulls and Mexican Soap Root with Vaseline and other ingredients (agreeably perfumed). In the Walnut Hulls we get the Coloring and Astringent matter. In the Vaseline we get the Softening and Dressing qualities. In the Mexican Soap Root we get the Cleansing and Stimulating effects at the roots of the hair. It is not a Dye! (We do not use Nitrate of Silver.) We invite Ladies and Gentlemen—OLD or YOUNG, BALD or GRAY—to use WALNUTINE, knowing that its effect will cause you to recommend it to others who desire to produce a healthy growth of dark or brown hair. It will gradually change and restore Gray hair to its natural color, without discoloring the skin. It also removes Scaly Humors and Dandruff and prevents the hair from falling off. We recommend the disuse of ALL OLD REMEDIES and a trial of this NEW DISCOVERY. It is unquestionably the Best Hair Restorative, Tonic and Dressing EVER MADE!! It is sold by all Druggists at 25 per cent. less than the old $1.00 price—our price being 75 cents per bottle, LARGE SIZE. CAUTION!! Don't be induced to take any other article—insist on having WALNUTINE! BOND'S NEW DISCOVERY, when you call for it. J. H. BOND & CO., Chicago, Proprietors. CROOKSTON, MINN., FEBRUARY 25

Crossing Jerseys with Holsteins.

Every attempt to blend the butter and milk producing breeds into a single type has been met with difficulty. The thoroughbred, when crossed on the mongrel, has the advantage in its favor, of having been bred for a special use, which dominates as a leading characteristic, and which is generally transmitted to its offspring is produced by union with common stock it will partake of the qualities of the thoroughbred parent, for the reason that the thoroughbred parent possesses no uniform inherent qualities. Hence the blood of the thoroughbred will always be potential in such cases, as it is capable of asserting its superiorty. But crossing two breeds, both thoroughbred is a different matter, for each will endeavor to gain the supremacy, and no advantage rests with either. Hence when the Jerseys and Holsteins are crossed, the qualities of both are impaired. It becomes a struggle between distinct breeds, and the only advantage to be gained will be according to the vigor of either individual.

Cross the Jersey on the mongrel, and the butter producing characteristic meets with no obstacle, the result being an improvement on the mongrel. The offspring of the union being an excellent butter-producing animal. Cross the Holstein on the mongrel and the offspring shows its superiorty at the pail. But the union of the two breeds cannot result so favorably. The gain in one direction is at the expense of loss in another. Though a cow so bred may give more milk than a pure bred Jersey she may not yield so largely of butter (unless from a butter strain of Holsteins) and the produce is thus an inferior animal to her parents. The crossing of Jerseys and Holsteins has not been made very extensively, but for years the attempt has been made to produce superior cows by crossing the Jerseys and Ayrshires, but we know of none who adhered to such methods of breeding. The Ayrshires, Holsteins and Jerseys are distinct breeds, of fixed and inherent characteristics, and their purposes are entirely different. To cross two pure breds, which vary so strongly, is to achieve barren results, but to use them for improving common stock, will always give satisfactory results as a natural consequence. Hence the individual making the cross of superior on common stock gets desired and superior results always. In the west with its flush pastures the Holsteins has rapidly grown in favor, for reason that the cross on the native stock is not so violent. The native mixed cows of the west have size, and as a rule are fair milkers. The Holsteins are large, quiet and great milkers, and the milk is of uniform quality. Hence their value in the west, and the great strides they are making, where plenty of milk and plenty of beef is a necessity, when bred upon the ordinary cows of the farm.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, on the 24th day of June 1885 at the City of Crookston, of Polk County, Minnesota, one P. J. Lachapelle and one N. D. Eudson the said P. J. Lachapelle being then and there the owner, as mortgagee, by virtue of a chattel mortgage, and the said N. D. Eudson being in legal possession of a certain hack, did request Euclid and Angus Munn, co-partners under the firm name of Munn Bro's, to make and perform certain repairs on said hack. And whereas, the said Munn Bro's pursuant to said request did do, make and perform repairs on said hack of the just and reasonable worth and value of fifty dollars and the said Munn Bro's claim a lien on said hack to the amount of $50 the value of said repairs and still hold and retain possession of said hack since the making of said repairs. And whereas, more than three months have elapsed since the making of said repairs upon said hack and the said $50 has not been paid or any part thereof, although the sum has been heretofore duly demanded of the said P. J. Lachapelle and the said N. D. Eudson. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, the said Munn Bro's, will, on the 5th day of March 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the front door of Munn Bro's carriage works on the corner of Third Street and Broadway, in said City of Crookston, expose said hack for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the said lien, and the costs of such sale.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 506. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 57-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100,) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100,) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication January 28th 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Thorval Brauvn, mortgagor, to N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, dated the 25th day of January, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 26th day of January, A. D. 1883, at 10:30 o'clock a. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 122 to 124, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the amount of four hundred and twenty-four dollars and twenty-five cents ($424.25) and the amount of sixty-four dollars and thirty-four cents ($64.34) advanced for taxes, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and by and under the authority in said mortgage contained the said N. H. Galusha, mortgagee, elects to and does declare and claim that the whole sum secured by said mortgage, and now unpaid, is due and payable.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 2d day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, by the Sheriff of said county, or his deputy duly appointed, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale and twenty-five dollars ($25) attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the east half (e½) of the southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section nine, (9) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-four (44) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the United States Government survey thereof.

Crossing Jerseys with Holsteins.

Every attempt to blend the butter and milk producing breeds into a single type has been met with difficulty. The thoroughbred, when crossed on the mongrel, has the advantage in its favor of having been bred for a special use, which dominates as a leading characteristic, and, which is generally transmitted to its offspring is produced by union with common stock it will partake of the qualities of the thoroughbred parent, for the reason that the thoroughbred parent possesses no uniform inherent qualities. Hence the blood of the thoroughbred will always be potential in such cases, as it is capable of asserting its superiority. But crossing two breeds, both thoroughbred is a different matter, for each will endeavor to gain the supremacy, and no advantage rests with either. Hence when the Jerseys and Holsteins are crossed, the qualities of both are impaired. It becomes a struggle between distinct breeds, and the only advantage to be gained will be according to the vigor of either individual.

Cross the Jersey on the mongrel, and the butter producing characteristic meets with no obstacle, the result being an improvement on the mongrel. The offspring of the union being an excellent butter-producing animal. Cross the Holstein on the mongrel and the offspring shows its superiority at the pail. But the union of the two breeds cannot result so favorably. The gain in one direction is at the expense of loss in another. Though a cow so bred may give more milk than a pure bred Jersey she may not yield so largely of butter (unless from a butter strain of Holsteins) and the produce is thus an inferior animal to her parents. The crossing of Jerseys and Holsteins has not been made very extensively, but for years the attempt has been made to produce superior cows by crossing the Jerseys and Ayrshires, but we know of none who adhered to such methods of breeding. The Ayrshires, Holsteins and Jerseys are distinct breeds, of fixed and inherent characteristics, and their purposes are entirely different. To cross two pure breds, which vary so strongly, is to achieve barren results, but to use them for improving common stock, will always give satisfactory results as a natural consequence. Hence the individual making the cross of superior on common stock gets desired and superior results always. In the west, with its flush pastures, the Holsteins has rapidly grown in favor, for reason that the cross on the native stock is not so violent. The native mixed cows of the west have size, and as a rule are fair milkers. The Holsteins are large, quick and great milkers, and the milk is of uniform quality. Hence their value in the west, and the great strides they are making, where plenty of milk and plenty of beef is a necessity, when bred upon the ordinary cows of the farm.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of forty dollars interest which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Billine Labelle, to Mary P. Mixer, bearing date the 14th day of April A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 14th day of April A. D. 1882, at 3:15 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 20 and 21, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The southwest quarter of section number twenty-four (24) in Township number one hundred and fifty one (151) north, of Range forty six (46) west, according to the Government survey, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 27th day of March A. MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of four hundred and four 44-100 dollars ($404.44-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Charles Krieger and Mary J. Krieger, to Mary P. Mixer, bearing date the 19th day of May A. D. 1882, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 23d day of May A. D. 1882, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 46, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: The west half of the southwest quarter, and lots numbered three (3) and four (4) of Section numbered nine (9) in Township numbered one hundred and fifty four (154) north of Range numbered forty three (43) west, according to United States Government survey, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 27th day of March A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since, duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page 505. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes lawfully assessed on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee, paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 67-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100) mortgage debt, and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20), in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston, and also lots four (4) and eight (8), in block thirty-three (33) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1) in block two (2) in Clements first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2) and three (3) in Section thirty-two (32) Township one hundred fifty-two (152) Range forty-three (43) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31) Township one hundred fifty two (152) Range forty three (43) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due; said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative. Now therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday, the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m. to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication February 11th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of six hundred and twenty-nine and 18-100 dollars ($629.18-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Carl Kretschmar, mortgagor, to William Massolt, mortgagee, bearing date the twenty-first day of August A. D. 1881, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 10th day of September A. D. 1881, at 2:15 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 511, and conveying and mortgaging the following described premises lying and being in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, to-wit: The southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the north half of the southeast quarter, and the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of Section numbered three (3), in Township numbered one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range numbered forty-four (44) according to the United States Government survey, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises hereinbefore described and covered by said mortgage, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 3d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10:30 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Celery.

Western Rural: Celery is a familiar plant to all of us, but is not grown by all of us, many having no knowledge of its cultivation. It is thought by some that it requires so much work that they connot afford to attempt its cultivation. The modern ways of growing celery are much simpler than the old ways. As soon as the ground is fit to work in the spring sow the seed on a rich, level piece of soil, thoroughly pulverized and well mixed with fine stable manure. Mark the bed out in rows eight inches apart and sow the seed at the rate of about an ounce to every 20 feet. Pat the bed down after sowing, with a spade, or roll it you have a roller. Keep the weeds out from the very beginning. Cut off the tops as the plants grow, say twice before setting them out, which may be done from the middle of June to the middle of August, July, perhaps, being the best time. Prepare the ground well and set in rows three feet apart and six inches apart in the row. Firm the soil around the roots, especially if the weather is dry at time of setting out. If everybody would learn to press the soil firmly around all plants when setting them it would be of great benefit. Six or seven weeks after planting, the weeds being kept down in the meantime, begin to earth up. Draw the soil close up to the plant with a hoe, and still closer around the plant with the hand, leaving it firm enough to keep the plant from spreading. The soil must be drawn up or thrown up with the hoe, plow, or spad, clear to the top of the plant. This is the blanching process. Without intending to do more than give sufficient hints in these notes to enable one to make a beginning, we have said enough about the cultivation of celery to do that and to show that it is not a complicated matter.

Early Radishes and Beets.

Correspondence New York Tribune: Perhaps no other garden crop is more profitable, according to the expense than beets and radishes, if early; none have so few enemies, especially the beet. These can be raised and marketed as a catch crop, if within one or two miles of a small town. I usually tie up 10 turnip radishes in a bunch, long scarlet, five in a bunch, and sell for 5 cents the bunch. So soon as they are an inch in diameter I put them on the market. A bright, industrious boy can sell $2 worth every morning, and not take more than two hours time. Where one is scarce of ground I find it well to throw furrows together, four feet wide of the best soil I have. I prefer loamy soil. This bed is dressed with well rotted manure and worked quite mellow. Then rake level, and cover with hen manure, and mix this well with the soil. Now rake level again and line off 10 inches between lines and sow in beets and radishes in alternate lines. As soon as the plants are up sprinkle ashes thickly over the bed. The plants are worked once or twice with a narrow hoe. Treated in this way the radishes are sold off before the beets will need more room.

As soon as the beets have bottoms two inches in diameter I put them on market, three tied in a bunch, sell readily for 5 cents. In drawing the first for sale thin the rows, thus giving more room for the crop. When one has plenty of land I prefer to break the soil and work mellow, mark off four rows two and one-half feet apart and fill these with well rotted manure, cover this with soil and top dress with hen manure, and mix this with the soil, line and sow in single rows on these furrows. This gives more room to work the crop, and frequent working hastens growth. After the plants are up sprinkle ashes thickly on the row. As soon as the radishes are an inch in diameter pull and sell; likewise with beets when two inches through. My favorite variety for early market is Henderson's early dark scarlet turnip radish. This leads for earliness, abundance and beauty. Tie in bunches and place them in a basket top down; their inviting appearance will sell them. The true early Egyptian turnip has no equal among beets for earliness and good flavor; quite handsome.

Raspberries.

New York Tribune: [illegible]

be always present along the surface of the rows, so that each rain may carry to the roots the disintegrated particles. Although not essential that this fruit receive partial shade, yet most excellent crops have been grown in shady locations.

The Silk Worm Humbug.

Farmer and Dairyman: There appears to be a great deal of humbug mixed up with the idea of silk culture. The flaming advertisements and paid articles in the newspapers are very delusive. We know of two young ladies who had business capacity enough to probe the matter to the bottom and found there was no profit in it in any form yet presented.

The Dairy.

WHITE SPECKS IN BUTTER.

About this time of the year, says a correspondent of the Manchester Mirror, some dairymen complain of white specks in the cream. An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure, inasmuch as experiments have shown that the formation of white specks can be prevented. A man in our town bought a patent right for straining the specks out of cream, but it was a dead loss, for observing dairymen have ascertained these specks are caused by a current of warm air passing over the surface of the cream while raising, and experts declare they can produce them—the specks—at pleasure. They are particles of dried cream for the most part, as can easily be seen by taking a portion and straining them, when they will soon form into butter. I have tried the experiment repeatedly with this result invariably. In the process of churning these specks have no affinity for and will not dissolve or unite with the butter as it comes in the churn. They may be mostly removed from the butter by repeated washings in water before and after the butter is removed from the churn. But it is better to prevent the formation of these specks by setting the milk where it will not be subject to the currents of air as above described; this being done, the machine referred to will not be needed.

Bulletin No. 8, of the Wisconsin Experimental Station, gives the details of a course of experiments with corn meal and oil meal for feeding cows for milk. There was apparently a slight gain in the milk when oil meal was fed, but there were so many contingencies that Prof. Annesby in his conclusion says that neither these experiments nor those of the previous year show with certainty that oil meal has any greater feeding value than corn meal, but if the apparent gain under oil meal feeding be accepted as real, the cost of food was about 4 cents less per hundred pounds of milk when oil meal was fed.

Stockman: The best cow for the farm must be large and a good breeder, and then the larger quantity of rich milk she can be got to yield the better; but there is no use in milking a cow unless she has some merit as a milker and a butter maker. There are plenty of such cows to be had which will raise just as good calves as those which will not give enough thin milk to raise her own calf.

Western Rural: We asked an extensive and fashionable grocer of this city a few days since what proportion of the product sold in Chicago as butter was butterine. He replied without hesitation: "Nine-tenths! Nine-tenths of the stuff sold for butter is not butter." We asked him if he sold it. He replied: "Not intentionally, but I presume I do, for it is impossible to tell it from butter unless one is an expert."

Minneapolis Tribune: The only certain indication of a profitable cow is to see that she gives a large mess of rich milk. All other points may fail, but this one is an infallible mark of a good cow.

The State of New Hampshire, through its legislature, has adopted a novel method of dealing with bogus butter. It compels those who manufacture and sell them to color them pink.

If your patrons desire yellow milk and butter, you can color them by feeding carrots to the cows.

The creameries in Madison County, Iowa, pay to the farmers from $150,000 to $160,000.

Young Fowls the Best.

Western Rural: [illegible]

will begin to lay at once, but old hens, that is those over 2 years of age, whether fat or lean, and young, half-grown pullets, will not be likely to lay till spring. It will not pay to keep them unless they may be needed as setters. As winter egg-layers they are most sure to prove unprofitable. We apply this advice to all kinds of fowls, regardless of breeds. There is a difference in the breeds, and what one might select as winter egg layer might not suit another. But, whether Leghorns, Brahmas, or Plymouth Rocks, or cross-bred fowls are kept, the hens that lay the eggs will be found to be those that are in their prime and vigorously healthy.

To Feed Oats to Hens.

New England Farmer: I never thought that I should invent anything, but I have made something to feed my hens oats in that I have never seen described, and think it may be new to some one. I give a description of it which will be very short. It is simply a nail keg with a hole sawed in the staves close to the bottom, two or three inches long and about one-half an inch high. Set this into a large milk pan and nail the pan to the bottom of the keg, fill the keg with oats, put on a cover and your hens will have oats by them all the time, and they will not waste them as they would if put into an open box.

Celery

is a familiar plant to all of us, but is not grown by all of us, many having no knowledge of its cultivation. It is thought by some that it requires so much work that they connot afford to attempt its cultivation. The modern ways of growing celery are much simpler than the old ways. As soon as the ground is fit to work in the spring sow the seed on a rich, level piece of soil, thoroughly pulverized and well mixed with fine stable manure. Mark the bed out in rows eight inches apart and sow the seed at the rate of about an ounce to every 20 feet. Pat the bed down after sowing, with a spade, or roll if you have a roller. Keep the weeds out from the very beginning. Cut off the tops as the plants grow, say twice, before setting them out, which may be done from the middle of June to the middle of August, July, perhaps, being the best time. Prepare the ground well and set in rows three feet apart and six inches apart in the row. Firm the soil around the roots, especially if the weather is dry at time of setting out. If everybody would learn to press the soil firmly around all plants when setting them it would be of great benefit. Six or seven weeks after planting, the weeds being kept down in the meantime, begin to earth up. Draw the soil close up to the plant with a hoe, and still closer around the plant with the hand, leaving it firm enough to keep the plant from spreading. The soil must be drawn up or thrown up with the hoe, plow, or spad, clear to the top of the plant. This is the blanching process. Without intending to do more than give sfficient hints in these notes to enable one to make a beginning, we have said enough about the cultivation of celery to do that and to show that it is not a complicated matter.

Early Radishes and Beets.

Correspondence New York Tribune:

Perhaps no other garden crop is more profitable according to the expense than beets and radishes, if early; none have so few enemies, especially the beet. These can be raised and marketed as a catch crop, if within one or two miles of a small town. I usually tie up 10 turnip radishes in a bunch; long scarlet, five in a bunch, and sell for 5 cents the bunch. So soon as they are an inch in diameter, I put them on the market. A bright, industrious boy can sell $2 worth every morning and not take more than two hours' time. Where one is scarce of ground I find it well th throw furrows together four feet wide of the best soil I have; I prefer loamy soil. This bed is dressed with well-rotted manure and worked quite mellow. Then rake level and cover with hen manure, and mix this well with the soil. Now rake level again and line off, 10 inches between lines, and sow in beets and radishes in alternate lines. As soon as the plants are up sprinkle ashes thickly over the bed. The plants are worked once or twice with a narrow hoe. Treated in this way the radishes are sold off before the beets will need more room.

As soon as the beets have bottoms two inches in diameter I put them on market; three tied in a bunch sell readily for 5 cents. In drawing the first for sale thin the rows, thus giving more room for the crop. When one has plenty of land I prefer to break the soil and work mellow; mark off four rows two and one-half feet apart and fill these with well rotted manure; cover this with soil and top dress with hen manure, and mix this with the soil; line and sow in single rows on these furrows. This gives more room to work the crop, and frequent working hastens growth. After the plants are up sprinkle ashes thickly on the row. As soon as the radishes are an inch in diameter thin and sell; likewise with beets when two inches through. My favorite varitiese for early market are Henderson's early dark scarlet turnip radish; this leads for earliness, tenderness and beauty. To tie in bunches and place them in a basket top down, their inviting appearance will sell them. The true early Egyptian turnip has no equal among beets for earlineess and good flavor; quite handsome.

Raspberries.

New York Tribune:

Canes of raspberries quickly wither when out of the soil a short time, unless frequently moistened. Furnished only with small, fibrous roots, they cannot stand long exposed. The raspberry is partial to a rather heavy, strong soil, and in such will always yield the best return. Owing to the nature of the root growth, the soil must be thoroughly mellowed and enriched, and early planting is greatly to be recommended. The red kinds will not endure deep planting, but the black caps are improved by it. Of all the small fruits none require more constant feeding to produce large firm fruit than the raspberry. This sustenance should [illegible] be always present along the surface of the rows, so that each rain may carry to the roots the disintegrated particles. Altqough not essential that this fruit receive partial shade, yet most excellent crops have been grown in shady locations.

The Silk Worm Humbug.

Farmer and Dairyman:

There appears to be a great deal of humbug mixed up with the idea of silk culture. The flaming advertisements and paid articles in the newspapers are very delusive. We know of two young ladies who had business capacity enough to probe the matter to the bottom and found there was no profit in it in any form yet presented.

The Dairy.

WHITE SPECKS IN BUTTER.

About this time of the year, says a correspondent of the Manchester Mirror, some dairymen complain of white specks in the cream. "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure," inasmuch as experiments have shown that the formation of white specks can be prevented. A man in our town bought a patent right for straining the specks out of cream, but it was a dead loss, for observing dairymen have ascertained these specks are caused by a current of warm air passing over the surface of the cream while raising, and experts declare they can produce them—the specks—at pleasure. They are particles of dried cream for the most part, as can easily be seen by taking a portion and straining them, when they will soon form into butter. I have tried the experiment repeatedly, with this result invariably. In the process of churning these specks have no affinity for and will not dissolve or unite with the butter as it comes in the churn. They may be mostly removed from the butter by repeated washings in water before and after the butter is removed from the churn. But it is better to prevent the formation of these specks by setting the milk where it will not be subject to the currents of air as above described; this being done, the machine referred to will not be needed.

Bulletin No. 8, of the Wisconsin Experimental Station, gives the details of a course of experiments with corn meal and oil meal for feeding cows for milk. There was apparently a slight gain in the milk when oil meal was fed, but there were so many contingencies that Prof. Amesby in his conclusion says that neither these experiments nor those of the previous year show with certainty that oil meal has any greater feeding value than corn meal, but if the apparent gain under oil meal feeding be accepted as real, the cost of food was about 4 cents less per hundred pounds of milk when oil meal was fed.

Stockman: The best cow for the farm must be large and a good breeder, and then the larger quantity of rich milk she can be got to yield the better; but there is no use in milking a cow unless she has some merit as a milker and a butter maker. There are plenty of such cows to be had which will raise just as good calves as those which will not give enough thin milk to raise her own calf.

Western Rural: We asked an extensive and fashionable grocer of this city a few days since what proportion of the product sold in Chicago as butter was butterine. He replied, without hesitation, "Nine-tenths! Nine-tenths of the stuff sold for butter is not butter." We asked him if he sold it? He replied: "Not intentionally, but I presume I do, for it is impossible to tell it from butter unless one is an expert."—Minneapolis Tribune.

The only certain indication of a profitable cow is to see that she gives a large mess of rich milk. All other points may fail, but this one is an infallible mark of a good cow.

The State of New Hampshire, through its legislature, has adopted a novel method of dealing with bogus butters. It compels those who manufacture and sell them to color them pink.

If your patrons desire yellow milk and butter, you can color them by feeding carrots to the cows.

Three creameries in Madison County, Iowa, pay to the farmers from $125,000 to $150,000.

Young Fowls the Best.

Western Rural: The hens that lay eggs are young and healthy, and will lay in winter freely, if well taken care of. In most flocks one-fourth of the hens are non-producers. With a little watching the bright, young, likely to lay hens can be easily selected and the worthless ones marketed. Thus all the food is not wasted, and the force of egg layers solidified, as it were, and put into trim for active work. This is another of the secrets of winter egg laying—getting the hens that lay eggs and disposing of those that not only do not but will not until next summer. [illegible] of condemning hens that with proper care will begin to lay at once, but old hens, that is those over 2 years of age, whether fat or lean, and young, half-grown pullets, will not be likely to lay till spring. It will not pay to keep them unless they may be needed as setters. As winter egg-layers they are most sure to prove unprofitable. We apply this advice to all kinds of fowls, regardless of breeds. There is a difference in the breeds, and what one might select as winter egg-layer might not suit another. But whether Leghorns, Brahmas, or Plymouth Rocks, or cross-bred fowls are kept, the hens that lay the eggs will be found to be those that are in their prime and vigorously healthy.

To Feed Oats to Hens.

New England Farmer: I never thought that I should invent anything, but I have made something to feed my hens oats in that I have never seen described, and think it may be new to some one. I give a description of it which will be very short: It is simply a nail keg with a hole sawed in the staves close to the bottom, two or three inches long and about one-half an inch high. Set this into a large milk pan and nail the pan to the bottom of the keg; fill the keg with oats, put on a cover and your hens will have oats by them all the time, and they will not waste them as they would if put into an open box.

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication March 4th, 1886.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Eli Hunt and Hermenia, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 25th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 53 and 54, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of five hundred and forty-seven dollars ($547), besides the further sum of $15.31 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The west half (w½) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and the west half (w½) of the southeast quarter (se¼) of Section number twelve (12) in township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) in Range number forty-six (46) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and Mine Tiedemann, mortgagors, to The Beloit Savings Bank, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 322 and 323, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and 56-100 dollars, ($764.56-100,) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars, ($26-82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100.)

Col. Casey, engineer of the Washington monument, in regard to certain theories as to danger from settling or from tornadoes, expresses his unqualified conviction that the monument may fairly be expected to stand for all time.

The Illinois Central railroad is paying 8 per cent on old long-running bonds. They will soon fall due, and the road can now get money to redeem them at 3 per cent. The decrease in the rate of interest within a few years is one of the most remarkable features of the times.

Moody and Sankey are a revelation to New Orleans, and the effect they are having is remarkable. On Sunday they held seven services and addressed 10,000 different persons. Over 600 attended their inquiry meetings, of whom, the Times-Democrat says, "it is carefully estimated over 300 confessed Christ. Such an interest in religious exercises was never before seen in New Orleans."

A recent decision of the Supreme Court, upsetting a ruling of the Treasury Department, affects from one hundred and seventy-five thousand to two hundred thousand entries in the custom house. The appraiser of the port estimates at fifteen million dollars the amount of duties illegally collected on coverings under the ruling, which the Government is liable to refund.

The Chinese consul in New York, says that the consul general of San Francisco has sent out notices advising all Chinese men to leave for home. He suggests that measures of retaliation for the treatment of Chinese in this country will be adopted by his government, and hints that American merchants and missionaries may be driven out of China, where they are now protected and well treated.

Dr. Thomas Taylor, of the Agricultural Department, announced at a meeting of microscopists, that butter placed under a microscope showed round crystals marked by a plain cross, which could be found no where else. Now Prof. Weber, of the State University at Columbus, has discovered that the mixing of a little water and salt with the oleomargarine causes the bogus butter to develope under the microscope exactly such crystals as are found in the legitimate article. So that a person is not safe even if he carries a microscope with him to the hotels and restaurants.

The planters of Georgia are doing much to improve the system and quality of agriculture in that state by the stimulus of prize contests. Last season the prizes offered were for the largest yield of cotton and corn on five-acre plants, and the result of the competition was highly satisfactory and instructive. The best cotton yield was 1,545 pounds of lint cotton—three and a third bales—to the acre; and the lowest was 572 pounds, or a bale and a quarter to the acre. The best yield of corn was 116 1-2 bushels, and the lowest 81 bushels to the acre. This is a yield that the best farming in Illinois has rarely surpassed.

At press-club dinner in Providence, one of the speakers discussed newspaper art. He claimed that art had become an important factor in the newspapers; but unlike ancient Greek art, where the artist strove for a certain ideal or type, the type in modern newspaper art is already produced, and one type with variations may serve for a vast number of pictorial representations. A picture which to-day may represent Lydia Pinkham may to-morrow represent George Eliot. While the newspaper may get along very well with heads and architecture, it does not very often touch landscape nor marine views, although the attempt is made at times to indicate the position of various objects, such as an ash barrel, or give an outline view of the Genesta or Puritan.

Alfred Russell Wallace, a distinguished British economist, argues that one cause of the existing depression in England is the great increase in wealth and luxury. He asserts that between 1863 and 1872 the number of fortunes above a quarter of a million pounds in personal property was 162, and between 1873 and 1882 it was 208, showing an increase of more than 30 per cent. Fortunes between a quarter and half a million had increased 126 to 170 in number, those between half a million and a million from 25 to 27, and those above a million from ten to 18. It thus appears that the greatest fortunes increased most rapidly in number. Upon this showing Mr. Wallace claims a demonstration of his assertion that "the increase of wealth and luxury in recent times has been accompanied by, and has even been a direct cause of, the comparative impoverishment of the middle and lower classes, and has thus, by diminishing the consumption of the necessaries and ordinary comforts of life contributed to bring about the prevailing depression of trade."

CLEVELAND'S MESSAGE.

President Cleveland in a Message to the Senate Refuses to Give Up Certain Papers.

He Claims That They Are Confidential, and Says He Has Redeemed All Pledges.

THE MESSAGE.

The message is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States: Ever since the beginning of the present session of the senate the different heads of the departments attached to the executive branch of the government have been plied with various requests and demands from committees of the senate, from members of such committees, and at last from the senate itself, requiring the transmission of reasons for the suspension of certain officials during the recess of that body, or for the papers touching the conduct of such officials, or for all papers and documents relating to such suspensions, or for all documents and papers filed in such department in relation to the management and conduct of the offices held by such suspended officials. The different terms from time to time adopted in making these requests and demands, the order in which they succeeded each other, and the fact that when made by the senate the resolution for that purpose was passed in executive session, have led to a presumption, the correctness of which will, I suppose, be candidly admitted, that from first to last the information thus sought and the papers thus demanded were desired for use by the senate and its committees in considering the propriety of the suspensions referred to. Though these suspensions are my executive acts, based upon considerations addressed to me alone, and for which I am wholly responsible, I have had no invitation from the senate to state the position which I have felt constrained to assume in relation to the same, or to interpret for myself my acts and motives in the premises. In this condition of affairs I have forborne addressing the senate on the subject, lest I might be accused of thrusting myself unbidden upon the attention of that body. But the report of the committee of the judiciary of the senate, lately presented and published, which censures the attorney general of the United States for his refusal to transmit certain papers relating to a suspension from office, and which also, if I correctly interpret it, evinces a misapprehension of the position of the executive upon the question of such suspensions, will, I hope, justify this communication.

THE CASE OF DUSTIN.

The president refers to the resolution of the senate calling for the Dustin papers and the reply of the attorney general thereto, and says:

Upon this resolution and the answer thereto, the issue is thus stated by the committee on judiciary at the outset of the report: "The important question then, is whether it is within the constitutional competence of either house of congress to have access to the official papers and documents in the various public offices of the United States created by laws enacted by themselves." I do not suppose that the public offices of the United States are regulated or controlled in their relations to either house of Congress by the fact that they were "created by laws enacted by themselves." It must be that these instrumentalities were created for the benefit of the people, and to answer the general purposes of government under the constitution and the laws, and that they are unencumbered by any lien in favor of either branch of congress growing out of their construction, and unembarrassed by any obligation to the senate as the price of their creation. The complaint of the committee that access to official papers in the public office is denied the senate, is met by the statement that at no time has it been the disposition or the intention of the president or any officer in any department of the executive branch of the government to withhold from the senate official documents or papers filed in any of the public offices. While it is by no means conceded that the senate has the right in any case to review the act of the executive in removing or suspending a public officer upon official documents or otherwise, it is considered that documents and papers of that nature should, because they are official, be freely transmitted to the senate upon its demand, trusting the use of the same for proper and legitimate purposes to the good faith of that body; and though no such papers or documents have been specifically demanded in any of the numerous requests and demands made upon the departments, yet as often as they were found in the public offices they have been furnished in answer to such applications. The letter of the attorney general in response to the resolution of the senate in the particular case mentioned in the committee's report, was written at my suggestion and by my direction. There had been or documents filed in his department relating to the case within the period specified in the resolution. The letter was intended, by its description of the papers and documents remaining in the custody of the departments, to convey the idea that they were not official, and it was assumed that the resolution called for information, papers and documents of the same character as were required by the requests and demands which preceded it. Everything that had been written or done in behalf of the senate from the beginning pointed to a letter and papers of a private and unofficial nature as the objects of search, if they were to be found in the departments, and provided they had been presented to the executive with a view to their consideration upon the question of suspension from office. Against the transmission of such papers and documents I have interposed my advice and direction. This has not been done, as is suggested in the committee's report, upon the assumption on my part that the attorney general or any other head of a department "is the servant of the president, and is to give or withhold copies of documents in his office according to the will of the executive and not otherwise," but because I regard the papers and documents withheld and addressed to me, or intended for my use and action, purely unofficial and private, not infrequently confidential, and having reference to the performance of a duty exclusively mine. I consider them in no proper sense as upon the files of the department, but as deposited there for my convenience, remaining still completely under my control. I suppose if I desire to take them into my custody I might do so with entire propriety, and if I saw fit to destroy them no one could complain. The papers and documents that are now the objects of the senate's questions consist of letters of representations addressed to the executive or intended for his inspection. They are voluntarily written and presented by private citizens who are not in the least instigated thereto by any official invitation or at all subject to official control. While some of them are entitled to executive consideration, many of them are so irrelevant, or, in the light of other facts, so worthless, that they have in determining the question to which they are supposed to relate. Are these, simply because they are preserved, to be considered official documents and subject to the inspection of the senate. If not, who is to determine which belong to this class? Are the motives and purposes of the senate, as they are day by day developed, such as would be satisfied with my selection? Am I to submit to these at the risk of being charged with suspension of officers upon evidence which was not even considered? Are these papers to be regarded official because they have not only been presented but preserved in the public offices? The nature and character remain the same, whether they are kept in the executive mansion or deposited in the departments. There is no mysterious power of transmutation in departmental custody, nor is there magic in the undefined and sacred solemnity of department files. If the presence of these papers in the public offices is a stumbling-block in the way of the performance of senatorial duty, it can be easily removed. The papers and documents which have been described derive no official character from any constitutional, statutory or other requirement making them necessary to the performance of the official duty of the executive. It will not be denied, I suppose, that the president may suspend a public officer in the entire absence of any papers or documents to aid his official judgment and discretion; and I am quite prepared to avow that the cases are not few in which suspensions from office have depended more upon oral representations made to me by citizens of known good repute and by members of the house of representatives and senators of the United States than upon any letters and documents presented for my examination. I have not felt justified in suspecting the veracity, integrity and patriotism of the senators or ignoring their representatives because they were not in party affiliation with the majority of their associates; and I recall a few suspensions which bear the approval of individual members identified politically with the majority in the senate. While, therefore, I am constrained to

to the papers and documents described, so far as the right to the same is based upon the claim that they are in any view of the subject official, I am also led unequivocally to dispute the right of the senate, by the aid of any documents whatever, or in any way save through the judicial process of trial or impeachment, to review or reverse the act of the executive in the suspension during the recess of the senate of federal officials. I believe the power to remove or suspend such officials is vested in the president alone by the constitution, which in express terms provides that "the executive power shall be vested in the president of the United States of America," and that "he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." The senate belongs to the legislative branch of the government. When the constitution by express provision superadded to its legislative duties the right to advise and consent to appointments to office, and to sit as a court of impeachment, it conferred upon that body all the control and regulation of executive actions supposed to be necessary for the safety of the people, and this express and special grant of such extraordinary powers, not in any way related to or growing out of general senatorial duty, and in itself a departure from the general plan of our government, should be held, under a familiar maxim of construction, to exclude every other right of interference with executive functions. In the first congress which assembled after the adoption of the constitution, comprising many who aided in its preparation, legislative construction was given to that instrument, in which the independence of the executive in the matter of removals from office was fully sustained. I think it will be found that in the subsequent discussions of this question there was generally, if not at all times, a proposition pending in some way curtailing this power of the president by legislation, which furnishes evidence that to limit such power it was supposed to be necessary to supplement the constitution by such legislation. The first enactment of this description was passed under a stress of partisanship and political bitterness, which culminated in the president's impeachment. This law provided that the federal officers to which it applied could only be suspended during the recess of the senate, when shown by evidence satisfactory to the president to be guilty of misconduct in office or crime, or when incapable or disqualified to perform their duties, and that within twenty days after the next meeting of the senate it should be

THE DUTY OF THE PRESIDENT

"to report to the senate such suspensions, with the evidence and reasons for his action in the case." This statute, passed in 1867, when congress was overwhelmingly and bitterly opposed to the president, may be regarded as an indication that even then it was thought necessary by a congress determined upon the subjugation of the executive to legislate at will to furnish itself a law for that purpose, instead of attempting to reach the object intended by an invocation of any pretended constitutional right. The law which thus found its way to our statute book was plain in its terms, and its intent needed no avowal. If valid and now in operation, it would justify the present course of the senate, and command the obedience of the executive to its demand. It may, however, be remarked in passing, that, under this law the president had the privilege of presenting to the body which assumed to review his executive acts his reasons therefor, instead of being excluded from explanation or by papers found in the departments. Two years after the law of 1867 was passed, and within less than five weeks after the inauguration of a president in political accord with both branches of congress, the sections of the act regulating suspensions from office during the recess of the senate were entirely repealed, and in their place were substituted provisions which, instead of limiting the causes of suspensions to misconduct, crime, disability and disqualification, expressly permitted such suspension by the president "in his discretion," and completely abandoned the requirements obliging him to report to the senate "the evidence and reasons" for his action. With these modifications, and with all branches of the government in political harmony, and in the absence of partisan incentive to captious obstruction, the law as it was left by the amendment of 1869 was much less destructive to executive discretion; and yet the great general and patriotic citizen who, on the 4th day of March, 1869, assumed the duties of chief executive, and for whose freer administration of his high office the most hateful restraints of the law of 1867 were, on the 5th day of April, 1869, removed, mindful of his obligation to defend and protect every prerogative of his great trust, and apprehensive of the public service in the continued operation of these statutes, even in their modified form, in his first message to congress advised their repeal and set forth their unconstitutional character and hurtful tendencies. I am unable to state whether or not this recommendation for a repeal of these laws has been since repeated. If it has not, the reason can probably be found in the experience which demonstrated the fact that the necessities of the political situation but rarely developed their vicious character; and so it happens that after an existence of nearly twenty years of almost innocuous desuetude, these laws are brought forth, apparently the repealed as well as the unrepealed, and then put in the way of an executive who is willing, if permitted, to attempt an improvement in the methods of administration. The constitutionality of these laws is by no means admitted. But why should the provisions of the repealed law, which required specific cause for suspension and a report to the senate of "evidence and reason," be now in effect applied to the present executive, instead of the law afterward passed and unrepealed, which distinctly permits suspensions by the president "in his discretion," and carefully omits the requirement that "evidence and reasons for his action in the case" shall be reported to the senate? The requests and demands which by the score have for nearly three months been presented to the different departments of the government, whatever may be their form, have but one complexion. They assume the right of the senate to sit in judgment upon the exercise of my exclusive discretion and the executive function, for which I am solely responsible to the people, from whom I have so lately received the sacred trust of office. My oath to support and defend the constitution, my duty to the people, who have chosen me to execute the powers of this great office and not to relinquish them, and my duty to the chief magistracy, which I must preserve unimpaired in all its dignity and vigor, compel me to refuse to comply with these demands. To the end that the service may be improved, the senate is invited to the fullest scrutiny of the persons submitted to them for public office, in recognition of the constitutional power of that body to advise and consent to their appointment.

I WILL CONTINUE,

as I have thus far done, to furnish, at the request of the confirming body, all the information I possess touching the fitness of the nominees placed before them for their action, both when they are proposed to fill vacancies and to take the place of suspended officials. Upon a refusal to confirm, I shall not assume the right to ask the reasons for the action of the senate, nor question its determination. I cannot think that anything more is required to secure worthy incumbents in public office than a careful and independent discharge of our respective duties within their well-defined limits. Though the propriety of suspensions might be better assured if the action of the president was subject to review by the senate, yet if the constitution and the laws have placed this responsibility on the executive branch of the government it should not be disturbed, nor the discretion which it involved relinquished. It has been claimed that the present executive having pledged himself not to remove officials except for cause, the fact of their suspension implies such misconduct on the part of the suspended officer as injures his character and reputation, and therefore the senate should review the case for his vindication. I have said that certain officials should not, in my opinion, be removed during the continuance of the term for which they were appointed solely for the purpose of putting in their places those in political affiliation with the appointing power, and this declaration was immediately followed by a description of official partisanship which ought not to entitle those in whom it was exhibited to consideration. It is not apparent, however, whether the course thus announced carries with it the consequences described. If in any degree the suggestion is worthy of consideration, it is to be hoped that there may be a defense against unjust suspension in the justice of the executive.

THE PLEDGE WHICH I HAVE MADE,

by which I have placed a limitation upon my exercise of executive power, has been faithfully redeemed. Of course the pretense is not put forth that no mistakes have been committed, but not a suspension has been made except it appeared to my satisfaction that the public welfare would be improved thereby. Many applications for suspensions have been denied, and the adherence to the rule laid down to govern my action as to such suspensions has caused much irritation and impatience on the part of those who have insisted upon more changes in the offices. The pledges I have made were made to the people, and to them I am responsible for the manner in which they have been redeemed. I am not responsible to the senate, and I am unwilling to submit my actions and official conduct to them for judgment. There are no grounds for an allegation that the fear of being found false to my professions influences me in declining to submit to the demands of the senate. I have not constantly refused to suspend officials and thus incurred the displeasure of political friends, and have not yet wilfully broken faith with the people for the sake of being false to them. Neither the discontent of party friends nor the allurements constantly offered of confirmations of appointments conditioned upon the avowal that suspensions have been made on party grounds alone, nor the threat proposed in the resolutions now before the senate, that no confirmation will be made unless the demands of that body be complied with, are sufficient to discourage or deter me from following in the way which I am convinced leads to better government for the people.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C., March 1, 1886.

NOT AT ALL ALARMED.

NEW YORK, Special Telegram, March 1.—Marvin Hughitt, of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, said to-night that there was no truth in the story recently printed here that he had come East to prevent adverse legislation in regard to land grants of the Omaha road. There was no foundation whatever for such a statement. He is not all alarmed at the present state of affairs among the Northwestern roads, and is inclined to think that the war now going on will not be a very serious one.

The representatives of the roads running west from Chicago will meet the executive committee of the trunk lines to-morrow. The object of the meeting is to induce the trunk lines to pro-rate on the Pacific cut rates. At present the trunk lines are disposed to insist on an arbitrary rate between eastern tidewater points and Chicago, but there is a possibility that they may finally decide to co-operate with the roads of the Pacific coast association in a reduced rate. If they decide to do this, then the Western roads will not attempt to take any of the Atlantic tidewater traffic, but will confine themselves to interior points where the arbitrary rate is now in force. This will throw the bulk of the Pacific coast business on the "Sunset" route and the Pacific Mail company, and may eventually bring the Eastern trunk lines into the fight, as there is talk of using the Chesapeake & Ohio as a tidewater outlet for the Huntington roads.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

The Minnesota Farmers' Alliance Meets at the State University in Fifth Annual Session.

Adoption of a Very Long and Comprehensive Series of Resolutions.

The Minnesota Farmers' Alliance held a session of three days at the State University, Minneapolis. President George W. Sprague of Fillmore county called the meeting to order, and the venerable secretary, George W. Haigh of Mankato, sat beside him. President Northrop gave a brief address of greeting.

The following were named as a committee on credentials, one for each congressional district: Thomas Bursell, Fillmore county; J. L. Diamond, Blue Earth; Milton Cutler, McLeod; Hugh Campbell, Washington; T. C. Hodgeson, Grant county. Mr. Myers was admitted without the formality of credentials.

Hon. Daniel Buck of Mankato, delivered an address, occupying about an hour and a half, for which a vote of thanks was extended to him. He believed that one of the greatest mistakes that this government ever made was when it commenced to grant millions of acres of the public domain to great corporations. It was sowing the seeds of corruption that have ripened until there stands a dark spot in the nation's history. If there is a curse resting upon this part of the country that is unbearable, it is the fact that millions of railroad lands remain untaxed, the owners bearing none of the burdens of government. The farmer is taxed for his eighty-acre tract, while the railroad land adjoining escapes. And this is the boasted land of equality. There are nearly a quarter of a million more tenants in the United States than in Great Britain and Ireland.

The curse and danger of this country lies in the immense farms, accumulated wealth and rich corporate monopolies. Then there is the matter of unjust discriminations in railroad matters. You want the whipping post or a steam spanker or striped jacket for men who do this. The rebate system is another curse. He touched upon various remedies for this state of things, and hinted that the alliance might have to make nominations of its own.

The committee on credentials submitted a report showing a very large number of accredited delegates.

First District—William Sprague, John Bursell.
Second—A. A. Williams, William Webb.
Third—I. Donnelly, J. S. Shields.
Fourth—J. B. Taft, M. B. Cochran.
Fifth—Gen. T. B. Barrett, Charles Canning.
At Large—D. Cleveland, Stearns county; E. H. Hinton, Rock county; J. O. Epler, Otter Tail county.

On the second day, it was suggested that the railroad and warehouse commissioners and chief inspector, who were present be invited to make statements of the workings of the law. Gen. Baker, Commissioner Murdock and the inspector accordingly took the platform. Gen. Baker and Mr. Murdock spoke at some length on the workings of the railroad law, and responded to various interrogations.

At the opening of the afternoon session Ignatius Donnelly, chairman, announced that the committee on resolutions was ready to report. In submitting the very voluminous report, Mr. Donnelly said the only apology he had to offer for the length of the resolutions was the number of the wrongs that were suffered. He considered this voluminousness the best possible commentary on the necessity for radical reforms. During the reading Mr. Donnelly was repeatedly interrupted by applause.

Resolved, That it is with pride we call the attention of the farmers of the state to the fact that the only remedial legislation which the people have obtained during the past twenty years, however defective it may be, is due to the existence and labors of the Farmers' alliance and the public opinion which it has helped to create.

Resolved, That this alliance, while not a partisan association, is political in the sense that it seeks to correct the evils of misgovernment through the ballot box; that its existence has been rendered necessary by the failure of both of the great political parties of our state to maintain the rights of the people against corporate oppression.

Resolved, That the Republican party, having had complete control of the state government through all the years during which the evils of which we complain have arisen, must be held responsible for its failure to abate or abolish them, except when forced to do so in part last winter upon our demand; while on the other hand many of the so-called leaders of the Democratic party have been among the most servile and supple tools of the railroads and rings. While recognizing, therefore, the honesty of the rank and file of both parties, we declare our intention to give our suffrages, without regard to past party affiliations, only to those who have proved by their past acts their fidelity to our interests.

Resolved, That there are really but two parties in this state to-day—the people and their plunderers. The only issue is: Shall the people keep the fruits of their own industry, or shall the thieves carry them away?

Resolved, That we call upon all producers and all persons interested in the prosperity of the producers of this state in town and country, upon all merchants, laboring men, mechanics and professional men to unite with us at the ballot box next November to secure a legislature that will work in the interests of the many against the exactions of the few.

Resolved, That until all the grievances of the people are redressed we demand annual sessions of the state legislature. The term of sixty days in two years is too short a space for the necessary legislation of a great and rapidly-growing community. It is "saving at the spicket and wasting at the bung." It is a shameful thing that a free people should so tie their own hands that they cannot exercise self-government in its highest prerogative, the making of our laws, for more than sixty days in two years, no matter what may be their grievances, unless an official of their own election permits them to assemble in extra session.

Resolved, That all attempts to belittle free institutions by first corrupting and then ridiculing our legislators, and thereupon abolishing the sessions of our legislature, are parts of a general movement in this country inaugurated by those who live upon the people, and who would be glad to reduce us to the Russian system, where no legislature ever assembles.

Whereas, The farmers of Minnesota do not as a class make one per cent per annum on the value of their lands and plant after deducting all taxes and expenses, and reasonable compensation for their own time and labor; and whereas they produce the greater part of the real wealth of the state and bear the major portion of the burdens of the government; therefore,

Resolved, That we demand that the legislature shall exercise the powers which the supreme court of the United States has time and again affirmed it possessed of, to regulate freights and charges upon the railroads of the state, so as to give those who have settled in this region of country a fair chance for an honest living.

Resolved, That while our farmers are toiling in a severe climate for a bare subsistence, we are opposed to railroad corporations drawing from them by excessive charges vast sums of money, wherewith: First, to pay princely salaries to officials, salaries nearly as high as that of the president of the United States; second, to corrupt our legislatures so as to deny us remedial legislation; third, to buy up newspapers, to befog and mislead the public; third, to pay interest on vast quantities of bonds and watered stocks, which do not represent one dollar of actual capital paid in, but are simply coagulated stealage.

Resolved, That we demand such a reduction in the rates of transportation of freight and passengers on the railroads of this state, as will leave the companies, after paying their legitimate expenses, a just and reasonable interest on the money invested in the actual construction of the roads, but not one dollar on the "stealage" or watered stock.

Resolved, That while preserving our present system of inspection at terminal points and enforcing the railroad laws already passed, we demand for the farmers of this state an absolutely free market, with a system of local inspection at every station where two hundred thousand bushels of grain are annually handled, so as to put a stop to the swindling in grades so long and ruthlessly practiced upon us. And to that end we demand an amendment to the state constitution, with proper legislation thereunder, which shall make all attempts to forestall or monopolize our markets or cheapen our productions felonies punishable by law. And we ask the people to elect a legislature that will enact such laws, and a governor and attorney general who will see that they are executed.

Resolved, That we demand such legislation as will be effectual to stop the cheating in the weight of farmers' productions, now almost universal throughout the state, with such a system of heavy fines and large rewards to parties complaining as will insure execution of the law.

Resolved, That silver coin constitutes one-half the real money of the world; that to abolish it now throughout the world would be to reduce the value of metallic money one-half, thereby doubling the purchasing power of gold and decreasing in like ratio the value of all forms of property, including labor.

Resolved, That we denounce any such attempt as the result of a vast European conspiracy against human nature, a scheme to double the mortgage and halve the farm, to increase the national bond and decrease the power of the people to pay it, to intensify the struggle for food and life among the swarming millions that a few thousands may riot in wasteful abundance.

Resolved, That we demand of the congress of the United States the coinage of silver upon precisely the same terms with gold.

Resolved, That we believe the so-called protective tariff to be wrong in principle and pernicious in practice; that it restricts our foreign trade and the demand for our wheat and other agricultural products, and by increasing the cost of what we buy is thus doubly burdensome to the farming community; that its tendency is to build up a privileged class, contrary to our theory of government, and by creating a surplus in the treasury to invite extravagance and corruption. We therefore call for such modification of the present tariff as will reduce the taxes to the actual necessities of the government for revenue only.

Resolved, That while we are in favor of the federal government deriving its taxes mainly from duties upon imports under a reasonable tariff, and while we would patiently submit to considerable indirect taxation if we saw that it went to increase the resources and improve the condition of the workingmen of the country, we are opposed to being taxed in a thousand ways to enrich Eastern mine owners and mill owners, who are taking our hard-earned dollars under pretense of "encouraging and protecting American labor," and at the same time import workmen from the most wretched populations of Asia and Europe and set them down under "labor contracts" alongside of the American workmen to reduce him to pauperism.

Resolved, That we demand legislation that will make the use of a free railroad pass or any other device to the same end by any judge of a court of this state or any officer of the state an offense punishable by impeachment and removal from office, and that will punish by fine and imprisonment any railroad official who issues such a pass, or any member of the state legislature or state or county official who accepts the same.

Resolved, That our senators and representatives in congress be urgently requested to aid by their influence and votes in the passing of the bill now pending granting appropriations to the several states for the establishment and support of agricultural experimental stations.

Resolved, That we demand legislation that shall require elevator owners or warehousemen to make good the face value of their wheat checks as to grades and weight of wheat at the terminal points.

Resolved, That we request our members of congress and senators to vote against a certain bill introduced by Senator Wilson in the United States senate for increased postage on fourth-class mail matter, which we look upon as a move by the express companies to increase their business at the expense of the people.

Resolved, That one of the great evils of our day is the legislative party caucus, wherein the honest man pledges himself to execute the behests of any successful knave who has money enough to buy up a bare majority.

Resolved, That the rate of interest in this state should be reduced to 8 per cent, and that any commission to the agent for the lender should be strictly prohibited unless paid by his principal.

Resolved, That we advise the farmers of the state to hold their wheat in their own bins until they are ready to sell.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this alliance that the railroad commissioners and dairy commissioner of this state should be elected by the people of the state every two years at the general election, instead of being appointed by the governor.

Further resolutions advocated the following reforms:

A reasonable limit for the royalty on agricultural machinery; that all grain elevators or warehouses now built or to be built at terminal points be made public warehouses, and be closed up if not properly licensed; a tax of ten cents per pound to enter oil and all compounds counterfeit butter; advocating the holding of farmers' institutes and appropriations for them.

Resolved, That we set forth this declaration of principles, not as suppliants at the feet of power, but as freemen demanding their rights. We ask justice, not charity. It is adding insult to injury for any man to plunder a community of millions of dollars annually, and then seek to balance the account with a few beggarly pigs and homeless bulls.

There were additional resolutions providing for the printing of the resolutions and their presentation to public officials and subordinate alliances.

The resolutions as reported, with one or two amendments, which have been incorporated in the above, were adopted as a whole, without any particular discussion. A half a dozen more were introduced by individual members; one calling for the taxation of railroad lands under contract was adopted after a vigorous debate. Another thanking the railroad and warehouse commission for what it had done toward righting wrongs was carried.

The committee of five appointed to report on the experimental farm and agricultural education was called on for its report. The chairman responded by reading a document which gave a brief history of the legislation bearing on the agricultural college and a cursory statement of what the present facilities of the department are. Prominence was given to the fact that the college during its existence has had but one student a year, only three students in the last five years, with two graduates. A long and rather an acrimonious debate occurred during which the experimental farm was severly criticised by several speakers, and defended by Prof. Parker. Mr. Meyers offered the following resolution which was finally adopted by a vote of 71 to 10:

Resolved, That we demand that the next legislature separate the fund arising from the sale of lands donated by the act of congress to the state of Minnesota for the purpose of establishing an agricultural and industrial college, from the university fund, where it was placed by act of the legislature of 1868, and that a separate college be established in accordance with the spirit and intent of the act of congress.

On the third day, Mr. Donnelly offered resolutions condemning encroachment by railroads, on the river at St. Paul.

An attempt was made, but without success to strike out what was known as the "bull and pig" resolutions. Mr. Hodson of Grant county, chairman of the committee on constitution, submitted an amended instrument, providing that the duties of secretary and treasurer shall be separate, and for the election of a treasurer, etc. The changes generally pertain to the business management of the alliance, but embody the following points: Its officers shall consist of a president, thirteen vice presidents—one from each judicial district and one at large—a state lecturer, a secretary and a treasurer. They shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting to serve for the term of one year, or until their successors are elected.

The Alliance proceeded with the election of officers. The secretary was directed to cast one ballot for Mr. Sprague as president, and President Sprague cast the ballot for George W. Haigh of Mankato for re-election as secretary, there being no opposition. Proceeding to the election of vice presidents, the alliance balloted for the one at large, the choice resulting upon Charles Canning of Norman county. The vice presidents selected for the several judicial districts were:

First District—T. Bissell, Fillmore county.
Second District—E. Oleson, Martin county.
Third District—M. McBar, Scott county.
Fourth District—Hugh Campbell, Washington county.
Fifth District—E. H. Atwood, Stearns county.
Treasurer—John Diamond, Blue Earth county.
State Lecturer—J. Hodson, Grant county.

The following, offered by John Miller, was adopted unanimously:

Whereas, The state Farmers' alliance, having confidence in the management of the state agricultural society, therefore

Resolved, That the state alliance appoint a committee of three to meet with the board of managers of the state agricultural society at their next meeting, to revise the premium list and to suggest such premiums as may be beneficial to this organization.

The capitol at St. Paul was selected as the next place of meeting, and the body adjourned sine die, with cheers for the alliance and its officers.

Since the decision of Judge Koon of Hennepin county to the effect that the oleomargarine and butterine law of 1885 was unconstitutional, the dairy commissioners have been in doubt as to whether they could prosecute under the law of 1881, which provides that any one selling butterine shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $100, or imprisoned for not less than thirty or more than ninety days or both. The question was submitted to Attorney General Hahn, who held that the law was legal, and that the commissioners could prosecute under it which they will proceed to do.

Robert Campbell, a middle-aged citizen of Forest City town, was found dead on the road between Litchfield and that place. The appearance of the ground indicated that he had been dragged behind his sleigh for two miles. The cause of his death is not known. He had been in Litchfield and had drank freely.

Last Wednesday night and Thursday morning there was a terrible blizzard up north and very cold weather.

EL EMPERADOR.

Relics of Maximilian's Short Reign in Mexico—New Details of his Execution at Queretaro.

Boston Herald.

City of Mexico, October 28, 1885.—Eighteen years ago last June the Emperor Maximilian fell, pierced by bullets, on a hillside at Queretaro, a slight eminence which the tourist via the Central Railway may catch a passing glimpse of as he enters that interesting old town. But eighteen years have not sufficed to obliterate the memory of the Emperor. In the curio shops here you still find the "Maximilian dollar" with his effigy, and the beautiful Paseo remains to testify to his purpose of making this enchantingly situated capital the Paris of the new world. A sturdily built, handsome young fellow, himself the grandson of another Mexican Emperor, walks the streets of the city. This young man, accomplished and athletic, was adopted, by Maximilian as his heir, and, though a revival of imperialism is impossible, the Prince Iturbide, as he is universally called, may yet take an important part in the game of Mexican politics.

The same government which cherishes the memory of the emperor Iturbide refuses to preserve the memorial of the reign of the Emperor Maximilian. Wandering through the executive apartments at the national palace the other day, I noted that wherever Maximilian had left the crowned eagle the government had obliterated the crown and left the Mexican eagle crownless in republican simplicity. But in the splendid chamber where President Diaz receives visitors the crowned eagle remains. The superb room is hung with crimson silk, on which is everywhere to be seen the crowned imperial eagle in raised figure.

To have cut the crown would have been to spoil the hangings, and so they have been let, mute memorials of the dead ruler of Mexico. In the vast apartment known as the Hall of Ambassadors—the portrait of the Emperor Iturbide remains, but there is no relic of Maximilian. You must go to the National Museum, also in the palace to see Maximilian's state dinner service, which was an outrageous cheat if he paid the price of silver for it, because it is nothing but a wretched composite of base metals thinly plated, the proportion being ninety-five per cent. base metal and five per cent. silver. Maximilian's state carriage remains on show, and a really gorgeous affair it is. His bust by a Mexican artist is also preserved in the museum, where also are his orders and insignia. But all these things are preserved, as we might keep the uniform of a captured British General, as trophies of victory over an invader.

The Mexican Government has not persecuted the partisans of the Emperor. On the very street where I am writing lives, in a noble casa, the spokesman of the deputation of notables who crossed the ocean to tender to Maximilian at Miramar the fatal imperial crown. The other day I read over the address of this deputation, in which was vaunted the superiority of monarchial institutions, and the assertion made that the Mexican people desired the Austrian prince to come and reign over them, that they were weary of republicanism and interminable intercecine strife. The reply of the prince was enthusiastic, and in that same spirit Maximilian and Carlotta crossed the seas, believing that they were the desired of the Mexican people. Their deception must have been complete. Prints of that time represent the triumphant arches erected on the main avenue of the capital, and through that avenue you see passing the carriage of the Emperor bowing to the right and left, acknowledging the plaudits of the populace.

Personally, Maximilian was very popular with the common people. His memory is not execrated, but rather he is regarded with a pathetic sort of regret mingled with reproachfulness. Maximilian was under bad influences. His military advisers here were mercilessly severe. They counseled harsh measures, and made the Emperor believe that he had exhausted the resources of kindness, and should put the knife in up to the hilt. Maximilian and his wife were the ideal sovereigns of the story books. They were easy in their manners and kind to the common people; they were fond of one another, and had all the lovable virtues, but the Mexican people, fiercely fond of liberty, resented their intrusion, and Juarez, the constitutional President, had earnest popular support in his prolonged resistance to the Empire.

The fatal blunder of Maximilian, a blunder which has left a stain on his name, was the issuance of the order that all of the liberal chiefs taken in arms after the expiration of Juarez's term should be shot as traitors to the empire. Juarez remonstrated, urging that he was President, even after his term of office expired, until the country could peacefully elect his successor. That was sensible ground, and history sustains the Mexican patriot. Maximilian's decree was merciless, and the fates measured out to him as he had meted to others.

It was in Queretaro that Maximilian made his final stand after the withdrawal of the French troops at a word of warning from Mr. Seward. It is a lovely old city, with a splendid aqueduct in the Roman manner, many ancient and picturesque churches, and a soft and genial climate. Then, as now, it was a stronghold of the Church party, the very citadel of Catholicism in Mexico. Maximilian was here besieged and overthrown, and imprisoned in the convent of the Capuchinos, and thence, after the famous court-martial, led out to the Hill of the Bells to be shot. Recent disclosures regarding the last hours of the Emperor will destroy many legends of the fatal day, and I will here relate the contents of a document which the priest Soria lately dictated shortly prior to his own death.

Soria was the Emperor's confessor and was with him during his last few days, and what he here says must pass into history as the true account of Maximilian's last moments, an account not yet printed in English. It was of Soria that Maximilian said: "It is I who must console this good priest and not he him become utterly overcome."

"The night before his death," says the Confessor, Soria, "the Emperor wrote two letters, one to the Pope and the other to his mother. He confided both to me, together with a handkerchief for his mother.

"On the following morning I accompanied him to the place of execution. The cortege was composed of three wrethed coaches. I got into the first with the Emperor, while Miramon and Mejia occupied, with their confessors, the other two.

"Hardly had we left the Convent of the Capuchinos when I was surprised to see Maximilian strike his breast, saying:

"'I have put eight handkerchiefs here to keep the blood from staining my uniform.'

"All the rest of the way the Emperor busied himself with praying and recommending his soul to God. But seeing the Hill of the Bells he exclaimed:

"'There is where I had thought to hoist the standard of victory, and there is where I am going to die! Life is a play!'

"And, after some moments of silence he added: 'What a beautiful view! And what a beautiful day to die!'

"When we had arrived at the place of execution, it was found difficult to open the door of the coach.

"Then Maximilian, being impatient, leaped out of the window, knocking off his hat.

"He handed me the crucifix, embracing me. He also embraced Miramon and Mejia, distributed some gold coins among the soldiers who were to shoot him, and then, in a strong voice, pronounced in Spanish these words: 'I forgive everybody, and I ask that all may forgive me, and I desire that my blood, which is going to be shed, may be for the good of Mexico. Long live Mexico! Long live her independence!' Immediately he placed his hand on his breast, indicating the spot for the soldiers to take aim at. Then the drums sounded, and in the presence of the four thousand soldiers assembled it was proclaimed that whoever should raise his voice in behalf of the condemned man would be made to suffer the same penalty. Not a murmur was heard among the immense crowd standing behind the troops.

"At a given signal the three platoons fired. Miramon and Mejia fell dead at once, but Maximilian did not die at the first discharge and uttered three groans. Then they gave him the coup de grace."

The priest Soria denied that Maximilian, as the legend goes, gave the post of honor at the place of execution to Miramon, saying: "A brave man merits the respect of his sovereign; take the place of honor." The placing of the condemned was by accident. Thus a picturesque legend is dissipated.

An Old Squirrel Story, Newly Dressed.

From The Greensboro (Ga.) Herald.

It wasn't many Saturdays ago that a number of gentlemen standing upon the streets at Greensboro discussed fox-hunting, bird-hunting, and kindred sports. Each one had told a story, remarkable in a high degree when the climax was reached by one of the gentlemen, who told the following story:

"Coons!" said he with a sneer. "You don't know anything about coons in this country. Why you ought to go to southwest Georgia. I lived there once, and my favorite pastime was coon hunting. Early one morning I started out with my dogs for a hunt. The morning was damp and heavy, and we hadn't gone far before the dogs struck a trail, and away they went. How beautiful it was. Through the underbrush they rushed, crashing, barking, the sounds coming to us like low music on the morning air. It wasn't many minutes before the low howl of the leading dog told us that he had treed.

"We put out after them, going through the swamps and down into a canebrake. There we came upon the dogs all clustered about a cypress log. They smelled it, and then all started back as if they didn't know what was to pay. We drew near and endeavored to urge them on. But they would not urge. We went up to the log, and it seemed to be moving. I didn't know what to make of it. The sides of it rose and fell as regular as the beat of a clock. We finally cut into it, and there it was packed with coons. We killed a hundred and forty and I don't know how many got away."

"What made the log move?" innocently asked a bystander.

"Oh, as plain as day. The coons were packed so close that every time they breathed the log would expand."

There was a ghastly silence and the crowd moved away.

"It wasn't a day for coons, either!" he yelled after them, and putting a fresh chew of tobacco in his mouth he walked rapidly in the direction of the "Cotton Bourse" on Wall-st., and in a moment more was buying the fleecy staple with a serene and unmoved countenance.

He Knew the Country Girls.

"I'll tell you what I like," said a drummer from Cincinnati; "I like to be out in the country and get an invitation to a dance or party. The country dance or party is the place of all the world for fun, and don't you hesitate to recollect it. The last time I was at a country party I fell in love with a girl. She was freckled a little under her ears and forehead, but the rest of her face was peachy-blossomy yummy-yummy. And her lips—why, kisses just seemed to dance on them, and sit on 'em, and dare you to come and take. I dared, but you never saw a girl fight as she did. She scratched and clawed, tore off my cravat, busted my collar button, bit my finger, lost the ribbon out of her hair, and got herself into a perspiration. But I got the kiss. It was good, despite my exhaustion and her perspiration.

"She was very angry. She sulked a long while, and refused to speak to me. Finally I found her out on the back porch. She was alone.

"'You hateful thing!' she exclaimed. 'I believe you have impudence enough to kiss me again. If you do, I'll choke your wind off.'

"And then she threw her arms about my neck and gave me a terrific squeeze, by way of showing me what she could do."

"And did you beg off and make your escape?"

"Beg off? Make my escape! Say do I look like a greeny? I kissed her seventeen straight times without stopping to draw breath. I know these country lasses, I do, and when one of 'em likes a kiss so well as to give me a hugging invitation to take another, I stand up to the racket like a little man. That's the kind of a grocery salesman I am."

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

SENATE.—A bill confirming entries of public lands was reported favorably. Mr. Morgan offered a preamble and resolution holding that the judiciary committee did not have the right to arraign the attorney general, as it had done, for his refusal to send in papers concerning suspensions from office. Bills were introduced for a public building at Fort Dodge, Iowa; providing that patents be granted on homestead entries, even though final proof was not made within the time required by law; authorizing the use of the proceeds of the Pacific railroad sinking fund in the construction of branch railroad and telegraph lines. The bill appropriating $250,000 for a monument to Gen. Grant in Washington passed. Messrs. Gray and Plumb spoke in opposition to the education bill, and Mr. Call in support of it.

The bill to confirm entries of land heretofore made under the land laws of the United States, reported by Senator Van Wyck, from the senate committee on public lands, provides:

Any entry heretofore made in conformity with the rules, regulations and decisions of the general land office at the time, shall be adjudged in the same manner as if said rules, regulations and decisions had not been reversed or modified; provided, that such entry must have been made in good faith, and no charges of fraud have been made against the same.

SENATE.—The house bill authorizing national banks, subject to the approval of the controller of the treasury, to change their name, location and capital by vote of two-thirds of their shareholders, passed with an amendment forbidding a bank to change its location to another state or to a place more than thirty miles distant from the original location.

Senator Morgan reported an amendment to an appropriation bill accepting the offer of the government of Japan to this government of a site to the city of Tokio for legation purposes, recommending an appropriation of $25,000 for the erection of a suitable building.

The debate on the Blair educational bill was resumed.

HOUSE.—The bills to quiet the titles of settlers on the Des Moines river lands in Iowa and annexing the northern part of Idaho to Washington territory passed. The bill to tax half-gallons of spirits taken from bonded warehouses passed.

The Hennepin canal bill, which appropriates about $9,000,000 for the purchase and further extention of the Illinois & Michigan canal, was called up in the house and discussed for one hour, under the rules, at the expiration of which time the bill went over. Mr. Murphy of Iowa, who has charge of the measure, made an effectual speech in its favor, illustrating his remarks by reference to a large map.

SENATE.—Senator Dawes' bill to provide for the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians on the various reservations and to extend the protection of the laws over the Indians and for other purposes, passed the senate.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to the reservations of the Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws and Seminoles, in the Indian Territory, nor to any of the reservations of the Seneca nation in New York.

Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Edmunds providing for the inspection of meats for exportation, prohibiting the importation of adulterated articles of food and drink, and authorizing the president to make proclamation in certain cases. Mr. Edmunds said:

This bill has been reported last year by the committee on foreign relations. It contained a section giving the president authority, whenever he was convinced that unjust discrimination was made against the admission of American products into other countries, to suspend importations from those countries of such articles as he thought fit for the protection of the just interests of the United States. In view of what he (Mr. Edmunds) saw in the newspapers about current events in other countries touching American products, he thought it clear that it was time to introduce the bill again.

The judiciary committee reported favorably the bill introduced by Senator Voorhees amending section 1,874, Revised Statutes, confirming orders and proceedings of certain territorial courts arising under naturalization laws, admitting to citizenship those who were not naturalized by courts of record; also adding the words to the law: "All applications for citizenship under the naturalization laws of the United States."

HOUSE.—The military academy appropriation bill, calling for $412,075, was reported, also the postoffice appropriation and the Ends ship railway bills. Mr. Murphy concluded his speech in favor of the Hennepin canal bill, and the pension appropriation bill was considered and a heated political debate took place.

SENATE.—Mr. Mitchell of Oregon delivered an elaborate speech in favor of his bill providing for the abrogation of treaties permitting the emigration of Chinese to the United States. The education bill was further considered. Adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE.—A substitute for the Hanback and Pulitzer resolution for an investigation of the telephone matter was reported by the committee on rules and adopted, after a warm debate. A resolution was adopted instructing the postoffice committee to ascertain whether additional legislation is necessary to prevent telegraphic monopoly. The immediate deficiency bill was reported. An evening session was held for the consideration of private pension bills.

SENATE.—A message was received from the president refusing to transmit to the senate papers regarding suspensions from office. Mr. Pugh presented a minority report from the judiciary committee on the relations between the senate and the president. It was very long, and in substance takes the same ground as the president in his message. When the message had been read Mr. Edmunds said:

It reminded him of the communications of King Charles the first to parliament, and that the president unintentionally, no doubt, had entirely misstated the question involved by himself and the senate. I think I am safe in saying that is the first time in the history of the republic that any president of the United States has undertaken to interfere with the deliberations of either house of congress or questions pending before them otherwise than by message on the state of the Union, which the constitution commands him to make from time to time. This message is devoted solely to a question for the senate itself, in regard to itself, that it has under consideration. It is a singularity. I think it will strike reflective people in this country as somewhat extraordinary, if, in these days of reform, anything at all can be thought extraordinary. The senate of the United States, in its communications to the heads of departments, not his heads of departments, but the heads of departments, created by law, directed them to transmit certain official papers, and that is all. The president of the United States undertakes to change the question into a consideration by the senate of his reasons or motives for putting a civil officer, as it might be called, "under arrest," with which the senate has not undertaken in any way to make any question at all. By every message he has sent to this body, and they are all published, he has asked the senate to advise and consent to the removal of one officer and the appointment of another. That is what he has done, and the senate in calling for those papers—to say nothing of the wider considerations about any deficiencies in the department of justice—is asked to remove these officers without knowing the condition of the administration of their offices.

HOUSE.—Bills were introduced to repeal the patent laws and establish another system of rewards for inventions; to repeal the internal revenue laws; to create a department of industry and a bureau of labor; to admit free of duty lumber, salt, coke, coal and iron ore produced in Canada. Unanimous consent was asked to have printed in the Record a memorial calling for the impeachment of the secretary of the treasury for high crimes and misdemeanors in the execution of the silver law, but objection was made.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY.

Theodore P. Rich Kills His Wife and Then Himself at the Hotel Astoria, St. Paul—She Had Eloped with Her Lover, Dr. H. S. Gale, from Cobleskill, New York.

Two sharp pistol shots—one following the other in quick succession—a woman's low moan, the smell of powder smoke creeping stealthily into the halls; two dead bodies on the floor with wide-open eyes and from their heads red life blood gushing—and that is the epitome of the tragedy enacted in Room No. 20, Hotel Astoria, No. 375 Wabasha street, St. Paul, Saturday night the 27th. It was the old, old story of a husband and erring wife, and Mephistopheles in the disguise of a lover. She fleeing from a home and all its honored ties to the West, with a lover. The guilty couple reach St. Paul, seek seclusion in a private hotel, throw off forever the bands that held them loyal to themselves and, ostensibly as husband and wife, dreamed of days and weeks and months of such happiness as they might win to come. But back of them, like a winged Nemesis, came the wronged husband, brooding on his way of the terrible injury to him and of the fate that was to befall both him and her. Last night they met face to face—husband and wife—in Room No. 20 of the Hotel Astoria, and he, after one last plea for her return to him, shot her dead, and then killed himself. There is the weaving of a romance out of such a tale, taken as it is from every-day life. She was Mrs. Fannie Rich, late of Cobleskill, N. Y., and he, Theodore P. Rich, of the same place. The third party to the affair (the lover) was Dr. H. S. Gale, also of Cobleskill. He is forty years of age, about five feet, nine inches tall, weighs about 175 or 180 pounds, has a full face, the upper lip being covered by a blonde mustache. He dresses in dark clothes and wears a black derby hat. Evidently he is an intelligent man and accustomed to move in society circles. Mrs. Rich was dressed in black, even to her stockings, and slippers on small, shapely feet. A woman of petite form, with regular features and light, fluffy hair, that waved in bangs above a low forehead, she possessed many attractions of form and face. Rich was carelessly dressed, in ordinary clothes of black that did not fit him, heavy shoes and overshoes. He has a heavy, solid face, a well-knit form and a black moustache. His chin showed a lack of the barber's care for several days.

Dr. Gale gives the following statement:

I left my family behind when I came west with the woman who has been killed. We eloped together, although there was no particular effort to conceal the fact of our departure, except from the woman's husband. The dead woman was Mrs. Fannie Rich. She was thirty-five years of age. Her father, Henry Smith, was one of the most prominent lawers in New York State, and a man of wealth and social standing.

Theodore P. Rich, who did the killing and then shot himself, was about forty years of age. He had no regular profession and never engaged in any permanent business. He was not a dissipated man, but he never provided for his wife properly and abused and mistreated her. They never had any children. Fannie Smith first married a man named Frank Trimble, from whom she obtained a divorce more than ten years ago, soon afterward marrying Rich. It was afterward discovered that there was some informality in the divorce proceedings, so that really her marriage with Rich was of no binding force or effect. Mrs. Rich has for some time past informed her husband that she did not intend to live with him any longer, and we arranged to leave Cobleskill come west to Dakota, and obtain divorces. Then we intended to go to California, remain there for six months, and return to Cobleskill to live.

Then we started for St. Paul, arriving here on Feb. 1 and taking rooms at the Astoria hotel where we have been ever since. About 7 o'clock this evening we went down to supper in the dining room. We had not been there a great while before we were astonished to see Rich enter from the outside door. He came directly up to us and held out his hand to his wife, saying: "How d' do, Fannie." She refused to shake hands with him. "Why have you done this way?" he asked her. She told him that she never would have anything more to do with him, and he had just as well go way. The conversation was beginning to attract attention, and I suggested that we go up into our room No. (20) and talk the matter over. This was agreed to and we went upstairs. When we got into the room Rich asked me to step outside, as he wanted to talk to Fannie alone. I told him I would if she was willing. She assented to the proposition Rich making the remark by way of reassuring her: "Fannie, you know I wouldn't hurt you." I went out and left them in the room. I had no thought that Rich intended doing her any harm. After waiting about twenty minutes I went back and Rich asked me to allow him a little more time. I went away again. Returning after a lapse of ten minutes he asked me to go away again. Fannie said: "Oh, yes, give him a chance!" A third and fourth time I went back, and Rich persisted he was not yet through with his talk. The last time Fannie told him there was no use talking further, as it would not change matters. I was standing in the office talking with the clerk when one of the bell boys came in and said he had heard two pistol shots, he thought in No. 20. I rushed up stairs and into the room. Fannie was sitting in the rocking chair by the bureau, gasping for breath, her head far over to one side. Rich lay flat on his back upon the floor. The landlord, Mr. Baugh, came in right behind me, and we lifted Fannie to the floor. I soon discovered that life was extinct, however, and gave up all efforts to resuscitate her. Just before I left the room the last time Fannie told me that Rich had agreed to accept the money and go back home by an early morning train, and I supposed everything was all right, and that he would leave St. Paul and not give us any trouble.

The first that was seen of Rich, the murderer and suicide, at the hotel, was about 7 o'clock yesterday evening, when he made his appearance in the office and asked the clerk if Gale was stopping in the house. There was nothing unusual to be noticed in his appearance, and he did not attract more than a casual glance from the clerk, who answered his question affirmatively and informed him that Gale and his wife were down in the restaurant at dinner. Rich went down stairs into the restaurant and went over to the table where his wife and Gale were seated. Rich, upon entering the dining room, was approached by the headwaiter with the intention of seating him, but as he took his seat with the couple at the table, that dignitary sent a waiter to him to attend to his order. There was nothing unusual noticed by any of the attaches of the place during the meal, and they all left together for the upper part of the house.

The storm which prevailed throughout New England on the 26th is reported as the severest of the winter. In some sections of New Hampshire and Vermont fifteen to twenty-four inches of snow have fallen, accompanied by a furious wind, which attained a velocity of fifty to sixty-five miles per hour. The roads in many places are blockaded. Telegraph and telephone wires are prostrated, and railroad travel is impeded. It was equally severe in Boston, Hartford, New York and along the coast.

The Fort Pitt tannery and stock at Braddock, Pa., were burned recently. Loss $50,000.

Dr. Louis Pauley of Milwaukee, ex-county physician, is accused by a girl of being the father of her child. He says it is blackmail.

The Love-Sick Florida Statesman.

The senators who have returned from Detroit say that they saw Senator Jones of Florida, and that he seems to be in good health and spirits. He boards at the principal hotel, spends most of his time about the lobby and in the street, and his face and business in Detroit are known to almost every child in the city. Jones is pointed out to strangers as the lovesick senator. Some of the senators urged him to return to Washington, but he said that he would not do so. He was indignant about the publication of his "affair," but said that he might have expected it from papers that had always been unfriendly. When warned that he would lose the respect of the public if he remained away much longer, he replied that after ten years of constant and assiduous labor he thought himself entitled to a few weeks rest, and preferred to take it in Detroit instead of Florida. He spoke of other senators who had been absent from their seats for weeks at a time, and did not see why he should be selected by the newspapers as a target, or be complained of for his absence. The senators say he looks, talks and acts like himself, and do not believe that he is crazy.

Lieutenant Governor Black's First Lesson in Writing for Newspapers.

Washington Correspondence Chicago News.

I met Lieutenant-Governor Chauncey Black of Pennsylvania, in town a few days ago. He is a son of Judge Jere Black, the celebrated jurist and Attorney-General of Buchanan's administration. Governor Black was for some years a contributor to the New York Sun before his active pursuit of politics caused him to retire from the journalistic field. When Chauncey was about to write his first article for the press he consulted his father about the subject he had in mind. "That will do very well," said the Judge. "You understand that subject thoroughly. Let me see what you write when you get through; I may be able to make some suggestions to you." The young man went off and buckled down to his task. He knew his father would be a severe critic, and he resolved to leave himself as little open to criticism as possible. So he spent a week at it.

When he had about reached perfection, as he thought, he took it to his father. The Judge read it carefully through. "Well," asked Chauncey, as his heart sank within him. "Very well done, Chauncey; very well done. But I think it can be improved. Suppose you cut it down one half and see what the effect will be." "Very well, sir," said Chauncey, taking the manuscript back to his room. When he had taken out a little more than half his fine sentences he returned to his father. The Judge read it through again. "You can't imagine how much you've improved it; it really reads very well; but, Chauncey, if you cut it down one-half again it will read still better."

"All right, father," said Chauncey, bravely putting the knife to his production again. By the time this was done the article was not more than half a column long.

"Very good, indeed; very good, indeed," said the judge, approvingly, "but I say, Chauncey, don't you think it will read still better if you cut it down to a quarter of a column?"

"No, I don't, and, what's more, I wont," exclaimed Chauncey, snatching the manuscript and darting indignantly out of the room.

It is quite probable, however, that his father's method of teaching the young man a useful lesson was not lost upon him; for there are few writers for the public press of to-day who express their ideas with more vigor and terseness than Chauncey Black.

A Shoemaker Wins $15,000.

New York Tribune.

Frederick Scharf, a shoemaker of No. 704 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, has suddenly found himself possessed of troops of friends. Men who formerly paid no attention to him, have been exceedingly affable and anxious about his welfare. This change has been brought about by what he regards as a piece of exceptional good luck. A few days ago he received notice that a lottery ticket, of which he owned one-fifth part, had drawn the capital prize of $75,000, entitling him to $15,000. He expects to receive the money this week. Scharf is a poor, hard-working man with no family, who barely earned his own support by his trade, and who found his only luxury in drinking a social glass of beer with some friends. One of these, named Myers, one day bantered him to buy a lottery ticket. Scharf at first refused, but Myers told him that he had bought one-fifth of a ticket for $1, and urged Scharf to do the same. After some delay the shoemaker did so. One day last week the two men got a list of the lucky numbers, and Scharf's was among them. He proposes to give Myers $1,000, and give a supper to his friends. What to do with the rest of the money he has not decided, although a multitude of advisers are seeking to give him wisdom.

A CARD.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13, 1886.

The undersigned certifies that he held for collection, for account of Frederick Scharf 704 DeKalb avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., one-fifth of Ticket No. 57,705 in the Louisiana Lottery, which drew the First Capital Prize of Seventy-five Thousand Dollars on Tuesday, Feb. 9th, 1886 and that the amount was promptly paid by check on the New Orleans National Bank, on presentation of the ticket at the office of the Company.

Frightful Waste.

Consumption carries off its thousands of victims every year. Yes, thousands of human lives are being wasted that might be saved, for the fact is now established that consumption, in its early stages, is curable. Dr. Price's "Golden Medical Discovery" will, if used in time, effect a permanent cure. It has no equal as a remedy for bronchitis, cough and colds. Its efficacy has been proved in thousands of cases. All druggists.

At Minneapolis, George B. Hush is married to Miss Alice M. Reynolds.

"Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer." Don't neglect your cough. If you do your fate may be that of the countless thousands who have done likewise, and who today fill consumptives' graves. Night-sweats, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and consumption itself if taken in time can be cured by the use of Dr. Price's "Golden Medical Discovery." This wonderful preparation has no equal as a remedy for lung and throat diseases. All druggists.

OLD RESIDENTS OF WISCONSIN

The old residents who first settled Wisconsin and have watched it grow from a thinly populated territory into one of the most prosperous and progressive States of the Union are fast passing away. Every few days are printed accounts of the death of some village patriarch, whose tales of fights with the Indians and of hardships endured and overcome in earlier days have seemed to the rising generation like chapters in ancient history. To those who still remain all honor due. They will not be with us long, but while they yet tarry their experience and advice should be heeded. Samuel Barstow, of Lancaster, Wis., is one of those old residents and is well known, not only in the State, but beyond its borders as well. In recounting some of his experiences recently he said:

"I have suffered more or less from rheumatism and general debility for a number of years. For the last year the trouble has constantly increased and for a month I could not dress myself or get up from my chair without help. From my head to my feet every cord and muscle was stiff and sore. During this time I used various remedies, but all to no purpose, and continued to get worse. My attention was called to Athlophoros. I procured a bottle and on the 22d of January, 1884, began to use it. I took five doses and then slept easily until eight o'clock in the morning. I then got up and dressed myself and walked out without a cane. I was astonished at the result and could hardly realize that the medicine had produced such an effect. I am getting to be an old man—I am now seventy-two years old—and I don't suppose that it will make me a young man, but it will help the lamp of life to burn down calmly."

Mrs. R. F. Bowers, of Racine, Wis., is well known in that city as one of the old residents, she having lived there thirty-seven years. Her present address is 902 State Street. She has this to say:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism for the last three years. I did not suffer as much pain as some do with the same complaint, my difficulty being principally stiffness of the joints. The trouble was mostly in my knee joints, and it was with much difficulty that I could bend them, especially in going up and down stairs. During the time I was troubled in this way I tried many medicines without any good effects. Athlophoros came to my notice, and being anxious to get some relief I thought I would try it. After using it for a short time I was able to bend my knees easily and could go up or down stairs."

Mrs. T. B. Neff, of Calamine, Wis., who has herself been benefited by taking Athlophoros for her rheumatism, tells an interesting story of the improvement wrought in her brother-in-law, Mr. John W. Neff, of Calamine, an old gentleman of seventy-five years. She says:

"When he got the first bottle of Athlophoros, which I sent for for him, he was so badly off with rheumatism and had been for nearly a year that he could not step without two crutches. It took two or three men to help him out of a wagon or sleigh, and he could not dress or undress alone. He had paid out a great many dollars for remedies. He took eighteen bottles of Athlophoros, and now he can walk three-quarters of a mile with just one cane, and can hoe in the garden and chop wood."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

EPITHELIOMA!
OR SKIN CANCER.

For seven years I suffered with a cancer on my face. Eight months ago a friend recommended the use of Swift's Specific, and I determined to make an effort to procure it. In this I was successful, and began its use. The influence of the medicine at first was to somewhat aggravate the sore; but soon the inflammation was allayed, and I began to improve after the first few bottles. My general health has greatly improved. I am stronger, and am able to do any kind of work. The cancer on my face began to decrease and the ulcer to heal, until there is not a vestige of it left—only a little scar marks the place.
MRS. JOICIE A. McDONALD.
Atlanta, Ga., August 11, 1885.

I have had a cancer on my face for some years, extending from one cheek bone across the nose to the other. It has given me a great deal of pain, at times burning and itching to such an extent that it was almost unbearable. I commenced using Swift's Specific in May, 1885, and have used eight bottles. It has given the greatest relief by removing the inflammation and restoring my general health.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication March 4th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by John Brandt and Mary, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 20th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-three, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of December A. D. 1883, at 11:35 o'clock a. m., in book "O" of mortgages, on pages 531, 532, 533, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of seven hundred and forty-five dollars and sixty-two cents, ($745.62) besides the further sum of $9.30 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday the 16th day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number fourteen (14,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-three (153,) in Range number forty-nine (49) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

Mortgage Sale.

[First publication March 4, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Fred Aldrich, an unmarried man, mortgagor, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 21st day of October, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-one, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of October, A. D. 1881, at 1 o'clock p. m., in book "E" of mortgages, on pages 394, 395 and 396, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of seven hundred and forty-seven dollars, ($747) besides $35 paid for taxes on the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and the taxes as aforesaid with interest thereon, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter (se¼) of Section number thirty, (30) in Township number one hundred and fifty-three, (153) in Range number forty-eight (48) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

The Only Cash Bargain House in the West.

WE ARE NOT SELLING OUT AT COST, NOR have we any old shop-worn or hand me down top shelve goods, but always to the front with Bargains at cut prices that compel our competitors to hang out their yearly sign, the familiar words "Selling Out at Cost!" to meet our sledge hammer prices. Why do we own our goods cheaper? Because we buy in large quantities, buy for the Great Commander, Cash, and we have experienced buyers; because we sell for cash and have no bad debts; because we turn our goods often and are satisfied with the small profit system. William Davidson was down from the Keystone farm last week. He has just put in a car load of grade Norman mares. They will soon have an imported stallion brought to the farm.

A Union Sunday School Convention will be held at the Baptist Church in this city, March 16th and 17th. An interesting program has been prepared. All Sunday School workers in Polk and adjoining counties are invited to attend.

Jud Carrush returned from Minneapolis on Monday evening. He was met at the depot by the band and a host of his friends who gobbled him up, put him in a cutter and hauled him up home, preceded by the band. He had a rousing welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Buchanan departed for their new home in Duluth on Monday evening accompanied by the good wishes of hosts of friends, who heartily commend them to the good graces of Duluthians. Verily, Crookston's loss is Duluth's gain.

Ex-mayor and Mrs. Walsh entertained a number of their friends at euchre on Tuesday evening. Fifteen tables attested their hospitality and enjoyed themselves to the fullest. C. A. Chiniquy walked off with the head prize and S. F. Markham the foot. Mrs. William Stuart captured the ladies' head prize and Mrs. Hartshorn the ladies' foot prize.

Wylie Waifs.

A. Sture visited Crookston Saturday.

Mr. Oxborough is passing the cigars. It is a boy.

A few of our young people will attend the spring term of the Crookston high school.

F. J. Detling came over from the Falls Saturday. He reports the lumber trade brightening up.

A good many of the boys are bewailing the existence of turkey raffles. They came out behind.

The dance at Ned Dewires last Thursday evening was a very enjoyable affair. A large number were present.

Pete Kilberg is expected back daily. The boys are raising up the big dry goods box, and getting tin horns ready, for he has taken a better half.

Now is the time for farmers to get seed wheat ready. A few hours work with a good cockle mill, will often represent the difference of a good grade in the fall.

Several of our citizens have devoted themselves during the past week to getting contributions for the Catholic Fair at the Falls.

The American Agriculturist for March 1886, opens with a full-page engraving of the monarch of the Shorthorn herd. This is followed with nearly one-hundred full-page and smaller illustrtions, of the noted brilliant Percheron Stallion; Hampshire, South Down Sheep, Celebrated Brahama fowls, original and modern Jersey cattle, Poultry houses, Farm houses built at moderate expense, Serviceable barns, Pig pens, and insects injurious to vegetation The Horticultural, Household and Children's department are profusely illustrated. All the engravings are accompanied by original written articles by recognized leading writers, among whom are Seth Green, George Thurber, D. D. Moore, Andrew S. Fuller, L. S. Harden, Mason C. Weld, F. D. Curtiss and a number of others. The full-paper on American Seeds and Seedsmen by Dr. F. M Hexamer, will be found handy by all persons interested in this branch of industry. One of the leading features of the American Agriculturist this year, are Seth Green's papers on fish culure. With these plain and simple instructions, every farmer can raise his own fish on his own farm. $1.50 a year. Single number 15 cents.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication February 25th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Cenat Brouillet and Louise, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited) mortgagee, dated the 24th day of December A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 24th day of December A. D. 1880, at 12 o'clock m., in book "D" of mortgages, on pages 13, 14 and 15, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and ninety-eight ($498) dollars and the further sum of $57.62 paid for taxes on the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the tenth day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and taxes with interest thereon as aforesaid and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section nineteen (19.) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) in Range number forty-three (43) west, of the 5th principal meridian, containing 153 acres.

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication January 28th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Carl Kretzschmar (widower) mortgagor, to John Martin Lumber Company, a corporation then and at all times since duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, which mortgage bears date the 27th day of August A. D. 1884, and was recorded on the 1st day of September A. D. 1884, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County in the State of Minnesota, in book "N" of mortgages, on page [illegible]. No action has been instituted at law to recover the amount secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. And said mortgagor failed to pay the taxes lawfully assessed, on a portion of said mortgaged property for the year 1883, and said John Martin Lumber Company, mortgagee paid said taxes and all penalties and charges thereon amounting in all to the sum of eighty-three and 57-100 dollars, and there is claimed to be due and is due at the date hereof upon said mortgage and the debt thereby secured the sum of one thousand nine hundred fifty-eight and 15-100 ($1958.15-100) dollars, which includes one thousand five hundred and fifty-five and 53-100 dollars ($1555.53-100,) mortgage debt and three hundred and nineteen and 05-100 dollars ($319.05-100,) interest and eighty-three and 57-100 dollars ($83.57-100.) taxes.

The premises set forth and conveyed by said mortgage are situated in the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota and are described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty (20,) in block numbered sixteen (16) in the original township (now city) of Crookston and also lots four (4,) and eight (8,) in block thirty-three (33,) in the said original townsite of Crookston, also lot one (1,) in block two (2,) in Clements' first addition to the city of Crookston, according to the recorded plats of said lots, blocks and additions now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Also the west half of the northwest quarter and lots two (2,) and three (3,) in Section thirty-two (32,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) also the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section thirty-one (31,) Township one hundred fifty-two (152,) Range forty-three (43,) according to the Government survey.

Said mortgage contains a full power of sale in due form of law in case of default of the payment of the principal or interest in said mortgage specified, or any part thereof when due, said mortgage also contains a stipulation on the part of the mortgagor to pay the sum of fifty dollars as and for attorney's fees for the foreclosure thereof.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due on said mortgage and said power of sale has become operative: Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by reason of said default and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the above described premises will be sold at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on Saturday the thirteenth day of March A. D. 1886, at ten o'clock a. m. to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, together with fifty dollars stipulated by said mortgagor to be paid as attorney's fees, and including also such costs as are allowed by law.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk,—ss.
In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Ole H. Johnson, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Harald Johnson of Polk County, Minn., representing among other things, that Ole H. Johnson late of said county on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1883, at Grove Park, in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the father of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be granted to him, Harald Johnson, granted.

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the judge of this court, on Monday the 15th day of March, A. D. 1886, at 2 o'clock p. m. at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated Crookston, the 11th day of February, A. D. 1886.
By the Court,

VOL. IX. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, MARCH 11, 1886. NO. 46.

St. Paul, Feb. 23, 1886.

Editor Polk County Journal:—I have read with interest the editorial in your issue of January 28th, entitled "another railroad" and several considerations have induced me to ask space on the same subject. Your article would naturally lead the reader to doubt the building of the proposed road and you point out only a few of the possible advantages to the interest of Crookston, if the work should be commenced this season. It is generally understood that the Manitoba Railway Company has decided to begin work on the Crookston & Duluth Road as early this spring as may be practicable, and I have it from the best authority that the line will ultimately be a through trunk line between Duluth and the North Dakota country. The primary and immediate purpose however is to give transportation facilities to, and secure the rapid settlement of the well known fertile belt to the east of Crookston, and the timber townships. Crookston will derive immediate benefits from the fact that the building operations will be prosecuted from it as the base of supplies. The work of construction will give employment to large numbers of men, whose earnings will almost wholly be expended in Crookston. The building of the road will induce a large immigration to the entire district traversed by the new line, and for some time to come this newly settled population will necessarily do their trading at Crookston. When the line is completed and the country tributary thereto is settled and improved as it will be, then the local trade at Crookston will be increased, just in the proportion that the district bears to the entire country, whose business materially belongs to Crookston. It is true as has often been said, that there will be small stations at various distances from Crookston, intercepting the country trade; to the east, there will probably be some good towns along the new line. But, admitting the truth of this, the farmers best and heaviest trade seeks the largest neighboring city, where, as in Crookston, there are larger stocks, greater competition, and such consequent low prices that makes it to the consumers' interest to seek such a market. Indeed, I see no reason why the city of Crookston should not become for its surrounding country, a wholesale center. There is no reason why a wholesale merchant located at Crookston should not be able to sell to the small country dealers, as well and profitably as if he did business from either of the twin cities; and I see many reasons why a whole-saler might conduct his business much more economically at Crookston, and give his trade the benefit as more than an eqvivalent for their patronage. I could easily enumerate a number of cities, none more favorably situated than Crookston, where a large wholesale business has been successfully built up and maintained. I might mention LaCrosse, Winona, Red Wing and many other cities, which have Chicago on one side and St. Paul on the other, as competitors. The manufacturing interests of Crookston, so auspiciously begun, will no doubt find rapid development in keeping pace with the growing requirements of the country. With the certain opening of the immense timber district to the eastward, Crookston, built up in the rich heart of the fertile prairie country, will be the natural center of trafic and exchange between the timber country on the one hand, and the agricultural country on the other. When the Crookston & Duluth road is completed Crookston will be the grand junction of the east and west and north and south railway lines of Northwestern Minnesota and Northern Dakota. It requires no prophet to see and foretell the advantages of the situation, and I predict that capitalists, business men, manufacturers and farmers will avail themselves of the oportunities the day offers, and, as if by united and preconcerted action, each will do his part for the benefit of Crookston, while each at the same time, will materially promote his individual interest. Crookston is to day one of the great railway centers of the great Northwest. It is in the very heart of the nicest portion of the Red River Valley, which has magnificent water powers capable of vast utilization. The country tributary to it is well settled with a thrifty experienced class of farmers. The great lumber districts in the east, will deposit their products at the very doors of the Crookston factories, whence railway facilities will distribute the manufactured products in all directions. The short railway haul between Crookston and Duluth will reduce the cost of freight on the products going from and the merchandise going to the Queen city. With all these advantages it requires only united action and activity on the part of the people of Crookston to make the city all that nature has intended it to be.

A. E. Johnson.

FERTILIZERS.

Editor Journal:—Encouraged by past courtesy I venture another appearance in your readable columns, as chronicler of Fertile events, though pardon my modesty, far from a fertile chronicler of events and moreover, if you will pardon the pride also, a citizen of no mean city, London, the largest city in the world and Boston, the universal "hub," each had a beginning, small though it were, and behold how great a matter a little fire kndleth! It is true that one has an outlet, by the Thames, to the vast maritime world beyond, and the other a harbor, whose welcome arms invite the sails that whiten every sea, while we have only the little sand hill, which like a tried traveler, slowly follows the course of empire, westward to the Red. I have a theory in my own mind, however, mythical though it seem that our modest streamlet, as a little Galilean wedding, where "the conscious water saw its God and blushed," is even now aware that "Empire" has decided to stay its course right here, because the location is so eminently eligible for a city of metropolitan proportions. We shall see what we shall see, of course, but in the mean time, having learned to labor and to wait, will not idly lay upon our oars, hoping for favorable breezes to blow our municipal craft into the haven of glad fruition, for Gibbon says "the winds and waves are always on the side of the ablest navigators." Messrs. Holmes and Buse came down here from Red Lake Falls last week, in the interest of the proposed railroad, but I am not informed as to the action taken in the matter, other than the appointment of appraisers upon landed property. Messrs. Kankel and Sohler contemplate the erection of still another mill, this time at Thirteen Towns. These gentlemen are at home in that line of things. Mr. Kankel has lately received intelligence from the fatherland of the death of his mother at the age of eighty-eight years, the other parent having passed away only a few weeks previous. We would fain believe that now reunited in fadeless youth, where the waters of the River of Life peacefully ripple upon the everlasting shore of heaven, they gladly wait to welcome from the alien land across the sea, the lone son whom their eyes, in dying were forbidden to behold. Having a lecture engagement at Beltrami, yesterday, I started for that place on Saturday morning, with one of your Crookston neighbors, but owing to the severity of the weather we missed the proper road and after traveling some ten miles, discovered that we were on the direct route to the county seat. It being proveable that the longest way around is the shortest way across, and also having the storm behind us going northward, I decided to to take in Crookston on my way, a fact of which you had ocular proof. Mr. Dykeman the popular agent of Beltrami, bids fair to become a bonanza farmer, as well as a first class railroad man, having already in his possession 800 acres of as good land as can be found out doors in this valley, and when not yet out of his teens, when from a happy eastern home, he turned his face towards the setting sun, he has both roughed and won his way to a commanding position in the Northwest and made his "title clear." On my return I stopped for a night at the hospitable abode of Damon Dodge, ex-sheriff of Erie Co., N. Y. and was most agreeably entertained, "in soul, body, and spirit." His home has more of an eastern appearance in its surroundings than any other between this place and the station, being situated in a beautiful grove, skirting the left bank of the river, which is crossed at that point by a bridge of a single arch. While conversing with my kind host, I seemed to myself, to be setting in the shadow or rather the light, of one of the most eminent statesmen of the Empire state with whom he apparently was as familiar with, as Franklin or Morse was with lightning.

VOL. IX. | CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, MARCH 11, 1886. | NO. 46

ST. PAUL, FEB. 28, 1886.

EDITOR POLK COUNTY JOURNAL:—I have read with interest the editorial in your issue of January 28th, entitled "another railroad," and several considerations have induced me to ask space on the same subject. Your article would naturally lead the reader to doubt the building of the proposed road and you point out only a few of the possible advantages to the interest of Crookston, if the work should be commenced this season. It is generally understood that the Manitoba Railway Company has decided to begin work on the Crookston & Duluth Road as early this spring as may be practicable, and I have it from the best authority that the line will ultimately be a through trunk line between Duluth and the North Dakota country. The primary and immediate purpose, however, is to give transportation facilities to, and secure the rapid settlement of the well known fertile belt to the east of Crookston, and the timber townships. Crookston will derive immediate benefits from the fact that the building operations will be prosecuted from it as the base of supplies. The work of construction will give employment to large numbers of men, whose earnings will almost wholly be expended in Crookston. The building of the road will induce a large immigration to the entire district traversed by the new line, and for some time to come this newly settled population will necessarily do their trading at Crookston. When the line is completed and the country tributary thereto is settled and improved as it will be, then the local trade at Crookston will be increased, just in the proportion that the district bears to the entire country whose business materially belongs to Crookston. It is true, as has often been said, that there will be small stations at various distances from Crookston, intercepting the country trade to the east; there will probably be some good towns along the new line. But, admitting the truth of this, the farmers best and heaviest trade seeks the largest neighboring city, where, as in Crookston, there are larger stocks, greater competition, and such consequent low prices that make it to the consumers interest to seek such a market. Indeed I see no reason why the city of Crookston should not become for its surrounding country a wholesale center. There is no reason why a wholesale merchant located at Crookston should not be able to sell to the small country dealers as well and profitably as he did business from either of the twin cities, and I see many reasons why a wholesaler might conduct his business much more economically at Crookston, and give his trade the benefit as more than an equivalent for their patronage. I could easily enumerate a number of cities none more favorably situated than Crookston, where a large wholesale business has been successfully built up and maintained. I might mention La Crosse, Winona, Red Wing and many other cities, which have Chicago on one side and St. Paul on the other, as competitors. The manufacturing interests of Crookston so auspiciously begun will no doubt find rapid development in keeping pace with the growing requirements of the country. With the certain opening of the immense timber district to the east [illegible]

FERTILIZERS.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Encouraged by past courtesy, I venture another appearance in your readable columns as chronicler of Fertile events, though, pardon my modesty, far from a fertile chronicler of events, and moreover, if you will pardon the pride also, a citizen of no mean city. London, the largest city in the world and Boston, the universal hub, each had a beginning, small though it were, and behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth! It is true that one has an outlet, by the Thames, to the vast maritime world beyond, and the other, a harbor, whose welcome arms invite the sails that whiten every sea, while we have only the little sand hill, which like a tried traveler, slowly follows the course of empire westward to the Red. I have a theory in my own mind, however mythical though it seem, that our modest streamlet, as a little Galilean wedding, where the conscious water saw its God and blushed, is even now aware that "Empire" has decided to stay its course right here, because the location is so eminently eligible for a city of metropolitan proportions. We shall see what we shall see, of course, but in the mean time, having learned to labor and to wait, will not idly lay upon our oars, hoping for favorable breezes to blow our municipal craft into the haven of glad fruition, for Gibbon says "the winds and waves are always on the side of the ablest navigators." Messrs. Holmes and Buse came down here from Red Lake Falls last week in the interest of the proposed railroad, but I am not informed as to the action taken in the matter, other than the appointment of appraisers upon landed property. Messrs. Kankel and Sohler contemplate the erection of still another mill, this time at Thirteen Towns. These gentlemen are at home in that line of things. Mr. Kankel has lately received intelligence from the fatherland of the death of his mother at the age of eighty-eight years, the other parent having passed away only a few weeks previous. We would fain believe that now, reunited in fadeless youth, where the waters of the River of Life peacefully ripple upon the everlasting shore of heaven, they gladly wait to welcome from the alien land across the sea, the lone son whom their eyes in dying were forbidden to behold. Having a lecture engagement at Beltrami yesterday, I started for that place on Saturday morning with one of your Crookston neighbors, but owing to the severity of the weather we missed the proper road and after traveling some ten miles, discovered that we were on the direct route to the county seat. It being proverbial that the longest way around is the shortest way across, and also having the storm behind us going northward, I decided to take in Crookston on my way, the fact of which you had ocular proof. Mr. Dykeman, the popular agent of Beltrami, bids fair to become a bonanza farmer, as well as a first class railroad man, having already in his possession 800 acres of as good land as can be found out doors in this valley, and when not yet out of his teens, when from a happy eastern home, he turned his face towards the setting sun, he has battle roughed and won his way to a commanding [illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

(First publication March 4th, 1886.)

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Eli Huot and Hermenia, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 27th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of December, A. D. 1882, at 1:15 o'clock p. m., in book "K" of mortgages, on pages 53 and 54, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of five hundred and forty-seven dollars, ($547) besides the further sum of $15.51 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday, the 16th day of April, A. D. 1886 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The west half (w½) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) and the west half (w½) of the southeast quarter (se¼) of Section number twelve (12) in township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) in Range number forty-six (46) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

D. 1882, at 9:15 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 464, 465, and 466, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and twenty-three dollars ($623,) besides the sum of $54.11 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday the 23d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number twenty-five (25,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-two (152,) in Range number forty-five (45) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

[First publication March 4th, 1886.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and Mine Tiedemann, mortgagors, to The Beloit Savings Bank, mortgagee, dated the 5th day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 322 and 323, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and 56-100 dollars, ($764.56-100,) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars, ($26.82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become and is operative, and under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed on Saturday the first day of May A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100.)

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication March 11th, 1886.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William Wylie and Mary Jane Wylie, his wife, mortgagors, to Colonial and United States Mortgage Company, (Limited,) mortgagee, dated the 15th day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 16th day of June A. D. 1882, at 9:15 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages, on pages 464, 465, and 466, on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the amount of six hundred and twenty-three dollars ($623), besides the sum of $34.41 paid for taxes upon the mortgaged premises, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy, on Friday the 23d day of April A. D. 1886, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and provided by law.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southwest quarter (sw¼) of Section number twenty-five (25,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-two (152,) in Range number forty-five (45) west of the 5th principal meridian, containing 160 acres.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Henry Tiedemann and [illegible] Tiedemann, mortgagors, to The Beloit Savings Bank, mortgagee, dated the [illegible] day of April A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded as a mortgage in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk in the State of Minnesota, on the 1st day of May A. D. 1882, at 10 o'clock a. m., in book "F" of mortgages on pages [illegible], on which there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred and sixty-four and [illegible] dollars ($764.[illegible]) and twenty-six and 82-100 dollars ($26.82-100) paid for taxes by said mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. By reason of such default and the non-institution of action, the power to sell the property described in said mortgage has become, and is operative. And under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, the said mortgagee elects to declare and claims that the whole sum secured by said mortgage and now unpaid is due and payable.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County, or by his deputy duly appointed, on Saturday, the first day of May, A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-six, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and fifty dollars attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot, piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter (nw¼) of Section two (2,) Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-eight (48) west, containing one hundred and forty-six and 44-100 acres (146 44-100).

CROOKSTON, MINN., MARCH 11.

If you enjoy a good smoke try Herb's shot gun cigar.

Mr. S. Collins has gone below after more cows and horses.

Geo. Macdonell has rented the house recently vacated by D. Buchanan, on Fletcher St.

Register Smith and family are now "at home" in their new residence in this city. We bid them a hearty welcome to Crookston society.

Mr. J. A. Bemis, formerly of the Lake Park Hotel, has assumed control of the Commercial, Mr. Carroll retiring. Mr. B. is said to be an excellent hotel man.

H. G. Gallasch has returned to duty, from a pleasant visit with friends in the old home. The trip has done him worlds of good—he looks quite handsome now.

There will be a Memorial Service on Sunday evening the 14th, at the Methodist Church in honor of John B. Gough, the great temperance lecturer, whose loss we all mourn.

If you go to Herb's Branch and buy 500 shot guns, you get a chance at a good A No. 1 cigar—or vice versa.

Dr. M. VanDyke and G. W. Lewis have purchased an interest in E. C. Davis' patent railroad tie. Mr. Davis has gone east to attend to business in the interest of said tie.

Herb has a No. 1 shot gun to give away to smokers.

The Japanese tea, given by the ladies of the Episcopal church, last Wednesday evening, was a grand affair, well patronized and highly enjoyed. The Celestials say they were never better received than in Crookston and may decide to stay and grow up with the country.

Go and see Herb when you want a cheap smoke and get a chance at that shot gun all the same.

A minstrel show called "De Judge's minstrels," is advertised to appear at the opera house to-morrow evening, March 12th. If this DeJudge is the same one who ran a snap variety show on Robert Street and later a disreputable den over Warninger's saloon, the citizens of this berg ought to give him a wide berth for it is liable to be a dead give away. If he is not the same one he is unfortunate in his name.

The farmer's meeting at Moorhead last week was well attended and very interesting. The railroad commissioners were there and Gen. Baker stated that the board had recommended a large reduction in the freight rates and that Mr. Hill would recommend the same to the board of directors. We trust that the reduction will be made. The freight on wheat to Minneapolis or Duluth would then not exceed ten cents per bushel.

Great reduction in prices of Jewelry at C. H. Saake, Main Street, Opposite Merchants Bank.

Rev. W. F. Davis of Chelsea, Mass. would like to meet the Christain workers of Crookston of all the different churches on Friday evening the 19th inst., at half past seven at the Reading Room. He comes as a Christain worker under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. and will give a gospel temperance lecture in the Congregational Church, Sunday evening the 21st. He will also hold gospel services in the Reading Room, Sunday afternoon at half past three. Young men especially invited, to be present.

Every article in my store, without any reserve whatever, will go at a great discount this month. C. H. Saake, Jeweler.

Sheriff Zwickey has for some time been on the still-hunt for a man wanted in Bufalo, N. Y., for alleged embezzlement. Last week being warned by a dream that he would find his man in the land of "Chronicles" (yclept Woodside) he departed hence for that better scountry. Upon arrival he found his bird had lit out for Crookston on the stage. Hastily following he overtook and arrested his man and brought him to Crookston where he provided for his safety until he could get ready to take him to St. Paul, to deliver him to the New York officers. It is said that the man has a wife in New York State and he was recently married to a Woodside lady.

You can buy yourself a watch at C. H. Saake's jewelry store cheaper than any other place in the city.

W. G. Lytle, Frank Lytle, Frank Bivins, and E. E. Perry took a trip up to Bailey's lumber camp last week and extended it to Red Lake. They report a good time; Indians all quiet and likely to remain so, as long as they can be pelted in the way they are now. Somebody put up a fine job on the innocent Thirteen Towns man, by telling him that our Mr. Perry wore the "Rev." as an every day handle. Why, bless your honest soul Kaiser, can't you tell a granger when you see him? He is a healthy looking preacher, now, don't you think so? Why, there has never been a whisper before off color, except that the boys talk of running him for the granger candidate for the Legislature and we can assure you, Al, that Perry don't know a breath about that as yet. NO SIR! HE IS AN HONEST FARMER! [illegible]

The masquerade ball on Tuesday evening, was fairly well attended and a good time.

N. J. Small was elected mayor of Brainerd over C. B. Sleeper, by a small majority, as it were.

The sale at Terry & Collins' barn on Saturday was well attended and a considerable property was sold.

The Odd Fellows dance, on Friday evening of last week, was a financial success and an enjoyable season.

The gang played the Crookston boys for a lot of suckers and got left. They did not get away with more than $150 or $200.

It is reported that the Manitoba surveyors will take the field to-morrow and make the first survey for the Crookston and Duluth road.

J. T. Brown, the Fertile cheeseman, was up on Saturday to attend the sale at Terry & Collins' stables. He will cheese it numerously next season.

Mr. J. W. Slee has returned from below where he had been for treatment for his eyes. He has lost the sight in one of them but the other is sound.

Fred Stauff came in on Tuesday from the north. Max says that he sold Fred that Holstein pup for $100. We have heard Fred say that "wheat raising" don't pay.

Charlie Seely is still on deck and ready to bet on Carruth or set up the liquid refreshments on the shortest possible notice. He goes off at the drop of the hat.

Dr. P. Beaupre has disposed of his interest in Gentilly and will open an office in this city. The doctor is one of the oldest inhabitants here, having come in an early day, and as such he needs no introduction.

Henry Steego came near losing one of his mares on Monday night. The animal got into her manger in such a way that she could not be got out before the manger was torn down. It was a close call and in a short time Steego would have had a dead horse.

The race on Friday night between Carruth and Bromley, was a close contest. Bromley took the lead on the start and kept it for two or three miles, when Carruth passed him, but only for a round or so. On the fifth mile Carruth again passed and held the lead to the close.

N. F. Reynolds and family have gone to Chillicothe, Mo., to engage in his old business, books and stationery. He has been a resident of Polk County about six years and was one of our best farmers. We shall be sorry to part with him but wish him abundant success in his new venture.

E. D. Childs had his Norman-Messenger, four year old colt hitched up and driving about the streets last week. The animal is a good one and is a credit to his owner and the county. The effects of all this good stock, lately imported, will be long felt for good in this county.

For several days the work of putting in a new front and shelving the store just one door south of VanDyke & Co's. has been going on and it was rumored that a gentleman from Winona had rented it for a general store. It now looks as though Charley Chiniquy had designs upon that store, as he is pretty numerous about it. We sincerely trust that this may be the size of it.

The second annual convention of the Polk County Sunday School Association will be held in the Presbyterian church, in this city, commencing on Tuesday evening, March 16th, and continuing through Wednesday, the 17th. An interesting program has been prepared, and it is hoped that all who feel an interest in Sunday school work will find time to attend. Free entertainment will be furnished those coming from a distance.

There are those who believe that the man called "Gamble" is no other than Skinner, the champion skater of the world, and it is not impossible that such may be the case. Be that as it may, the fact that Carruth, with the small amount of experience that he has had, and his honest way of skating, is as good a skater, speaks volumes for his prowess and indicates what he could do with a little more practice. "Freeman," or "Gamble," or "Skinner," or whoever he may be, shows that he is afraid of Carruth as it is, or he would not have attempted any of his little tricks of the trade in order to do him up, as he did on Saturday evening. If Carruth's skating was not phenomenal there would have been no necessity for a resort to gambling devices to down him, but this whole business only shows to our mind that this jockey racing is poor business. So far Carruth has never got entangled, and we trust that he never will.

Explanation.

MR. EDITOR:—Since the race I was referee in Saturday evening, it has been circulated that I had money bet on Mr. Gamble and was under obligations to certain traveling men. I wish to say that I had not one dollar on the race, and will give any person one hundred dollars to point out a single bet that I made or had any person make for me in any way.

I made my decision on what I thought was true and honest, and I know nothing at all about any sharp game being practiced.

Yours Truly,
GEO. G. MACDONELL.

CROOKSTON, March 8th, 1886.

EDITOR POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

Dear Sir:—I desire through your paper to explain my position in the Bromley-Carruth race, which was skated in this city Friday evening last. Myself and the others, who have been connected with this affair attended the races at Minneapolis, where, although Carruth was victorious in every race he was unable owing to the small attendance to make enough money to pay his expenses. Knowing this, Crocker suggested that if we desired to give Carruth a benefit he would bring both of his men up to Crookston, and would be willing to divide the receipts equally with him; he intends to quit skating, and wants to do it with as good a record as possible. Now I would just as soon let him win both of those races. We were all present when Crocker said this and could see no harm in it, as we were satisfied that Crookston people would back Carruth to a man after the record he had made in Minneapolis, after these arrangements were completed Crocker suggested that we say nothing about that, for, said he, if people know that the race is only for the gate receipts, they will not take much interest in it. People always turn out better where they think there is a good deal of money up on a race. Now let us arrange it in this way. A couple of days after you arrive home I will challenge Carruth to skate two races on your rink and will tell him I have placed a forfeit in your hands. In this way we can advertise the race and bring out a big crowd. This we thought would be all right, and suggested that an agreement be drawn up and signed, and the following agreement was drawn up:

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 26th, 1886.

It is agreed that the undersigned, Frank L. Crocker, party of the first part, and D. Jacobus, party of the second part, that the party of first part is to bring R. C. Bromley to Crookston to skate a five mile race with E. C. Carruth on the Queen City Rink, on Friday evening March 5th, 1886, and L. Jay Gamble to skate a ten mile race, at the same rink, on Saturday evening, March 6th, Carruth to win both races. It is further agreed in consideration of the above that the party of the second part allow the party of the first part one-half of the gross receipts of both the Friday and Saturday evenings entertainments above mentioned.

FRANK L. CROCKER.
DELOS JACOBUS.

Two copies were made and Crocker and myself signed them both. After the first race he signified his intention of breaking this agreement and skating the race on its merits. This we were glad to do, but after we had bet our money on Carruth he came and claimed his half of the gate receipts the same as if he had lived up to the agreement. This we refused to give him, and he and the gang of gamblers who were with him began to make all the false statements they could think of which would in any way place us in a bad light before the people of Crookston, and there is no doubt but to a certain extent they have succeeded. The facts as stated above, however, are the whole truth and nothing but the truth. I had no more intention of defrauding anyone when I signed that contract than I did of flying. I did it simply as a benefit for Jud and for no other reason. Jud himself knew nothing at all about it until after the race was skated and if there is any blame attached to the business he does not come in for a share of it.

D. JACOBUS.

As there has been a great deal of excitement, and much hard feeling engendered over the result of Saturday evening's race THE JOURNAL has given a great deal of time, trying to get at the true inwardness of the thing and arrives at this conclusion: "That the Crocker clique came here with the avowed intentions to down the city for any amount possible, and to do it in any way possible, by fair means or foul. This seems plain by the result, as it is said that they had their men spotted whom they intended to pluck and they came prepared to do their business by fair means or foul. That they did not do it as fully as they intended we believe is due to the influence of D. Jacobus, who seeing their little game in time, was enabled to head it off. "Jake" and Herb and the others who were the most instrumental in getting up the race have been severely criticised, charged with being in collusion with the gang from Minneapolis, but as far as we are able yet to learn we believe with injustice as their explanation seems perfectly reasonable and more than all that, we can not find a single case wherein they have received a single dollar on bets against Carruth. They knew beforehand that Carruth was to win (or thought they did) and they claim that they made no agreement for a race this week, as Crocker said they did. Now, if they had had an understanding with Crocker, the time for them to make their money was on Friday and Saturday nights. Crocker himself threw off on the arrangement on Saturday and then tried to inquire the boys (who he tried first to make his stool pigeons) by stating that they were in the ring. If they had done the thing, they would be worthy of the severest condemnation, but we believe they did not, the only mistake they made was in having anything to do with the gambling ring at all. Elsewhere we give Jacobus' version of the affair and the original and only contract in the matter.

Wanted.

At the Commercial Hotel 100 bushels of good potatoes and several bushels of vegetables such as turnips, carrots, onions and beets. Also a few good beans and thirty cords of wood.
